SUMMARY.

Mr. Asquith stated in the House of Commons that the Imperial Defence Committee is an indispensable part of the administrative organisation.

A special sub-committee went minutely into the question raised by Lord Roberts as to the possibility of invasion.

The committee decided that naval supremacy, and that alone, could safeguard the Empire.

WARREN'S FEATHERBONE.
Starting from next Tuesday, we are giving a demonstration for the remainder of the week of the uses of this new Dress-boning Material, made from Turkey Quills.
By ingenious experiments it has been found that a quill can be reduced to fibre, and made into a substantial cord or blade, which is the basis of Warren's Featherbone styles.
Its elasticity and durability have made it the "Dress-boning Material of the World."
Warren's Featherbone stays the bodice seams: there is no snapping, no wearing out, no loss of resiliency, and it will stay for the life of the bodice, and longer.
The waist-bone is made in various grades, and covered with different fabrics. We instance one:—

SUPERIOR FOOTWEAR IN EXCLUSIVE SHAPES.
The details of good dressing demand equal attention to one's footwear as the other essentials of correct dressing. Our footwear embraces those points that mark very close following of the season's vogue. Most of the lasts are confined to our orders, while others are absolutely our own, and incapable of duplication.
Another point is that we pay special attention to the selection of leathers. Only well-dressed skins of the highest quality are used in the manufacture, thus ensuring the wearer of the utmost possible service.
As examples of the higher-class of Boot-making we direct your attention to our special window display. It is comprehensive, and embraces the most fashionable shapes, while the prices are marked by a moderation of range.
Two styles we mention here as indications of our splendid values. Both are extremely serviceable, as the boots will prove worthy of the most perfect dressing, and wear twice as long as a pair costing but few shillings less.

BALMORAL LACE BOOT, in Vici Kid, light but strong, welted extension sole, in full sizes, from 5 to 10 .... 21/

June 21, 1909.
To Messrs. WAUGH and JOSEPHSON.
Dear Sirs,—I have very much pleasure in saying that we installed one of your ten-horse 'Frisco Standard Engines in our Motor Launch Enterprise, 45ft x 10ft beam, in September, 1905, and have been running regular passenger trips and towing punts ever since with great success.
It is now close on four years, and have not had any trouble whatever, and is running now as good as the day it was installed, and the only new parts we have had to get are two new exhaust springs, and the mileage done each year is about 2876. We always attend to our engines ourselves, and keep them clean, and, more so, we were so pleased with the above Engine that we installed another 5-horse 'Frisco Standard Engine in our small launch, and am pleased to say is giving every satisfaction, the same as the 10-horse engine; and anyone wanting a good, serviceable, and reliable Engine I shall always recommend them to take the 'Frisco Standard Engine.
I am,
Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) WM. JAS. ROWE.

MORT'S DOCK AND ENGINEERING COMPANY, LTD., desire to announce that the INVINCIBLE MOTOR CONSTRUCTION COMPANY, Woolwich, have acquired the Motor Construction Business heretofore carried on by them, and that the new Firm will continue the construction and sale of the "Invincible" Motor Engines at Woolwich.
The "INVINCIBLE" has achieved a high place in the esteem of the Australian public, and the fact is now widely recognised that it is equal, if not superior, to imported engines. This HIGH STANDARD is to be maintained by the new COMPANY, and every effort is to be made to continue the development of the industry.
The personnel of the New Company is a guarantee of efficiency, and as it has at its command all the facilities of the Invincible Works, the LARGEST CONCERN OF ITS KIND IN THE COMMONWEALTH, the public can be assured of thorough satisfaction.
We ask, therefore, that the patronage we have received during our direct control of the works will be continued and increased to our successors, so that they may be enabled to still further develop this important industry, and prove incontestably to every Australian buyer that there is no need to go outside Australia for any Oil Engine, either Marine or Land, as the work can be done better here, and at no extra cost.
31st July, 1909.

THE INVINCIBLE MOTOR CONSTRUCTION COMPANY, WOOLWICH, desire to announce that they have acquired the Motor Construction Business heretofore carried on by MORT'S DOCK AND ENGINEERING COMPANY, LTD., at Woolwich. The new Firm will carry on the construction of "INVINCIBLE" MOTOR ENGINES at Woolwich, as before.
We have decided to reduce PRICES, and we ask everybody contemplating the purchase of a Motor to see what the "INVINCIBLE MOTOR WORKS" can do, both in high quality and reasonable price. You can see the "INVINCIBLE" built, you can see it tested, and the Company is RIGHT HERE ON THE SPOT if you have any difficulty whatever, and in cases of breakages the patterns are at hand.
We can fill any Orders with the utmost speed, as we have about £8000 worth of engines, spare parts, and fittings in stock; we have an unequalled plant for turning out the best work; our cylinder Iron is specially imported, and all parts are STANDARDISED and DRASTICALLY TESTED.
We can also quote for SUCTION GAS ENGINES and PLANTS, in powers from 10-h.p. to 2000-h.p. Our Engines are of the CONTINENTAL TYPE, which is recognised to surpass all others in efficiency, reliability, economy, and beauty of design.
As to REPAIR WORK, we claim that we have a better and larger plant than any other firm in Australasia, for this class of work. Get Quotations from the trade, and then ASK US. We can save you MONEY, and give you more SATISFACTION than anybody.
THE INVINCIBLE MOTOR CONSTRUCTION COY., Head Office and Works: Woolwich. City Office and Showroom: 35 Pitt-street, Sydney. 31st July, 1909.

CHAPTER XI.

It was a sultry afternoon of September and a punt was moving slowly upstream towards the little islands which lie midway between Cookham and Boulter's Lock. The Cliveden Woods were in their full glory, and the trees that overhung the water afforded tempting shade from the glare of the sun.

"What a lot of people there are about!" remarked the boy who had been lazily manipulating the punt pole. "That's the worst of this reach. It so deucedly popular that one can't find a shady place by the bank that isn't occupied by a noisy party at tea or by some spooning couple or other."

His companion laughed. She looked deliciously cool and comfortable, leaning against the red cushions which had been carefully piled up about her. She was trailing the fingers of one hand in the water, and with the other she caressed the silken ear of a little toy Yorkshire terrier.

"Isn't it a nuisance, Peggy?" he went on; "when we've brought out our tea and when we want to spoon, too."

"Speak for yourself, Bob," retorted the girl. She was quite accustomed to Bob Fauntleroy's incessant protestations of undying affection. She knew that they meant in reality nothing at all. It had always been the same between them, even when they had been little more than boy and girl.

"What shall we do " he asked. He plunged the pole into the water with a vigorous sweep which brought the punt into a thick mass of rushes, from which, laughing, he proceeded to extricate it.

"We'll go straight up between the islands," she said. "There's such a lot of weed on the water there that people keep away from them. We are bound to find a place to ourselves where we can land and make tea. See, I'll help you with the paddle."

Bob Fauntleroy laid down the punt pole and took a paddle himself, digging it down vigorously among the weeds over which he was forcing the punt. Peggy professed to help him, but the tiny dips which she gave with her paddle were of small assistance in propelling them to their destination.

Peggy gave a little scream at last as they passed under the overhanging boughs of a tree, the roots of which were partly submerged. "That's just the place, Bob," she cried, "and there isn't a soul in sight. We shall have it all to ourselves, and can play at being cast on a desert island just as we used to when we were children."

And so, with some difficulty, Bob succeeded in mooring the punt, and then, jumping ashore, helped Peggy, her little dog clasped in her arms, to follow his example. And there, in the shade of the tree, they boiled their kettle and enjoyed an impromptu meal, laughing and talking together, almost as if there was no shadow upon the lives of either of them, save that of the big tree under which they sat.

In a measure both the girl and the boy were playing truant, and perhaps it was the knowledge of this fact which added to the enjoyment of their trip. Peggy was staying with Lady Westmere at a house which the latter had taken some miles from the river in the direction of Burnham.

But Lady Westmere had been obliged to go to town on business, summoned by an urgent telegram, which she had received that morning, and Peggy had been prepared to spend a solitary day with a book in the garden.

She had not minded this very much, since she did not often get time to herself, Lady Westmere having a constant succession of visitors coming down from London. But, as a rule, they were not people that she cared about, and the most constant of all was the man who, in her heart, she feared and abhorred, though she no longer dared to express openly her feelings concerning him. Lord Bardley stood on a different footing today, and Peggy was compelled to treat him with respect.

A telegram had arrived for her very soon after her aunt's departure. She had opened it with fear and trembling, for she had imagined at once that it must be from her elderly admirer, perhaps announcing that he was coming down for the day, as was his not infrequent custom. To her joy, however, she found that the telegram was from Bob Fauntleroy, whom she had imagined staying with friends of his father in Scotland.

"I've come home," he announced, when he put in his appearance not long after the telegram. "I got tired of the solemn old house and all the solemn people in it, Peggy. It wasn't as if there'd been any shooting, you know. I shouldn't have minded it so much, then. To go to Scotland and not shoot grouse—well, isn't the very idea of such a thing absurd?"

It was always a matter of wonder to Bob—as to everyone else—how he ever came to have been born a Fauntleroy, at least a Fauntleroy of that particular branch to which he belonged. For Bob's father was a stern, austere man, who had not the smallest appreciation for, or understanding of, the various forms of sport which Bob loved, and in which he excelled.

Mr. Fauntleroy, senior, had been squire of a considerable estate, a hard man to his tenants, who, in consequence, had made his life burdensome to him, so that at last he had been obliged to leave the country altogether and settle in London. The only one who regretted this was Bob, who had made himself liked by all classes of the community. He was a generous, impulsive boy, straight of figure and strong of arm—a typical young Englishman.

Very soon after the move to London the Fauntleroys met with serious reverses—reverses insufficient to justify Lady Westmere's definition of Mr. Fauntleroy as a poor man, but still quite enough to materially alter their manner of life.

Bob had to be satisfied with a small allowance, and, being a young man of extravagant tastes, he found the new condition of affairs particularly galling. Peggy had heard various rumours of serious trouble at home on account of his extravagance.

"The governor expected me to spend another week at Fairlie," Bob continued to explain, "and Heaven alone knows what excuses I found to get away. But I tell you, Peggy, it was awful: It was my mother's people we were staying with, and they are dour Scotch folk, as solemn as they make 'em, who go to kirk three times on Sundays and——"

He shook the girl by her two hands and danced about the room where she had met him on his arrival.

"Oh, Peggy, I can't tell you how glad I am to have got away, even though London in September isn't altogether what one would wish for. Still, in a few days' time I'm going off to shoot with Ted Hastings, down in Bedfordshire, and I'm bound to have a good time there."

So he rattled on, and Peggy was more than delighted to hear him. It made her forget her own troubles for the time being. She gave him lunch, and then the picnic on the river was planned. Peggy loved the river, but not under the conditions it had lately presented to her.

Lord Bardley was not particularly at home in a boat—which was, no doubt, a good thing for her, since she might otherwise have been left more in his company than she would have cared for—and so their river excursions had usually consisted of a party of at least four solemnly putting up at Cookham for tea, without any suggestion of a pleasant pause under the bank.

Furthermore, how absurd in her eyes Lord Bardley appeared when he was dressed in his flannels. Of course they were always of immaculate make and cut—far too neat and tidy, in fact. He couldn't bear to get them wet. Then if he hadn't aped the young man so ridiculously—it was that which offended her more than anything else.

His tight shoes, his pinched waist, and padded shoulders—how they contrasted with Bob's loose and comfortable grey flannels, his straw hat perched on the back of his head, and the scarf, a scarf bright with many colours, lightly knotted about his waist. Bob, boy as he was, seemed to her far more of a man than did her elderly admirer.

It was after they had finished tea that Peggy bethought herself of certain rumours which had come to her ears lately, and so she took it upon herself to scold Bob, to scold him nicely in the queer, half-jocular, half-motherly fashion which she was always wont to assume with him.

Bob was a year or two the elder, but Peggy always professed—always had professed—to look upon him as an irresponsible child, one whom she could scold and tease just as seemed best to her.

She had never had brother or sister of her own, and till Bob and she had become playmates the girl had lived a rather lonely life, giving herself up to dreams and fancies of which she had never dared to speak to anyone till she was able to make a confidant of Bob.

There had never been a secret between them, and so Peggy had been waiting for some time to be taken fully into the boy's confidence, and because he had not yet spoken upon a certain subject she was feeling slightly aggrieved.

Certainly he might have the same ideas about her, for there was a great deal weighing upon her mind, and she would have loved to unburden herself of it; but somehow—even with Bob—she felt shy, tongue-tied, and unwontedly nervous. At any rate, it was for him to talk first.

"Bob," she said gravely at last, "you have been deceiving me." She was sitting by his side on the mossy bank, her little feet very close to the edge of the water, the miniature dog, a little heap of silver-grey, curled up on her lap.

Bob was lying lazily at full length upon his back, his hands clasped under his head, his straw hat tilted a little over his eyes to shield him from the sun, which had just begun to filter through the foliage of the tree above them. He turned on his elbow when she addressed him, and answered in a tone of serio-comic intensity: "Deceived you, Peggy? I vow that I've been as true and faithful as knight of old to his lady-love."

"You know what I mean," she interrupted. "You haven't told me everything. Why did you come back in such a hurry? Your father wanted to get you out of London—that's what I heard."

The boy flushed a little. For the moment he took no notice of the insinuation conveyed in the latter part of Peggy's speech. "I told you I was bored," he said.

"But there's something else," insisted the girl. "You know it's no use trying to keep anything from me, Bob. I can read you like a book. Tell me first why you left Scotland."

Bob hesitated a moment, then he blurted out his story. "They drove me away from Fairlie, Peggy, upon my word they did. What do you think? My father actually suggested that I should marry Janet Macalister, and it was to meet her that I was sent to Scotland. Well, I couldn't stand that, you know."

"I've never seen her, but I know what she's like. Ted Hastings told me. She is a tall, rawboned Scotch lassie, all sharp angles instead of graceful curves, with big feet and hands, a complexion that looks as if it had been put on with a tar brush, and an accent that you could cut with a knife."

"I don't want to be cruel, Peggy, and I daresay she's a charming girl, really, but I don't like that sort. She's got a muckle pile of bawbees, though, and of course that's the reason why I've got to make up to her."

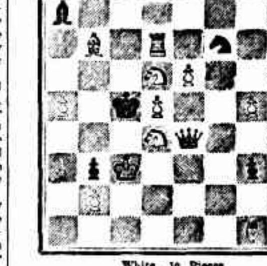

"Well, you understand, I couldn't stick it. When I heard she was coming and what was expected of me, I made a bolt for it. I don't know what excuse I made. When the governor gets back to town there'll be a terrible row," he added, pursing up his lips. "He's in Cornwall, you know. I've lived in an atmosphere of rows lately, so I'm prepared."

SYDNEY C.C. ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

The Sydney C.C. held its fourteenth annual general meeting at the club rooms, Hunter-street, on Tuesday last. Mr. Bignold (vice-president), in the chair, and a full attendance of members. The annual report showed the membership at 43, which must be considered very satisfactory. A handicap tourney resulted in the prize-winners being as follow:—(1) Mr. Rossi, (2) Mr. Tolley, (3) Mr. Spence, (4) Mr. Britton. The club has played in the Sydney suburban matches (A grade), and won two out of the first three matches played, defeating Manly and School of Arts, and losing to St. Leonards. The finances showed a considerable improvement on last year. The election of office-bearers resulted as follows:—President, Mr. H. D. Vane; vice-presidents, Messrs. W. F. Nicholls and F. J. Wallis; hon treasurer, Mr. Craig; hon. secretary, Mr. Spence; committee, Messrs. Asher, Bignold, Britton, Corkhill, Henderson, Miles, and Rossi.

FOURTH AUSTRALIAN CHESS CONGRESS.

The Sydney C.C. at its annual general meeting expressed its entire concurrence in the proposal to hold a chess championship tourney in Sydney next year. The expressions of approval of the idea are so general and widespread that we have no doubt that the requisite financial support will be forthcoming, provided, and it may be a big "if," the requisite number of players of the first class are entrants.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. T. Calvert.—Thanks. Patal-Otia. No. 1194, your solution was QB5. G. E. Shoebridge, F. R. Smith, noted. E. J. Stenning, Problem No. 1201. The diagram is correct. It is obviously a printer's error in the Forsyth.

RAILWAY METHODS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of to-day a letter appeared under the above heading, complaining about a bridge at Penshurst. This bridge was not asked for by the residents, nor was it required on account of any dangerous crossing, and why it was dumped there it is hard to say. But, on the other hand, at Mortdale station, hundreds of children cross daily to school, and there have been several very narrow escapes. A bridge is admitted by the Commissioners to be very necessary, and they have had plans in hand for years for its construction, but they are holding back on the plea that they have no power to close the crossing until an Act of Parliament is passed. This bill, we are told, has been in the hands of the present Government several sessions now, and still not yet passed, or brought forward, which I trust they will do, as this bridge question at Mortdale will soon be in its tenth year. I am, etc.,

CURRENT LITERATURE.

A SOLDIER OF EMPIRE.

Colonel Watson's "Life of Major-General Sir Charles W. Wilson," is the record of an interesting career. Wilson was born in 1836, and began his education under an old-fashioned schoolmaster, who caned him every morning, not for faults committed, but by way of anticipating necessity. He had set his heart on entering the army from a very early age, and the Crimean War and the dearth of officers enabled him to join the Royal Engineers without preliminary training at a military college. He did not, however, see service at this time. In 1858 he was appointed secretary to the North American Boundary Commission, and this difficult business enabled him to show something of his quality. The survey had to be made through wild and mountainous country, in parts entirely unknown, and the line of boundary between Canada and the United States had to be clearly marked out by making a wide cutting through the forests. The work occupied the party until 1862, when Wilson returned to England. He was next employed on a survey of the city of Jerusalem, which came to be the basis of modern exploration in Palestine. Wilson's topographical work, in fact, proved of the utmost importance, and incidentally it led to the formation of the Palestine Exploration Fund, a society that has done excellent service for nearly half a century. Wilson was a firm supporter of this movement to the day of his death, and amongst other contributions to knowledge in this quarter must be mentioned his survey of the Sinaitic Peninsula. In 1869 he joined the Topographical Department at the War Office. His next employment of general interest was upon the Servian Boundary Commission, appointed after the Berlin Congress of 1878. For this work he received promotion to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and Lord Salisbury selected him for the post of Consul-General in Asia Minor. Thus it was that he came to Egypt in 1882 as British Commissioner with the Turkish forces, and sat at the court-martial on Arabi Pasha. When order had been restored in Egypt the Soudan remained. Lord Dufferin proposed that Wilson should go there as Governor-General. It was General Gordon who actually went, but had Wilson's advice been followed a disastrous chapter of history would have been avoided. It is a chapter that is rather fully dealt with in this book, for Wilson was appointed to the staff of the Nile expedition. When Sir H. Stewart was mortally wounded at Abu Klea he assumed command of the desert column. Many attacks have been made on Wilson with a view to throwing the blame for the failure to relieve Gordon on his shoulders; how unjustifiable they were Colonel Watson shows clearly. Wilson returned to England, and was appointed Director-General of the Ordnance Survey. His last service was as Director-General of Military Education, and he retired from the army in 1898, after 42 years of useful work. He died in 1905. The narrative has been carefully put together, and there are some excellent illustrations. (From Dymock.)

SPORT IN MOZAMBIQUE.

G. Vasse is a well-known authority on big-game hunting, and his book "Three Years' Sport in Mozambique" makes excellent reading. The author is not a mere sportsman, but an explorer and naturalist of high repute. He collected some 20,000 mineral and natural history specimens, and his numerous photographs have scientific as well as esthetic interest. His expedition has added not a little, in fact, to our knowledge of East Africa. The narrative is written with the brilliant lucidity that is a second nature with Frenchmen, and the little descriptions of the fauna that come in by the way are quite admirable. In the three years some 498 quadrupeds were collected, including elephants, hippopotamus, buffaloes, and other big game, 22 lions, 21 leopards, and 27 zebras. A very fine collection of the birds of the district was got together, including no less than 606 waders and many water-fowl—a total of 1559, some of the specimens being very rare. Crocodiles, pythons, and various snakes complete the list. The Museum benefited also by 18,000 species of insects. This material will take several years to work out, and it is bound to prove of great value. Those who prefer the purely sporting aspect of the collector's life, however, will find M. Vasse's story of absorbing interest. (From Dymock.)

JAPANESE EDUCATION.

Baron Kikuchi's "Japanese Education" (Murray) embodies the substance of lectures delivered in the University of London during 1907. There have been some changes since then in the Japanese system. These are duly noted, and the statistics have been brought up to date. The account of education in Japan is exceedingly full and clear, and it makes remarkably interesting reading for all who concern themselves with the progress of education. The first three chapters give a brief sketch of Japanese history, and the various phases of the educational system are then taken up in detail. The organised national system dates from 1871, and the code issued in the following year was a remarkable document for that time. The whole country was divided into eight districts, in each of which there was to be a university; each university district was to be divided into 32 secondary school districts; and each of these again into 210 primary school districts—making 53,760 primary schools. The primary school age was from 6 to 14, and the secondary school age from 14 to 20. All this was not carried into effect, but the programme shows how thoroughly Japan had gripped the need for education. The first university (at Tokyo) was not established until 1877, and a new and rather simpler code was issued in 1879, and further changes were made in 1886. The period, in fact, was one of rapid growth, both in actual teaching and in administration. At present there is a compulsory six years' course in the lower elementary schools, and a higher elementary course of two or three years, after which a boy may enter a middle school (secondary) with a course of five or six years. If he intends going on to a university, he can attend a preparatory course in a higher school, and then enter a university college; or he may go straight from the secondary school to a technical college, or a normal school. Instead of going to the secondary school he may enter a technical school, with a three-years' course. There is no corporal punishment, and "impositions" are unknown. In 1906 there were some 27,269 elementary schools, with 116,070 teachers and 5,514,715 pupils; and 281 middle schools, with 5338 teachers and 108,531 pupils (excluding girls' high schools); there were some 25,573 pupils in special colleges, and 222,953 in technical schools. A big reform that may come in time is the sweeping away of the adapted Chinese alphabet, which at present makes an enormous drain on school life. Associations for the introduction of Roman letters are doing good work. Baron Kikuchi gives a detailed account of the work done in the schools of various grades, and it is surprising enough.

THE EXILE OF ST. HELENA.

Philippe Gounard's "The Exile of St. Helena" (Heinemann) is a careful historic study of the Napoleonic legend. It was inevitable that Napoleon's triumphs should be exaggerated, and that the epoch should be identified with the man. But this is not what the author means. The legend begins with the fancies historians weave about their hero as to what he had meant to do, and what were his principles and motives. Thus has grown up the Buonopartist faith that Napoleon was the disinterested representative of the revolution gospel, that he was only dictator from sheer necessity, and that he wished for peace, but was constantly forced into war by the European coalition. The basis of these historic falsehoods is, of course, to be found in Napoleon's own "Memoirs" and "Conversations." He arranged his life, his defence, and his glory with the infinite care of a dramatic author who attends to all details for the sake of the final apotheosis. The author sets out to examine critically the conditions under which Napoleon's historical work at St. Helena was composed, contrasting this with the facts and with Napoleon's own previous utterances. In pursuit of this plan he carefully discusses all the literature bearing upon the "last phase" and seeks to set in the true light Napoleon's attitude to democracy, to religion, and to peace. His work is, therefore, a welcome change from the gossiping memoir writing of which there has been far too much.

THE TECHNOLOGY OF SUGAR.

No one interested in the growing or refining of sugar can afford to overlook the new edition of Newland's handbook. The previous edition was issued some twenty years ago, so that the present volume is to all intents and purposes a new work. The treatment has been made most full and accurate throughout, and the machine drawings are excellent. Some seven chapters are given to cane sugar, including the cultivation of the plant, its diseases and enemies, the composition and extraction of the juice, its clarification, concentration, and curing, and the installation of complete factories. Interesting chapters are given to the commercially less important palm, maple, and melon sugars, and beet sugar is again fully treated. The leading processes in sugar refining are carefully described, and there is a sufficient account of sugar analysis. A chapter is devoted to the sugar production of various countries. Here the 22 acres under cane in New South Wales as far back as 1864 are duly noted. Germany is at present the leading sugar-producing country in the world, but its commanding position is a quite recent development, due to improved technology in the preparation of beet sugar. The volume has a good index. (From Dymock.)

ENCHANTERS OF MEN.

Ethel Colburn Mayne's "Enchanters of Men," is another of those books about fascinating women, which seem to find such an eager public. The volume betrays more than the ordinary industry of the memoir maker, for it includes no less than 23 celebrated women, from Diane de Poitiers and Bianca Capello to Marie Antoinette and Pauline Borghese. Portraits of all of these are given, so the reader may form his own judgment of their fascinations. The literary sketches are brief and vivacious, and show a wide reading of the already multitudinous authorities. Some of the best of them deal with famous stars of the stage. Adrienne Lecouvreur, for instance, was one of the greatest tragic actresses of the first quarter of the eighteenth century, and her own history was tragic enough. She died at 38, and was refused Christian burial. Maria Garcia had ten years less of happy conquest of the world of song vouchsafed her, and though Giulia Grisi lived longer, she outlived her own triumph. Other interesting sketches deal with women who loved Byron and Heine and Balzac. The book is certainly readable throughout (Dymock).

A NEW HISTORY OF METHODISM.

The "New History of Methodism," edited by Dr. Townsend and others, is an elaborate and scholarly work. It represents a careful, fresh study of the sources of the movement, and the system of collaboration adopted brings within the two large volumes most of the recognised authorities on the subject. All the writers are Methodists, and their narratives are thus written from a definite standpoint; but for the most part they are modern Methodists, who have learned that all truth is not on their side, nor all errors on the side of adversaries. Special attention has been paid to the evolution of the various sections of the denomination of which, in spite of the tendency to fusion in recent years, there are still not a few. The writing throughout remains on a high level of philosophical inquiry, and the doctrinal content of Methodism is ably placed before the reader in the manner least calculated to do violence to the very changed conditions of thought and knowledge in the twentieth century. "Methodism will either retain her peculiarities with such modifications as changing conditions require, and address her appeals to certain temperaments and certain specific needs of the human soul; or, ceasing to have a character of her own, she will range herself with the colourless churches that are Christian institutions and answer a Christian purpose, but the co-existence of which side by side can be defended on no sound principle of economy, efficiency, or need." When Dr. Moss can write in this way without reproof it is clear how vast a change has come over the Church to which he belongs, and how inevitably Methodism is sharing in a general doctrinal deliquescence. In the second volume there is an excellent and full account of the rise of Methodism in the United States and in the colonies, and a length discussion of the question of reunion as it affects various branches of the Church. A formidable list of authorities is given in an appendix, and a feature of the work is the reproduction of many fine old plates. The Rev. Edward Sugden, M.A., B.Sc., writes the account of the Church in Australasia. (Dymock.)

THE AWAKENING OF TURKEY.

Mr. E. F. Knight's "The Awakening of Turkey" gives a very lucid and readable history of the recent Turkish revolution. The author is familiar enough with the Turks at first hand, and he has many personal friends among the Committee of Union and Progress. Mr. Knight sketches the progress of events from the beginning of Abdul Hamid's reign. He describes without bias the spread of corruption and the decay of the Empire, followed by the modernist movement in Turkey with its genesis of the Young Turkey party and the rapid propaganda of Western ideas in government. The consequent long and intricate story of struggle for constitutionalism is given in a good deal of detail, and the narrative is continued to the deposition of Abdul Hamid. The book should help to disabuse British opinion of many of its carefully-fostered prejudices against the Turk. In particular it points out that ruling Turk and fanatical Moslem are not synonymous. There are seemingly no links missing in Mr. Knight's long chain of circumstance, but he is careful not to indulge in prophecy. Nevertheless, it is easy to gather that one main hope for a politically regenerated Turkey lies in the rapid weakening of religious and racial fanaticism, and in the consequent possibility of fusion between sections of the people who, up to now, to repeat a phrase of Tacitus, have been separated by mutual fear and mountains. One fundamental difficulty does indeed emerge. Is the Turk of to-morrow to be a European or an Oriental? In that lies a crux to which there is yet no obvious solution. Turkey in Europe may become European, but what of the greater Turkey and the greater Moslemism that is not in Europe? (Milne, through George Robertson.)

CONTINUATION SCHOOLS.

At the present time Professor Sadler's exhaustive volume in the Manchester University series on "Continuation Schools in England and Elsewhere" is well deserving of attention. This is a full discussion of the subject by one who is admittedly among the foremost educationists of the Empire. Mr. Sadler remarks, after fully considering the specially great difficulties in Great Britain, "I am convinced that in the end some form of compulsion to attend day or evening continuation classes between 14 and 17 will be found desirable, not so much in the interest of the picked individuals as in that of the rank and file. Many of the present evils of unemployment may be traced to the lack of educational care, and of suitable technical training during the critical years of adolescence. Compulsion, however, should be accompanied by a reduction in the hours of juvenile labour." He adds, significantly, "the root of the matter lies in the reform of the elementary schools." At present only Germany and Switzerland have systematic and successful continuation schools, but their splendid example has aroused a sense of shame in France and in Great Britain, and also in America, where, however, the elementary instruction is usually spread over a longer term of years. The volume contains special studies of continuation schools in various places contributed by the school of educationists Mr. Sadler may be said to have founded, and there is a useful bibliography. (From George Robertson.)

RECENT FICTION.

Sheila Kaye-Smith's "Starbrace" (Bell) is a finely-written book, with an unobtrusive eighteenth century setting. The chief interest centres in Gerard Starbrace and his son Miles. Gerard married beneath him, and for 30 years his family cast him into outer darkness. Finally he was reduced to the position of a farm labourer, and to that lowly calling Miles was brought up until he reached his eighteenth year. Then the baronet relented, but the mischief was nearly done. It was completed by Sir John's asinine chaplain, and Miles, after a brief career of friendship with a delightful highwayman, throws his life away at Preston Pans. The rather grim study is worked out with great excellence of detail.

Madamoiselle de Praty's "Elizabeth Davenay" (Mills and Boon) is a good book about good women. For that reason it deserves respect, but one is obliged to admit that the interminable discussions of woman's place in nature led by Elizabeth is a trifle tedious. Elizabeth is at first a teacher in a girls' high school in Paris, and afterwards a contributor to a woman's paper with advanced views. The authoress cleverly gets a group of museum specimens of feminity into the picture, and shows how those who are most the victims of an irrational social system find themselves under Elizabeth's influence. An appropriate quotation from Walt Whitman stands opposite the title page. Elizabeth is a fine character, and we must forgive her propagandist conversations until we have learned to take her ideals for granted. Fortunately we are not quite so far from that as most of the women in the picture were.

C. E. Lawrence's "Much Ado About Something" (Murray) is a brave attempt to bring the fairies back to London. You know they had left the big smoky towns far behind them, and left them dull and grey. But a good fairy and her favourite gnome come back to see what could be done by putting beautiful, generous thoughts into people's heads, and presently Paradise-court became really paradise. The author rather lacks the delicacy of touch required; his manner is too prosaic.

Edwin Pugh's "Peter Vandy" (Unwin) is a cleverly ironical sketch of a London newsboy with no conscience and no soul, but with the subtle art of "getting on," who ran a money-lending "morality league" when he was at school, and in due season blossomed into high finance.

R. W. Chambers' "Special Messenger" has all the charm of his best romantic manner. There was a celebrated Miss Boyd who was a Confederate scout and spy. The author imagines a loyal Southern girl who plays a similar part for the North. The book resolves itself into a series of highly dramatic episodes that illustrate the girl's cleverness; but the author's art lies in the subtle way in which he suggests that she was never spoilt by the part she had to play. The incidents are all romance, and realism is resolutely kept at arm's length. The girl scout has a young brother who is sent off to the North in the first chapter, but he was quite delightful enough to keep in the story. (George Robertson.)

"The Slave Girl of Agra" (Unwin), by R. C. Dutt, is a good Indian story on historical lines, which gives a striking picture of life under the Mogul rule. The author wrote it originally in an Indian dialect thirty years ago.

SHORTER NOTICES.

J. K. Grebby's "Modern Commercial Correspondence" is a sound and useful little manual. The majority of examples are genuine specimens of actual commercial correspondence, and the author may be congratulated on a very sensible departure from the ordinary practice in this respect. Common errors of composition are noted, hints are given on paragraphing and punctuation, and all the special forms of business letter-writing are cleverly exemplified. (From George Robertson.)

Of interest to rowing men will be Dr. Edmond Warre's "Grammar of Rowing" (Clarendon Press). This little book gives the substance of three lectures delivered before the O.A.B.C., of which the distinguished author was a former president. The lectures are severely practical and at the same time do not despise the most elementary detail. They will interest many men outside Oxford.

It is said that Mr. Hugh Egan, who met with an accident a short time back, is in great practice, and that when the time comes he will be willing to take the trip to Brisbane to compete in the Australasian championship tourney if chosen.

The 11th tourney for the English championship, commenced a few weeks ago with 10 entrants, viz.:—A. Jordan, Hynd, Milne, Fellows, Alexander, Morrall, Hewitt, Ward, Smith, Duffley. The position of the contestants at the end of the 7th round is:—Jordan 12, Hynd 10, Alexander and Ward 8½, Morrall and Milne 7½, Duffley 5½, Smith 4, Fellows 3½, and Hewitt 3 points.

The Scottish Draughts Association has issued a challenge to the E.D.A. for an international match, to be played in Glasgow next year, the dates to be January 1st, 3rd, and 4th.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Our London correspondent, interested in the accounts he read in our columns of Herr Slapoffski's production of "Aida" at the Town Hall remarks that he had just heard a gorgeous star performance of Verdi's opera at Covent Garden, with Mme. Destinn in the name-part, and Mme. Kirkby Lunn (contralto), Dalmores (a huge-voiced new tenor), Scotti (baritone), and Huberty (a huge-voiced basso) also in the cast. Scotti was fiery and very unsparing of his voice as Amonasro, an impersation evidently opposed to the "contemplative style" attributed in the "Herald" to Andrew Black. The same writer saw Debussy's opera "Pelleas et Melisande," "exquisite in its own peculiar, most peculiar way. It is all atmosphere and no melody. Recitative, chant, monotone, on the stage. In the orchestra, wonderful effects, too pallid for colour to be described as 'colour effects.' The whole very beautiful eerie, and etherial—but not opera!" As regards musical life in London, our correspondent describes it as a maelstrom of struggling competitors. "Artists may make money in the provinces, but few make anything worth speaking of in London. I have heard Busoni and Harold Bauer, both eminent pianists, play to 75 people. I have been to recitals 'papered' from end to end. Mark Hambourg after advertising his 'phenomenal success in Australia,' played once, and has now retired to make a book. But it is probable that these star artists ensure big houses in the provinces by these London appearances, at which their playing is, of course, favourably reviewed." These pointed and highly interesting remarks show that London is unable to digest the flood of concerts that signalise the season. In the case of artists of eminence, such a condition of affairs undoubtedly proves that musical appreciation in the great provincial centres is more widely diffused and more practically manifested than in the metropolis.

Mme. Ada Crossley, Dr. Francis Muecke, and their concert party reached Naples on June 21 by the G.M.S. Seydlitz, after a pleasant voyage, except for rough monsoon experiences between Colombo and Aden. Mr. Albert Mallinson, the song composer in the modern German style, and Mr. J. C. Williamson were on board. Immediately on landing the Australian contralto will meet some big social engagements in London. Mme. Crossley's first oratorio festival appearances will be at Hereford in September (three concerts), with her own recital at Bechstein Hall early in October, followed at once by three concerts of the great Birmingham festival the same month. In the midst of all her engagements Mme. Crossley will carry on her starring tour of Great Britain, in which it is probable that the artists recently here, Messrs. Harrison, Earle, Sametini, and Grainger will again join. Mme. Crossley's many friends on this side will be delighted to learn that her robust health enables her to face this somewhat formidable demand for her services with the utmost confidence.

Mr. Harold Thorley, who was principal baritone with the Royal Comic Opera Company throughout 1902 and 1903, when his artistic work won him a well-established position here, is back again in Australia with the Clarke-Meynell-Gunn firm. Though his singing part in the "Cinderella" extravaganza is necessarily brief, he is of service in preserving the balance of an unusually capable cast. The singer appears under his mother's maiden name. All Manchester people keep in remembrance the Misses Thorley, who were oratorio sopranos of the first rank half a century ago, when Charles Halle first settled in the district. Little Harold, imbibing music from childhood, was a boy-chorister in the Manchester Cathedral, and when his voice changed remained for eight years in Williams, Deacon, and Co.'s famous bank, whilst studying singing under Jordan, of Manchester, and subsequently under Santley. He began his stage career in a leading baritone part as Fairfax, in "The Geisha," with a strong company, which included his present colleague, Wm. Cromwell, as Wunhi, and ultimately joined George Edwardes' combination for South Africa (1901), and played a long repertoire—"Kitty Grey," "The Runaway Girl," "The Toreador," etc.—during the last year of the war. Since leaving Australia, Mr. Thorley has remained with Mr. Edwardes, excepting for one season at the Lyric Theatre, London, when he created Captain Ormsby in Robert Courtneidge's production of "The Blue Moon," with Carrie Moore as soubrette. During the long run of that beautiful opera, "Veronique," at the Apollo Theatre Mr. Thorley was one of the five baritones who appeared as Florestan; and on tour he was in "The Cingalee" with Lily Elsie. He also sang a fine part as Lagorille in "The Lady Dandies" with Miss Evie Greene, so that his time has been artistically occupied since leaving the antipodes.

Miss Kate Rooney, whose reappearance after her long absence will take place at the Town Hall on Thursday, will always be remembered here as the first to sing Samuel Liddle's beautiful setting of "Abide with Me." This music was originally introduced in London by Mme. Clara Butt at a morning concert at Queen's Hall given by Mme. Melba, when the composer was at the piano and Mr. Waddington Cooke at the organ. This was in June, 1897, and a year later Miss Rooney, then in her student days, popularised the music in Sydney. The Australian contralto subsequently made a deep impression by the devotional quality of her interpretation, and last year, when she sang it at Queen's Hall with the composer as pianist, he especially praised her for this prevailing sentiment in the words, "That is what I intended from the first." Just before Miss Rooney left London Mr. Arthur Fagge, conductor of the London Choral Society, hurried on the publication of his new version of "Rock of Ages," remarking that he desired especially to entrust it for introduction in Australia to the departing contralto. Miss Rooney herself thinks highly of the setting, and will bring it forward here without delay.

In Melbourne the Oscar Asche dramatic season continues to draw crowds with "The Taming of the Shrew" at the Theatre Royal, where it is probable that the next Meynell-Gunn production will be "Count Hannibal." Mr. Hugh Ward, Miss Grace Palotta, and party are still playing the "Bachelor's Honeymoon" at the Princess' Theatre, but there has been a change at Her Majesty's, where Mr. J. C. Williamson's newly-organised "King of Cadonia" company has just made a success with "Havana." In the new cast the Melbourne press speak in high praise of Miss Olive Godwin as Consuelo. The soprano had not been in Melbourne for some time, and is justly pronounced by the press to have made "a distinct advance in her art." Mr. Herbert Clayton, the new English baritone, was the hero, Jackson Villiers, in which character he evidently annexed the dance with the supper-girl which in Sydney fell to Mr. Andrew Higginson. The dance was shared with Miss Lottie Sargeant, whose part was thus strengthened, as it still included the parody on the "Merry Widow" waltz, danced here by Miss Dango. Mr. Frank Greene, as Villiers's chum, was rewarded with "Cupid's Telephone," as well as other numbers that were here allotted to Mr. Reginald Roberts as Don Adolfo, a character no longer of importance; whilst Mr. Bert Gilbert as the gloomy bo'sun and Mr. Noble as the boy were successful in the principal comic characters. Mr. Spencer Barry, who "produced" these first two pieces of the new company, sailed for London this week, where he will resume his position as stage director of the Empire.

Mr. Arthur Styan, who will play the important part of Jason in "The Bondman," at the Theatre Royal this evening, is an English actor who has appeared under many of the leading managements in the old country, and on one occasion played the principal character in a London company, of which Mr. Lewis Waller, the now well-known actor-manager, was "juvenile lead." Mr. Styan came to Australia with Mr. Charles Cartwright ten years ago, and, with but one half-year's interval, has since remained continuously with Mr. Bland Holt. Otherwise the Bland Holt combination is remarkable for the number of Australasian artists of talent it includes, amongst whom may be named Miss Jennie Pollock, a one-time New Zealand elocutionist and amateur actress, whose entire career has been passed in his company, and Mr. Max Maxwell, a clever Sydney artist, who has been with the actor-manager for 13 years.

URIC ACID AILMENTS.

THE CAUSE OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES ERADICATED BY KUTNOW'S POWDER.

That Bright's Disease is rapidly increasing is a question concerning which there is no doubt in the minds of experts. First, the stomach fails, then the liver breaks down, the kidneys collapse, then follow heart disease, dropsy—death. Bright's Disease is sometimes the penalty we have to pay for luxurious living, with consequent excessive uric acid. Our internal organs destroy a certain amount of uric acid, but when they fail to perform their functions then Nature requires assistance. Many wealthy persons seek that assistance by journeying to the famous European Spas to take the waters, a very expensive means of recuperation. But what about the thousands of busy men whose responsibilities prevent them sparing the prolonged period of time necessary? They work on and on, until suddenly there is a breakdown, with enforced suspension of work. Business men can effectively deal with uric acid daily by means of a morning health draught of Kutnow's Powder before breakfast. There will be no breakdown for those who persevere with this invaluable hygienic treatment.

How to Cleanse your Kidneys.

THESE ARE REASONS.

The blood is then flooded with these dangerous substances, known under the names of ptomaines and toxins.

The liver, which should destroy certain poisons, fails to do so on account of undue strain.

It must be remembered that the liver is a closed door to poisons, while the kidneys form an open door.

So long as the liver door is shut, poisonous substances absorbed from the alimentary canal cannot get access to the general circulation.

But when the liver door is broken down large quantities of poisonous matter are poured through the kidneys.

Then degeneration takes place in these organs as the result of their contact with these intestinal poisonous substances.

The moral is simple. Whenever you have infected organs, clear, cleanse, and disinfect.

Prof. Lawson Tait, M.D., not only used Kutnow's Powder himself with success but prescribed it regularly in his practice.

He took it to get rid of the poisonous debris arising from imperfect digestion, to check acidity, and correct fermentation poisoning.

A dose of Kutnow's Powder will flush, cleanse, and disinfect the urinary organs, expel the gravel and uric acid.

You may accept these statements, but we ask you to read the testimony in the opposite column, and then try Kutnow's for yourself.

THESE ARE FACTS.

Do you wish to be entirely free from uric acid, and the terrible risk of its daily retention? Would you like to acquire a remedy which will flush the kidneys? Are you anxious to be able to eat and drink without the evil effects of dyspepsia? Then send to the nearest chemist, and get a bottle of Kutnow's Powder.

HEARNE'S BRONCHITIS CURE.

THE FAMOUS REMEDY FOR COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, PNEUMONIA, PLEURISY, ASTHMA, & CONSUMPTION.

Those who have taken this medicine are amazed at its splendid healing power. Sufferers from Bronchitis, Cough, Croup, Asthma, Difficulty of Breathing, Hoarseness, Pain, or Soreness in the Chest, experience delightful and rapid relief; and to those who are subject to Colds on the Chest it is invaluable, as it effects a complete cure. It is most comforting in allaying Irritation in the Throat, and giving Strength to the Voice, and it neither allows a Cough nor Asthma to become chronic, nor Consumption to develop. Consumption is not known where "Coughs" have, on their first appearance, been properly treated with this medicine. No house should be without it, as, taken at the beginning, a dose or two is generally sufficient, and a complete cure is certain.

BRONCHITIS AND PNEUMONIA
CURED BY
HEARNE'S BRONCHITIS CURE.

AFTER OTHER TREATMENT HAD FAILED.

Mr. W. G. Hearne. Dear Sir,—From a strict sense of duty I feel that I should publish the following statement, so that others may know what to do when the awful fact is evident that a life is in danger of being lost:—In September, 1906, my little girl, aged at that time 3 years, contracted measles, and in the following October was attacked by Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Congestion of the Lungs. She was attended by a legally-qualified doctor of high standing, but his treatment was not successful in arresting the progress of the illness. On Saturday, the 21st October, 1906, he said that her life was in danger—that there was very little hope for her. For eight days and nights she had been prostrated by cough, pain, and fever, and was lying like a statue, unconscious. At this stage I was persuaded by a friend to obtain Hearne's Bronchitis Cure, with its auxiliary medicine for the Fever and Congestion of the Lungs, as directed in the Catalogue of Medicines which accompanies each bottle of the Bronchitis Cure. I gave the medicine as directed, and there was an improvement from the first dose of Hearne's Bronchitis Cure. The improvement continued after each dose of the medicine. In a week she was perfectly free from the Pneumonia, Congestion, Cough, Pain, and Fever, and was well, except that she was still weak. In a fortnight she was quite recovered, and is now in splendid health, and stronger than ever. Any person asking for information about this grand medicine can be supplied by me, or by any of my neighbours, who have witnessed its wonderful effects. It absolutely snatched my child from an early grave.
Yours gratefully,
D. GARDINER.
Police Station, Geelong East, Feb. 5, 1908.

BRONCHITIS.

A SUFFERER 73 YEARS OF AGE.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF—EFFECT WONDERFUL.

Mr. Hearne. Sir,—I was very ill with Influenza and Bronchitis. A friend of mine persuaded me to try your Bronchitis Cure. The first dose gave me immediate relief, and after taking the second bottle I am thoroughly cured. Its effect on me has been most wonderful. I am 73 years of age, and I trust that you will make use of this statement by publishing it for the benefit of humanity generally.
Yours most respectfully,
THOMAS R. TREZISE, Reedy Creek, Victoria.

CONSUMPTION.

TOO ILL TO LEAVE HIS BED—A COMPLETE CURE.

Mr. W. G. Hearne. Dear Sir,—I am writing to tell you about the wonderful cure your medicine has effected in my case. About three years ago I began to cough. At first the cough was not severe, but it gradually got worse, and I became very weak and troubled with night sweats, pain in my chest, and great quantities of phlegm. On several occasions there was blood in the expectorated matter. I had been treated by a doctor, who pronounced my case to be consumption, and various other treatments had been tried, but without benefit. It was at this stage that I heard of your Bronchitis Cure, and sent to you for a course of the medicine. When it arrived I was too ill to leave my bed, but I commenced taking it at once, and gradually improved. I am glad to say that the two lots of medicine you sent have effected a complete cure, for which accept my very best thanks. Yours gratefully,
J. BLAIR, Westminster Bridge-road, S.E., London.

CURED BY
HEARNE'S BRONCHITIS CURE.

AFTER OTHER TREATMENT HAD FAILED.

I, Prudence M'Kee, of Carr-street, South Geelong, in view of the importance of a person making it quite clear what treatment was successful in curing a serious and complicated case when the medicine, directions, and treatment of a legally-qualified doctor had failed, state as follows:—

My son, Henry M'Kee, then aged 8 years, had been attended by a legally-qualified doctor, who pronounced him to be suffering from Pneumonia, Pleurisy, and a stoppage of the passing of urine. Under the doctor's treatment the child gradually got worse, and the doctor pronounced the case hopeless. He told me that the child could not live. At this stage I obtained from Mr. W. G. Hearne, chemist, of Geelong, a bottle of Hearne's Bronchitis Cure, and gave it to the child according to the directions which accompany each bottle of it. The child improved after the second dose of Hearne's Bronchitis Cure. He continued to improve each day from each dose of Hearne's Medicine alone, and within three days he was free from the Cough, Pneumonia, and the Pleurisy, and the urine was passing satisfactorily. He was out of bed at the end of a week, completely recovered, and he is now in perfect health.
PRUDENCE M'KEE.
Carr-street, South Geelong, 6th February, 1908.

BRONCHITIS AND PLEURISY.

AFTER OTHER TREATMENT HAD FAILED.

Mr. Hearne, Chemist, Geelong. Dear Sir,—Some months ago in Sydney I suffered from a severe attack of influenza, and was confined to my room for about a week, at the end of which time, feeling somewhat better, I got up and tried to transact my business as usual. But I got up too soon, for the very next day I had a relapse, and suffered tortures from what the doctor told me was Pleurisy and Bronchitis. The pain from the former in my chest and shoulders was frightful, and for four long weeks I was confined to my bed under the care of a well-known Sydney doctor, and all the time his medicine gave me but temporary relief. The landlady of the hotel (The Cleveland) where I resided told me of a medicine—Hearne's Bronchitis Cure—from Victoria, which had cured her of a bad attack of Bronchitis and pains in the chest, and begged of me to try it. I did so, and, in thanks and gratitude to you, tell you that, after the second bottle, my cough had ceased, but what is more astonishing the pains from pleurisy entirely left me, and in about a week I was able to attend to my duties as usual.
Yours faithfully,
J. BRAHAM, Melbourne "Punch" Office, Melbourne.

ASTHMA—A 17 YEARS' CASE.

PREVIOUS TREATMENT FAILED—CURED BY THREE BOTTLES.

Mr. Alex. J. Anderson, of Oak Park, Charleville, Queensland, wrote:—"After suffering from Asthma for seventeen years, and having been under a great many different treatments without benefit, I was induced to try Hearne's Medicine for Asthma. After taking three bottles of this medicine I quite got rid of the Asthma, and since then, which was the beginning of 1893—fifteen years ago—I have not had the slightest return of it. The medicine quite cured me, and I have much pleasure in recommending it."

Speaking in February, 1908, he states:—"I am keeping very well. Never have the slightest return of the asthma."

"Hearne's Medicine cured me of Asthma, from which I had been suffering for twenty-five years, during which time I had used almost every patent medicine on the market—including asthma inhalations—without getting a cure. It was eight years ago that the cure was effected by Hearne's Medicine, and I now feel stronger than I have felt for years—in fact, I feel splendid."
C. WISEMAN, Meredith, Victoria.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS! The great success of HEARNE'S Bronchitis Cure has induced a number of unprincipled persons to make imitations, each calling his medicine "Bronchitis Cure," with the object of deceiving the unsuspecting, and so getting a sale for an imitation which has none of the beneficial effects that HEARNE'S Bronchitis Cure has. Consequently it has become necessary to draw your attention to this fact, and to request you in your own interests to be particular to ask for HEARNE'S, and see that you get it.

HEARNE'S BRONCHITIS CURE, Small Size, 2/6; Large Size, 4/6. Sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors, and by the Proprietor. W. G. HEARNE, Chemist, Geelong, Victoria. Forwarded to any address, when not obtainable locally.

NEW SOUTH WALES BRANCH OFFICE: Greer's-chambers, 522 George-street, Sydney.

NOTICE.—Hearne's Bronchitis Cure No. 1A does NOT contain any Morphia or any Opium whatever. It is equally beneficial for the youngest child and the most aged person.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY LUCY.)

WESTMINSTER, June 25.

The reception last night at the Russian Embassy of members of the Duma, at present visiting this country, had a political significance exceeding the average pertaining to similar entertainments. The form of constitutional Government with the assistance of a popularly-elected Chamber, was a few years ago forced upon the Czar as an alternative to a more sanguinary revolution. The earliest stage of the experiment was not promising. Three years ago representatives of the first Russian Parliament chanced to be on a visit to London. Its course was interrupted by news that the Duma had been peremptorily dissolved, some of its prominent members being arrested. From a festive party at which Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman was present, the Russians went forth on their journey home with the certainty that on arrival some of them would be hurried off to Siberia. It was on this occasion that Campbell-Bannerman shocked good Conservatives by closing his speech with bold declaration, "Le Duma est mort; vive le Duma!" The words proved prophetic, for the Duma still lives with firmer seat in the saddle. To their predecessors the doors of Chesham House, where the Czar's Embassy is luxuriously lodged, were closed. Last night they were flung open, and the flower of London society, including Foreign Ministers of all the Powers, were bidden to do honour to the representatives of the Russian people. To the brilliance and interest of the scene the only drawback was the difficulty of happening upon the guests of the evening. It seemed that everyone was there except members of the Duma. Those who had the honour to be presented to the President, M. Nicolas Homyakoff, found him speaking excellent English, in which he expressed the keenest interest in all that related to the House of Commons.

Varied by angry outburst such as that which marked the approach of midnight on Tuesday, the progress of debate in committee on the Budget Bill is not on the whole enlivening. It, therefore, becomes a pious duty to pick out and preserve any plums that present themselves. Of such is Mr. Balfour's illustration of the working of the principle of unearned increment as applied to Consols. "Suppose," he said, with that assumption of being "a child in these matters," which to the accustomed observer presages something exceptionally nasty for hon. gentlemen opposite, "a man bought Consols, and the present Government went out, the value of stocks and securities forthwith rising, why should he, on the principle of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, be exempted from paying the tax levied on unearned increment?" This incidental, matter-of-fact assumption that the fall of the Ministry would naturally and instantly be followed by a rise in the value of public securities was enjoyed nowhere more than on the Treasury Bench.

An earlier flash of wit struck on the flinty topic of unearned increment is credited to Mr. Harold Cox. Comparing the price paid to the President of the Board of Trade for the record of his journey through South Africa with the pittance earned by Milton for "Paradise Lost," Mr. Cox argued that it was directly due to the growth of population, the spread of education, and the greater demand for books, all influences beyond the control of Mr. Winston Churchill, therefore representing unearned increment which ought to be taxed. In a witty, unfortunately unreported, speech delivered the other night by Mr. Justice Darling at the dinner of the Associated Booksellers, another leading principle of the Budget was touched with equally light hand. Talking about the tax on ungotten minerals, his lordship gravely argued a parallel in the case of the multitude who do not write books. Who is to say that the capacity for such work is not latent with them? An enterprising Chancellor of the Exchequer might assume its existence, even as the Budget when it becomes law will assume the existence of minerals underground and tax accordingly the surface land. The parallel is witty and ingenious, and would have been much enjoyed in the House of Commons had Sir Charles Darling been still privileged to address it from his old seat above the gangway.

A romance of journalism lurks in the unexpected quarter of the offices of one of the old-established London morning papers which have recently changed hands. Amongst the old staff was a gentleman of advanced years who had spent the prime of his life in the service of the journal. He was practically past work, but in accordance with the lofty traditions that ruled in London newspaper offices, say, up to the commencement of the present century, he was retained on the staff at full pay, having easy odd jobs provided for him so as to preserve his self-respect and maintain appearances of earning his money. Of course, when the new proprietorship was established the old gentleman was marked down for instant dismissal. In anticipation of an event that would probably have killed him, the new manager was privily approached by an outsider with the proposal to pay a sum equal to £1 week to be doled out in salary, the pious fraud being kept up by the paper providing a little occasional work for the old retainer. The plan answered admirably for 12 months, at the end of which time the anonymous benefactor determined to double the pension. The manager, being so authorised, called the old gentleman into his office and remarked that so pleased was he with his work that he proposed henceforward to double his salary. "Well, sir," said the octogenarian, drawing himself up to his full height, and throwing into his voice a note of unusual asperity, "I am bound to say that I think it is about time."

I have personal knowledge of a case in some respects analogous. It relates to one of the oldest, perhaps the most illustrious, of the London weekly papers. On its staff was one who joined it shortly after its foundation. For years he occupied a prominent and popular place in its columns. With advancing years and failing faculties his humour dulled, his pen lost its point. Unconscious of the change, he with unflagging regularity week by week sent in his accustomed tribute of copy. The interests of the paper precluded publication. But it was felt in the editorial room that at any cost the feelings of an old, esteemed colleague must not be hurt. Accordingly, when his manuscript arrived, it was passed on to the printers, and a proof sent to the author. He read, corrected, and returned it, and there was an end of the matter. Whether he noticed its non-appearance in the paper, who shall say? Up to the week before his death, full of years and honour, he sent in his copy and carefully revised his proofs. Needless to add that to the end he was in receipt of full pay. I am afraid modern journalism has no room in its bustling offices for sentiment of this kind.

Whether other distinction may eventually belong to the work, it is already settled that the official history of the South African war will prove the costliest book of its size and scope ever printed in this country. Three volumes have already been issued at a cost to the nation exceeding £10,000 each. The fourth is now in hand, and may be confidently counted upon to maintain the average of cost. Public interest in the work may be measured by the dolorous fact that sales hitherto have reached an amount slightly exceeding £1100. The work is being conducted under the direction of the Imperial Defence Committee. It is to be hoped that development of their capacity in other fields is not to be measured by their success as publishers. Had the task been confided to one of the big London firms it would have been completed years ago in conditions that would not only have relieved the Treasury from this monstrous drain on its resources but would have handsomely repaid both writers and publishers. As things turn out I expect not a man in a hundred recalls the fact that the stupendous overweighted work is still in progress. By the time it is finished the Boer war will seem almost as remote as that fought out in the Crimea.

THE BUSH PEOPLE—AFTER SOME TIME.

(BY J. H. M. ABBOTT.)

IV.

The train stopped for us at an unconscionable hour in the morning—so early, and so frosty it was, and the station so bleak and desolate, that no other adjective than "unconscionable" might cover the quality of the hour. But there was a cheerful place where hot coffee was retailed, and sandwiches, and a fine fire was given away wholesale, and there was just the suspicion of a smell of pine in the cold, clear air—so it was not so bad. We changed there, from the slow, comfortable interstate mail, and packed ourselves into the uncomfortable, dilatory, and very, very slow branch-line train that ran out the extra 60 miles lying between the main line and our destination.

But it did not matter. It was entirely in keeping with the goodness of this good world that that particular train took more than five hours to do 60 miles. It was a merciful dispensation of Providence that it halted, once for 30, and once for 45 minutes, at wayside stations—that it slowed down periodically because sheep were on the permanent way; that it appeared to keep no regular timetable, and came when it listed, and went when it listed, too. It was good, and kind, and noble of that train to do so. If you have not seen the Bush, and the People of the Bush, for a space of years—you will quite readily concede that the train may crawl through it, for your part, at any halting gait that suits its convenience.

It was dark when we left the junction,—dark and cold, and somewhere about 6 o'clock in the morning. Even by the starlight it was possible to see that the river flats were white with frost. And, as the East paled, and yellowed, and changed from brilliant orange that flamed above an indigo range of mountains, into crimson, and then, indescribably into sunrise—the rime sparkled on grass, and wheatfields, and cultivation paddocks like diamonds, or frost. And, warmer, and kinder and better than anything else on earth—there was the Bush.

There were long miles of ringbarked country that stretched away to low foothills, and the foothills merged into the mountains, and lines of wire fence lay across the flats, and climbed the summits—just like they used to do. Little slab-huts, with lean-tos behind them, sent curling spirals of thin, blue smoke towards the blue sky—just as they used to do; and sometimes there was a galvanised iron woolshed, and sometimes the white buildings of a head station, and, very much more than there used to be, wide green paddocks of young wheat.

By-and-by the phenomenally slow train crawled into a station—a little one-horse kind of station that seemed to be nowhere in particular, and very distant from anywhere else. But it was not so, really. It was quite an important place. It was the station of a town that shall be nameless, that is, a town of some parts. And because it lay a mile away from the town, and there were teams camped alongside a goods-shed, and nobody seemed to care whether you breakfasted or went hungry, one felt at home, and that this was really the good, kind, casual, you-go-to-blazes bush, and really Australian.

The sun was high above the blue mountains now, but the station buildings still cast long shadows, and it was better to be in the sunshine than in the shade. Just across a road—which probably possesses a name as a street—there was a neat cottage, of which part was a modest little shop, and in the residential portion of which a marvellous breakfast was being dispensed to hungry travellers at the extraordinarily low charge (after English charges) of 1s. Well, it was worth the shilling alone to be waited on by the good little girl who handed you your porridge, and served out your chops and your tea. She could not have been more than 16—although 16 counts for even more in Australia than it does in England. She had brown hair, brown eyes, a pretty face, and, so far as one could tell, was well built and well developed and strong. There were not the roses in her cheeks that there might have been if What-do-you-call-it had been a Devonshire village, but there was that frank, fearless way of looking at you, that air of capability and alertness, that aspect of being able to take care of herself that so distinguishes the best type of bush maidenhood. There were 18 people at the table; she had all the waiting to do herself, and yet not one of that hungry dozen and a half emitted so much as a grumble at being kept foodless. The way she charged about the table with cups of tea and plates of chops, the deftness with which she did all she had to do, and the cheerful air of not being bothered about it was respect-impelling in the highest degree. The neat fashion in which her pretty hair was dressed, the simple neatness of her own apparel—which she had probably constructed herself—and the whole appearance of her was entirely charming. Truly it was pleasing to encounter such a good specimen of one's youthful fellow-countrywomen on this first morning in the bush after some time. The writer trusts that the honourable and distinguished reader will not misunderstand him. He only looked at the girl for about 20 minutes, and all he said to her was "How much?" and all she said to him was "Thank you—good morning."

Outside, by the roadway, a gentleman of the bullock-driving profession was yoking up his bullocks. In the still, clear morning air his crisp oaths, his telling objurgations, and his somewhat witless blasphemies had a peculiar effectiveness. Even the unoriginality of the nomenclature of his team was typical of his sort. There was a "Di'mond," a "Lively," a "Strorbry," a "Whitefoot"—to recall only four of them. Incidentally, however, it may be mentioned that there was one young bullock, of a peculiar crankiness and foolishness, which bore the name of an Australian statesman who shall be nameless here, and which also bore the most bitter revilings and the most contemptuous abuse which "Bullocky" had at his command. It was not difficult to gauge from his language to this herein nameless beast that Bullocky did not admire the statesman very much, and the writer would cheerfully have gone without his breakfast to have had the latter present to hear some news about himself. He, also, was a good type of the bush, that Bullocky. Long, wiry, a little bow-legged from much riding, in the prime of life—one imagines that he would just as readily have "let off" at the statesman as he did to what he considered to be his prototype. To do the statesman justice, one believes that he would take such rebuke in good part, and would not call upon the mounted-trooper to make the man a prisoner. He was altogether refreshing and invigorating—that long, slab-sided, fierce son of Tierra Austral del Espiritu Santo, as Fernandez de Quiros named the country he didn't find.

When the train started again on its sheep-shooing career through the countryside there was another passenger in the compartment which held the writer. He was an elderly man of sixty, or thereabouts, and he had driven up to the Home for Tired Trains in a buggy that was drawn by two good horses that were not models of the art of grooming. He sate opposite, and talked to another passenger, whom he had known before, and it became evident that he was what is sometimes called a Land Monopolist. It seemed that some scores of thousands of acres in the neighbourhood belonged to him, but whether he acquired them honestly or whether he stole them from the Crown and the subjects of the Crown did not appear, and one felt some amount of deference as to inquiring from him personally. He must have measured some 4ft, perhaps a little less, round the chest, a little more round the second button of his waistcoat—counting from the bottom—and, perpendicularly, about one fathom. He had a brown face, with a close-cut white beard and moustache on it, and exceedingly large brown hands that would have split any decent-sized pair of gloves in two minutes—if it had been possible for them to have clothed the mighty fists. He had, also, a way of looking at you that made you think, say, if he had happened to be a merchant skipper dealing with stowaways a day or two out, you would not have liked to be one of the stowaways. Even at his age he would have been a "bad man" in a rough and tumble. That is the impression he gave one. And yet his spoken word was singularly gentle and slow, and the laughter that lit up his steady grey eyes singularly pleasant and boyish. There was no mistaking his accent. It was Australian. And one put him down as a Hawkesbury or Hunter River native, of the kind that was fed in youth on beef, hominy, and pumpkin, and who had possibly, in his earlier and less regenerate days, experienced some difficulty in distinguishing between the unbranded calves of his neighbour and those to which he was properly entitled. But all that, of course, was surmise. What remained to rejoice about was that one was also a countryman of this Land Monopolist.

Indeed, they are only three types—the girl, the bullocky, and the squatter—just three out of many score, and of some of the number of the whole there is not much to say, except in extenuation. They are only three taken at haphazard. But there is as much as this to say about those three—that while Australia can produce such potential mothers as the girl, such fearless and sinewy grown men as the bullocky, and such fine old men as the squatter, she has not much to fear. If she would only make small arm ammunition, instead of talking to herself about it, she—but that has nothing to do with this article.

MODERN GERMANY.

THROUGH AUSTRALIAN EYES.

THE KAISER AS GERMANS SEE HIM.

THE IMPERIAL FAMILY.

The leading characters in the Imperial family, about whom a good deal of gossip runs in Berlin, are the Empress, the Crown Prince, his consort, her mother (the "scandal," as she is styled), and the Emperor. The Empress is an elusive personality, who commands universal respect. She was a princess of Holstein, chosen by "der weise Kaiser" Frederic III. as the wife of his son, first by way of consoling the people of Holstein for Prussia's raid, and secondly because she gave every promise of being an ideal mother of future Hohenzollerns, and a salutary curb on the young Crown Prince, then the companion in gallant adventures of the Austrian Archduke, the hapless and ruthless Rudolph. According to general admission, the Empress has more than fulfilled the expectations formed of her. She has endowed the nation with a succession of heirs to the Imperial throne, who are all, with the exception of the Crown Prince, of splendid physique. Engaged most of her life with maternal cares, she has enjoyed little time to interest herself in any of the multifarious occupations of her husband. Her chief preoccupation nowadays is said to be building churches; and the cynics warn any bald courtier from frequenting her circle, because of her pious mania for decorating every vacant spot she sees with a church. The Crown Prince is extremely popular, particularly since his marriage. It is notorious that on most important points he differs radically from his father, whose artistic dilettantism he is prone to ridicule as in no way part of the "metier" of a king. The occupations of the heir to the Imperial throne are sport of all kinds and soldiering, although his health is far from robust. The Crown Princess Cecilia is as beloved by the Prussians as was the Princess May by the English, and her popularity has not waned since her marriage, unlike her English cousin. But she has a mother, the Dowager Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who has attached herself to the Berlin circle, and is the "scandal" of the family. It was my good fortune to travel some days on the same boat as the present Grand Duke, her son, and the anecdotes one heard then about "the old lady" were somewhat indecorous. She is so addicted to gambling on a high scale that she has compromised her fortune, and in general she seems to delight in affronting the Court conventions, so that the Emperor, whose personal charm in social intercourse is described as irresistible, has more than once had occasion to administer an unmistakable rebuff.

THE SPHINX OF MODERN TIMES.

It is a little disconcerting in travelling through Germany gleaning opinions to find that the estimate of the Emperor is almost as diverse there as in foreign countries. In one part of the Empire he is regarded as an incorrigible "poseur" of inexhaustible energy, a genius only in the sense of possessing "an infinite capacity for taking pains." In Hamburg, where, by the way, he has never been forgiven for his attitude towards Bismarck, the Emperor is considered to lack "distinction." His boisterous and jovial demeanour in intimate circles is contrasted unfavourably with the simplicity and gallantry of the old Emperor. In Bavaria one hears frequent hints insinuating a doubt of his sanity. He is there regarded as a pathological case. But the Bavarians, it must always be remembered, have good reason for believing that eccentricity in crowned heads is "to madness near allied." Even in Prussia, where he is probably most correctly understood, there is still a great diversity in the appreciations of the King and Emperor. His pontifical intervention in all literary and artistic affairs is attributed to his mother, who took herself very seriously as an authority in such matters. But he is generally reproached for his manifest injustice to some of the great authors and artists of modern Germany who do not exactly answer to his obstinate predilections. His preference for Leoncavallo to write the music to the Imperial libretto of the opera "Roland" caused widespread resentment. It is further considered a grievance against him that he has refused to give the imprimatur of his presence to any play by Hauptmann, incontestably the greatest living German dramatist, and a Prussian. He has even opposed Hauptmann receiving the Schiller prize, after it had been adjudged to him by the jury of experts; and he has ostentatiously patronised that prosy but patriotic playwright, von Wildenbruch. Many Prussians also consider that he belittles his position by his anxiety to play the sedulous ape to Napoleon, and decide every little detail himself, from the uniforms of the firemen at the Krupp works to the architectural details of the German court at a foreign exhibition. His habit of making impromptu orations on grave international situations without the knowledge of his responsible advisers is also generally censured. This fatal gift of eloquence the Emperor inherits from his father, who, however, was held muzzled by the old Emperor and Bismarck. Unfortunately, there are no controlling influences to curb the intemperate oratory of the present delinquent. As soon as any Chancellor attempts to exert a moderating pressure his tenure of office becomes precarious, or is abruptly terminated. But when all allowance is made for these minor and inherited defects, the Prussian estimate of the Emperor is that he is the greatest personality modern Germany has known, and a strong factor for the peace of the world.

KNIGHT ERRANT AND PRACTICAL PRINCE.

This view, which will not be shared by many English students of his character, is explained by the fact that the Emperor stands above all in the Prussian estimate as the incarnation of the best interest of modern Germany. For over 20 years he has resisted all temptations, and it is said his military entourage have incited him more than once to engage in war with France or Russia. But, it is pointed out, he is no lover of concord for the sake of peace itself. He has remained pacific merely because it has appeared to him the best policy for German advancement. If it had been to the interest of Germany to make war, he would have gone into it heart and soul. His impulsive nature has more than once prompted him to "shake the sword in his scabbard," but reflection has proved to him that while Germany had little to gain by even a successful war against France, she had a great deal to lose by an unsuccessful war with any nation. That is the explanation commonly offered, not only for his action in regard to Morocco, but by way of palliating the historic cablegram to Paul Kruger. Baron von Holstein has lately made a laboured effort to excuse the Emperor from any real responsibility for that inexcusable blunder. But the real facts seem to show that while the Emperor did not actually dictate the message which was sent, he did dictate a message, which, if it had been sent, would almost assuredly have embroiled Germany with England beyond redemption. Dr. Paul Liman, the most authoritative and impartial critic of the Emperor, has well said, in trying to explain his complex character and inconsistent actions, "the Emperor sometimes appears to us surrounded with the blue shimmer of romance, at other times he is the most practical of modern princes." Thus a chivalrous sympathy with the Boers as a weak nation battling for very life against an overwhelming adversary (Holstein and Poland were for the moment conveniently forgotten), instigated the Emperor to command the Foreign Secretary that something must be done to show Germany's abhorrence of the Jameson adventure, commonly believed in Germany, and, indeed, Europe generally, to be the long arm of the British Foreign Office. Yet when the war broke out the Emperor remained a passive spectator, and when Kruger went to Berlin to receive the condolences of his chivalrous friend, William II. refused to see him. The knight errant had become the most practical of modern princes, and had recognised that Germany's interests would be jeopardised by any overt sympathy with the defeated republic or its president. Another explanation of the Emperor's disordered intervention behind the backs of his advisers in foreign affairs, usually followed by a humiliating disavowal of his words, or a complete volte face, is the strain of religious mysticism in his character. The Emperor is never, even by his enemies, accused of acting from sentiment. It is, indeed, a general reproach against him that he has never signalised any of the salient anniversaries of his reign by some fine acts of clemency, such as even the president of a republic often does. He is always the stern and unbending ruler of his people. But he is credited with a firm conviction that the Hohenzollerns are the elect of the Deity; and in his role as Divine deputy, he is subject to moments of inspiration, like Joan of Arc. When these fits are upon him he is obliged to act and speak in accordance with them—especially speak—only to discover later that his acts and words do not quite harmonise with the practical interests of the country. It is fortunate for everybody that his convictions are of such a nature that, at a pinch, they "kin be changed."

WILLIAM II.'S ONLY DISEASE.

Foreign critics of the Emperor, particularly English press critics, have often attempted to palliate the brusque outbursts of William II. by pleading that he is subject to chronic attacks of great pain. It is commonly said that he is paralysed in one arm, and wonderful stories are told of his prowess as a "gun," in being able with only one arm to bring back as big a "bag" as his companions who have no physical disadvantage. It is also asserted that some vague ear trouble causes him paroxysms of agonising pain. This trouble is variously described as neuralgia, necrosis, and abscess. It is implied that a man so afflicted must not be judged as other men are; that at times he must necessarily be in some degree mentally affected. It appears that this plea for the Emperor's incomprehensible actions cannot be sustained, since there is little or no foundation for the common belief in his physical frailty. Indeed his tireless energy argues powers of physical endurance quite out of the common. A medical man in Berlin, whose opportunities of getting at the facts of the case are exceptional, was good enough to provide me with a full statement of those facts. The Emperor is as free from physical pain as most men of his age. His ear trouble is not serious, and has not even affected his hearing. His arm is atrophied, as the result of a not uncommon operation at birth. The arm was wrongly placed over the head, and in order to save the life of the child the accoucheur, Professor Martin, broke the humerus. But although, as a consequence, the arm of the Emperor, like that of our Richard III., is withered, his hand is normal and strong. In fact, concluded my informant, "the only mental disease from which the Emperor suffers is that he has more brains than the ordinary run of men." We may discard, therefore, the common idea that his wild and unhappy excursions in foreign politics, in the Transvaal, Venezuela, Bagdad, Asia, or Morocco, in which he has almost reached the verge of war, are to be attributed to a character and imagination excited by the fever of physical pain. A much simpler explanation is the remark of the great socialist leader, Bebel, who, in discussing once the violent conduct and speech of the Emperor, cynically observed, with a touch of Whistler, "You know we are both such creatures of impulse."

AN EXAGGERATED SENSE OF DUTY.

That cynical explanation of the greatest enigma in modern politics pretty well condenses the prevalent opinion in Prussia and Saxony, at least, of the Emperor's character and conduct. In a more expanded form, Dr. Liman sums up the man very similarly. "We see in him," says this acute and, on the whole, just critic, "a nature whose ground tone shows a great enthusiasm, lively imagination, and a passionate craving for action. Actuated by the highest consciousness of the kingly office and duties, convinced that they represent the direct channel for the expression of the Divine will, he, at an early age freed himself from the fetters of modern constitutional ideas. A keen sense of his responsibility for the welfare of eighty million people has clothed this conception in a deeply earnest, if somewhat untenable, formula. The Emperor is a man who may certainly err in his conclusions and his methods, but not in his motives. Each of his steps was measured with the idea of promoting the good of his people. The pity is that from his exaggerated conception of majesty has sprung an exaggerated sense of duty, and instead of guarding and watching his people from the heights he has descended to perform the commonest details. The Emperor is thus the very reverse of the hero in a satirical play on modern royalty, 'Der Koenig,' which is being played from one end of Germany to the other. The piece is of French authorship, and was intended to parody the conduct and reign of the present King of the Belgians. But, as in the case of Shakespeare, the Germans have read into it more than was dreamt of by the playwright himself. 'My reign,' says the monarch, 'is insignificant. But I console myself with the reflection that the children of my country, when they come to read the chapter on my reign in their histories, will say to each other, 'This fellow was an ideal King, for there is nothing to learn about him. He has been content with recording the date of his birth and that of his death.'" The Emperor is not one of those monarchs who believe that the happy King is he of whom history says little, and his people think a lot. His impetuous nature forces him to meddle in everything. The catastrophe happens because, with all his versatility, his tireless energy and vigilance for the national welfare, his is essentially an obstinate and antiquated nature. His conception of the kingly office is that of his illustrious ancestor, the first great Hohenzollern, the Grosser Kurfuerst, "doubled," as the French say, with Napoleon. "His whole life," says one of his own subjects, "attests that with a strange obstinacy, he clings to the errors of his youth. Words spoken 20 years ago are repeated to-day, and the ideas of 20 years ago recur unchanged; nothing has been abandoned, and little has been accomplished." Conservatives and socialists alike reproach him for an invincible conviction, that, unaided, he can still fashion the world after his own youthful dreams.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Now that the above Act is under revision, may I point out through your columns the part that bears heavily on those of advanced years, and eligible in other respects? I refer to the personal earnings of the previous year before application is made for a pension.

A person inquired lately about this, and was informed that if the earnings were over £26 for the previous year the pension would not be granted.

This comes very hard on the industrious and thrifty ones, who are perhaps trying to pay off the last indebtedness for a little home, and who may have a wife or relative dependent on them, for how could they possibly exist? It surely was not the intention to exclude such persons from the benefit of the pension, or, on the other hand, to drive them to 12 months' misery.

A maximum earning is necessary, but why, in common humanity, should it be placed so low? When an aged person is fortunately able to earn a larger amount, say 30s or 40s a week, it does not follow he could do so the next year, nor should they be penalised for their energy and industry.

Trusting an amendment in this direction may be passed,
I am, etc,

A CASE AT NEWTOWN.

A DOUBLE PROOF OF THE VALUE OF REXONA.

Sometimes sores are found which refuse to heal up. A small amount of pus is daily discharged, but the sore itself remains in a stationary condition. It is suffering from weariness, and requires stimulating into activity, otherwise it may become chronic, and by a sort of creeping process become larger and larger. Rexona Ointment is particularly applicable to a case of this kind, as witness the following:—

"There must be something wonderful in Rexona Ointment," writes Mrs. E. Fletcher, of 83 Newman-street, Newtown, Sydney. "I never came across anything like it before. I have had what I might call a double proof of its healing power. First, there was my little boy. He had a dreadfully sore toe, which prevented him walking or putting on his boot. This was at Christmas, and since then till the other day we could do nothing with it, although we tried every remedy we could think of. At the end of February we tried Rexona, and it began to heal up at once, and in five or six days there was not a mark left. Then I had a sore on my face about the same time. It was on the side of my nose, and proved very obstinate. I had had this sore for about three weeks when I first became acquainted with Rexona, which acted like magic upon it, clearing the sore away in three or four days without leaving even so much as discolouration of the skin."

Rexona is a reliable remedy for all eruptions and irritations of the skin, Eczema, Pimples, Sores, Chilblains, Chapped Hands, Sciatica, Itching or Bleeding Piles, Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Scalds, Bad Legs, Stings of Insects, and all kinds of inflammation.

Rexona is sold only in triangular pots at 1/6 and 3/. All chemists and stores will supply it, or it will be sent post free upon receipt of the price by the Laxo-Tonic Pill Co., 15 O'Connell-street, Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice, Sir Samuel Griffith, and Justices O'Connor, Barton, and Isaacs.)

HENRY HAWKINS v JAMES M'LEOD AND JOHN DICKINSON.

Mr. Canaway, instructed by Messrs. T. E. Creswell and Hobbs (agents for Mr. P. F. Abbott, of Glen Innes), appeared for the plaintiff, in an application for special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Chief Judge in Equity, in June last, in which a suit brought by Hawkins against the defendants was dismissed. It was for special performance of a contract of sale of a c.p. and c.l. The conditional purchaser, Dickinson, took up a c.p. and c.l. on January 23, 1902. He entered into a contract with Hawkins in September, 1906, which purported to give the latter a lease of the c.p. and c.l. for three years, together with an option of purchase, to be exercisable at any time within that period. It was held in the Equity decision that the contract was illegal, as it came within the express provisions of section 121 of the Crown Lands Act, 1884, and that the land was not transferable. The appellant's contention was that the effect of present legislation enabled a c.p. to be transferred, with the consent of the local land board, at any time after it had been conferred.

Leave was granted. It was explained by counsel that the Chief Judge in Equity had expressed a wish that the case should be referred to the High Court, inasmuch as his decision was contrary to one in a case which had previously been considered to lay down the law correctly.

EARLY VOLUNTEERS.

THEIR GRANTS OF LAND.

Mr. Canaway and Mr. Pike, instructed by Messrs. Ellis and Button, appeared for the appellant, Daniel Capel; Dr. Cullen and Mr. Hanbury Davies, instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett, for the respondent, James Leslie Williams; Mr. Harriott, instructed by Mr. B. A. M'Bride (agent for Mr. T. D. Ryan, of Bingara), for the other respondents, Francis William Michell, and Frederick Richard Michell.

The case was an appeal from a judgment of the Equity Court in a declaration of right given in a suit in which the now appellant was plaintiff, and the respondents were defendants. Of the defendants Williams was nominally on behalf of the Government of New South Wales.

The other two claimed the same piece of land as the plaintiff, who claimed to have the right to it in virtue of two "volunteer" landlords, or land orders.

In 1876 Thomas Edward Ellis obtained from the officer then in command of the volunteer force a certificate that, having served in the No. 7 battery, Volunteer Artillery Brigade, for five years, he was entitled to a grant of land as specified in the Volunteer Regulation Act of 1867. His claim to a free grant of Crown lands in satisfaction of the certificate was unsatisfied at the commencement of the Crown Lands Act of 1884, and up to the date of an application for 50 acres in the Central Division in June, 1906, made by plaintiff, who had acquired the volunteer certificate of Gunner Ellis. One, William Allen, a member of the Volunteer Artillery Brigade Band, with the rank of gunner, obtained a similar certificate. His claim remained unsatisfied up to the time of the 1884 Crown Lands Act, and the application was subsequently made. In June, 1906, the plaintiff, who had acquired the certificate of Allen, put in an application for land. The plaintiff charged that upon the lodging of the application a right accrued to him to get grants. The Government repudiated his right to get the grants, or either of them, and shortly afterwards purported to accept the application of the Michells for a conditional lease of parts of the area. They, therefore, claimed to have a good and valid title under the C.L. The two applications for the 50 acres under the volunteer land orders were lodged on June 27, 1906 (a Wednesday), and the question was whether at that date they were open to conditional purchase. The Equity Court judgment held that it was not until a day later, and consequently the plaintiff's application was a day too soon, and the land was open to conditional lease by the Michells on July 28. "There can be no doubt," his Honor said, in giving his decision, "that this inflicts grave disadvantage on holders of volunteer land orders, who try to take up land which is thrown open to conditional purchase after reservation. The Government generally throws the land open on a land office day—that is a Thursday. The holder of a volunteer land order cannot, by the regulations, apply on a Thursday. If he applies on the previous day he is too soon, and if he applies on Friday he will almost certainly be too late." The suit was thereupon dismissed.

The case stands part-heard.

A MATTER OF COPYRIGHT.

Robertson and Moffatt, of Melbourne, were plaintiffs in a matter in Chambers, before Mr. Justice Barton. The defendants were Wilfred Kent Hughes, Peter N. Duncan, and Charles J. Steele.

Mr. Leverrier and Mr. Innes (instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., as agents for Messrs. Blake and Riggall, Melbourne), appeared for plaintiffs; Mr. Hammond, instructed by Messrs. Laurence, Son, and Macdonald, agents for Messrs. Farmer, Turner, and Thompson, Melbourne, for the defendants.

The plaintiff company asked for an injunction restraining defendants from printing, publishing, or otherwise disposing of a book called the "Annual Review of Australasian Oversea Exports," or of a newspaper called the "Daily Shipping Index of Australasia," or any other name, containing any article taken from, or colourably altered from, certain issues of a newspaper published by the plaintiffs, and called the "Daily Commercial News and Shipping List and Weekly Summary." An affidavit was filed by Howard J. Moffatt, alleging that plaintiffs' copyright had been infringed in certain matter reproduced without authority from their newspaper. It was stated that it was common knowledge that the defendants were about to compile another publication for the present year similar to the other, and the injunction asked for was in connection with it.

By consent, the matter was adjourned till Thursday next, an interim injunction being granted.

IN BANCO.

(Before Mr. Justice Cohen, Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Justice Sly.)

A DISPUTE AS TO STAMP DUTY.

Re Broken Hill South Extended, Limited (appellants), Commissioner for Stamps (respondent).

Mr. Gordon, K.C., Mr. Langer Owen, K.C., and Mr. J. L. Campbell, instructed by Mr. J. R. Edwards, of Broken Hill (by his agents, Messrs. Pigott and Stinson), appeared for the appellants; and Dr. Cullen, K.C., and Mr. Rich, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. J. V. Tillett), for the Commissioner for Stamps. This was an appeal by the Broken Hill South Extended, Limited, against the assessment of stamp duty on an agreement dated March 26, 1907, made between the New Australian Broken Hill Consols, Limited, and Standish Grady on behalf of a new company to be formed as mentioned in the agreement, and afterwards termed the Broken Hill South Extended, Limited. The matters at issue were fully set out on the previous day. The Commissioner had charged £1479 as the stamp duty payable upon an agreement between the old and the new company, and this amount was paid under protest. The appellants contended that the Commissioner had no right to determine the amount of stamp duty payable by taking the face value of the shares, and should have received and acted upon the evidence tendered by them as to the market value of the shares at or about the date of the agreement.

After argument,

Mr. Justice Cohen, in delivering the judgment of the Court, said he was of opinion that while there could be no doubt that the Commissioner acted conscientiously and rightly exercised vigilance in seeing that the public revenue was properly protected, he took up a wrong attitude, and was wrong in the method by which he arrived at the assessment. He should have considered the evidence tendered by the appellants to show the market value of the shares at certain dates about the time of the agreement, but he erroneously rejected that evidence, and arrived at his assessment on the face value of the shares. The question submitted in the special case was, therefore, answered in the negative. As by sub-section 5 of section 18 of the Stamp Duties Act the Court had to decide what was the true assessment, he would hold an inquiry at a convenient date, and would be prepared to hear any evidence the parties might bring forward. Question of costs reserved.

Mr. Rich said he must not be taken to have assented to any part of the order which might affect the rights of the Crown.

STRUCK OUT.

Proctor v Oldfield.

There being no appearance in this case it was struck out.

CROWN CASE.

Rex v Hill, Beveridge, and Saunders.

Mr. W. A. Walker, instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail, appeared for the accused in support of the appeal; and Mr. Harris, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, in support of the conviction. The special case stated by Judge Backhouse for the opinion of the Court stated that the three prisoners, with a man named M'Dougall, were arraigned upon an indictment charging that on March 15, 1909, at Sydney, they conspired together to pervert the course of justice. M'Dougall pleaded guilty, but the other prisoners, James Henry Hill, Laura Beveridge, and Rose Saunders demurred to the indictment as being insufficient in law, and that they were not called upon to answer it. It was admitted that his Honor must overrule the demurrer, as the point raised had already been decided in favour of the Crown by the Supreme Court, but he was asked to reserve the question of law involved, so that, if it was thought fit, the matter might be taken to the High Court. Accused then pleaded not guilty, and asked for particulars, and the Crown Prosecutor stated that he intended to rely only on the overt acts set out in the depositions. On the opening of the case by the Crown Prosecutor it appeared that a fifth person, whose name was unknown, was concerned in the crime; and his Honor was asked to amend the indictment so as to include this man, by adding after the word "themselves" the words "and with another person, whose name to the said Herbert Harris (Crown Prosecutor) is unknown." This was before any evidence was called. His Honor allowed the amendment, as he did not see how the prisoners could be prejudiced if the evidence was confined to the facts set out in the depositions, as it had to be. No evidence was given of any overt act by the unknown person alone. His Honor, by request of counsel for accused, reserved for the opinion of the Court the question whether his Honor was in error in amending the indictment.

After argument,

The Acting Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Cohen and Mr. Justice Pring concurring) said that in his opinion the Judge had no jurisdiction to make the amendment, and for that reason the conviction of the accused must be quashed. Although not necessary to his decision, he might also say that he was of opinion that the persons charged might have been prejudiced in their defence on the merits by the amendment which was made.

Conviction set aside accordingly.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly.)

A DEPUTY MAYOR'S POWERS.

Lucas v Trefle.

Mr. Boyce and Mr. Harry Stephen, instructed by Mr. H. A. Langley, appeared for the appellant, W. G. G. Lucas, on a special case, submitted for the opinion of the Court. Mr. Holman, instructed by Messrs. Becby and Moffatt, appeared for the respondent, C. B. Trefle, in support of the finding of the magistrate. It appeared from the special case that Charles Bede Trefle was charged at Temora, before Richard M. Gibson, P.M., on the complaint of William George Gordon Lucas, who alleged that on June 28 last Trefle, while Deputy Mayor, exercised the power or authority of the Mayor of the municipality, by issuing a notice suspending H. T. Tucker from the position of acting town clerk for the municipality. Trefle not having been authorised under the seal of the council to do so. The Deputy Mayor had been appointed under section 35 (subsection 8) of the Local Government Act, 1906. Upon the hearing of the information Mr. Holman, who appeared at the police court for the defendant, took the objection that the information disclosed no offence. Ordinance No. 2, neither in part 10, under which the information is laid, nor in any other part, provides any penalty. That section, 199 (5), providing penalties for breaches of the Act, and of orders, proclamations, and notices made under the authority thereof, provides no penalties for breaches of ordinances, where the ordinance itself does not provide a penalty; and that section 199 (5) does not refer to ordinances at all. He submitted, further, that ordinance 2, having no penalty, either by its own terms or by virtue of section 199 (5), merely invalidates the act of any person acting in contravention of its provisions, but does not render such person liable to any penalty. The magistrate dismissed the information, and the complainant now appealed. Mr. Boyce said that the main point was whether, unless a penalty was provided in the ordinance, anyone acting in contravention of its provisions was liable to a penalty. He submitted that he was.

The case stands part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice A. H. Simpson, Chief Judge in Equity.)

APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL.

Hordern v Hordern.

Mr. Sheppard, instructed by Messrs. Deane and Deane, appeared for the plaintiffs, Arthur Gilbert Hordern and Anthony Shubra Hordern, in support of an application for final leave to appeal to the Privy Council against a decision of his Honor. The case was one in which the plaintiffs claimed that they were entitled to a share in the business of Anthony Hordern and Sons, but the effect of his Honor's decision was to direct an inquiry by the Master as to whether Mr. Samuel Hordern, one of the defendants, had given a fair value for the share of plaintiffs' late father in the business. His Honor in May last granted conditional leave to appeal.

Final leave was granted.

IN DIVORCE.

(Before Mr. Justice Sly.)

KELSO v KELSO.

Messrs. W. R. and F. R. Jones appeared for the petitioner, John Alexander Kelso, who sought for a divorce from his wife, Judith Annie Kelso on the grounds: (1) Habitual drunkenness for three years and upwards: (2) habitual drunkenness, rendering respondent unfit to discharge her domestic duties. Respondent did not appear. The parties were married on September 28, 1896. After hearing evidence his Honor found the issues to be proved, and granted a decree nisi, returnable in six months.

DOWLING v DOWLING.

In this suit Richard John Dowling sued for the dissolution of his marriage with Emily Amy Eleanor Dowling, the ground alleged being desertion by the respondent without just cause or excuse for three years and upwards. Respondent did not appear. The parties were married on February 27, 1899. His Honor having heard the evidence on behalf of the petitioner, and the respondent not appearing, granted a decree nisi, and made it returnable in six months.

BATTERBEE v BATTERBEE (W. M. FITZMAURICE CO-RESPONDENT).

Mr. James, instructed by Mr. J. J. Carroll, appeared for petitioner, George Charles Batterbee, who sought for a dissolution of his marriage with Elsie May Sarah Batterbee on the ground of adultery with William Mark Fitzmaurice, who was joined as co-respondent. The parties were married on April 19, 1902. Neither respondent nor co-respondent now appeared, and his Honor after hearing the case for petitioner granted a decree nisi, and made it returnable in six months, with costs against co-respondent.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before the Registrar, Mr. F. H. Salusbury.)

HEARING OF CREDITOR'S PETITION.

Australian Widow's Fund Assurance Society Limited, v Cornelius and Michael John Joseph Leary. Order of sequestration made, and Mr. C. F. W. Lloyd appointed official assignee.

CREDITORS' PETITION.

Cameron and M'Fadyen, of Sydney, produce merchants, versus Herbert Walsh, of Cowra, produce merchant. Petition to be heard on August 6.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray.)

A YOUNG HOUSEBREAKER.

Victor Greentree, 26, brought up for sentence on a conviction of house-breaking, when he stole a quantity of jewellery and other goods, was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

Evidence was given that he had been employed on a farm recently, and had given satisfaction to his employer, who was willing to take him back when he got out. A list of previous convictions for other offences was read out. It was stated by a constable that he was weak-witted during his school life.

A KLEPTOMANIAC'S CAREER.

James Ward was charged with having obtained a saddle and two bridles by false pretences. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

The Rev. Mr. Walden, of the Enmore Tabernacle, said Ward had been a member of the church for about six months, and he behaved himself in an exemplary manner. Mr. Waldron thought the young man had made an effort to retrieve his past.

A list of former convictions, commencing in 1891, was read out, which showed that Ward had been sent to the Sobraon and had spent a great deal of time in gaol for offences in both Sydney and Melbourne.

Senior Constable M'Atamany stated that Ward was wearing a stolen suit, and that he had obtained a tax from another prisoner which he had stitched on the coat to fool the police.

His Honor said the prisoner seemed to be suffering from chronic kleptomania, and the question was, what to do with him. He believed that he had been putting on an air of sanctity so as to deceive people. His Honor thought he was not to be trusted at large at present, and he could not help taking advantage of the Habitual Criminals Act, so that Ward might be kept in restraint. He was sentenced to six months' hard labour, to commence at the expiration of a sentence now being served, and to be declared an habitual criminal. "I'll never serve the sentence," exclaimed the prisoner, who shook hands with Mr. Waldron as he descended the steps of the dock.

OTHER SENTENCES.

Alfred Jones, found guilty of larceny, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment.

Francis Riley, against whom a number of previous convictions were recorded, was sentenced to 16 months' imprisonment for stealing in a dwelling, allowance being made for eight weeks already spent in gaol for want of bail.

Arthur James Brooks, for breaking and entering, on July 10, the shop of Frederick Thomas Thompson, and stealing a set of drill-bits and other material; and the shop of Arthur S. Rodman and another, and stealing some electric goods, was sentenced to two years on each count, the sentences to be cumulative.

Andrew Arnott (23), who pleaded guilty to six charges of larceny, and two of forgery and uttering, was sentenced to one year and 10 months on each of the eight indictments, the sentences to be concurrent.

BOUND OVER.

Lazare Farchy, for stealing from a dwelling, was bound over to appear if called upon to receive sentence, on recognisance being given for £50.

POLICE COURTS.

TWO UP.

SURPRISING A SCHOOL.

At the Newtown Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Smithers, S.M., John Dalley, of 6 Goodsell-street, Newtown, was charged with having, on July 18, played two-up in a public place off Lord-street, Newtown, to the annoyance of passengers. Mr. Leslie Gannon appeared for the defence.

Senior-sergeant M'Donald stated that on Sunday, 18th inst., about 11.30 a.m., he and Constable Young went to a vacant piece of ground running from Darley-street to Lord-street, Newtown. As witness and Constable Young got round the corner of the streets named, they saw a two-up school. The accused and 20 or 30 others were there. The accused had the kip, produced, and was tossing two pennies in the air. Immediately they saw witness and Young approaching they ran in all directions, and the only capture made was a man with a wooden leg. The constable had known the accused for a long time. Witness picked up 6s 3d in the ring. There was no doubt accused was among the number.

The defence was that the accused and another man named Storr were out together. The accused went fishing that morning, and was never near the place stated by the police.

Arthur Phillips said he saw the two constables arrive. Witness saw all the people that were in the crowd, before they ran, and the accused was not there at all.

A number of witnesses were called who stated that they met the accused that morning when out fishing.

The Magistrate: I have no doubt accused was there at the time the police arrived. We have two very reliable police officers giving evidence, and I cannot disbelieve them. The accused is fined £1, and 6s costs, in default imprisonment for 14 days.

LICENSEE FINED.

In the summons division of the Central Police Court yesterday, James Brown, licensee of the Friendship Hotel, Bathurst-street, was charged with having sold liquor on July 20, outside prescribed hours. Evidence was given by Constable Renton that he saw two men enter the premises at 6 a.m. The licensee was outside the premises at the time, and closed the door on the man. A glass was on the counter containing rum. Brown was fined £1, with 6s costs, or in default, seven days. Both the customers were each fined 5s, with 6s costs, or in default 24 hours' imprisonment.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

At the Water Police Court yesterday, before Mr. L. S. Donaldson, S.M., Leo Percy Carew, 19, gardener, was charged with stealing a quantity of clothing and other articles, besides 7s 6d in money, of the total value of £20, the property of Robert Francis Wyley, at Manly, on June 1 last. The same accused was further charged with stealing a quantity of clothing and other articles, value £15, the property of Sydney James Shillington, at Manly, on June 1.

Constable Sheehy said that on July 23 he saw accused in the yard of a boarding-house at Manly, and questioned him. He admitted that a watch found in his possession belonged to Mr. Wyley, and that he had pawned other articles, including a quantity of clothing belonging to Mr. Shillington. On searching accused's room he found goods, which were subsequently claimed by Wyley and Shillington.

The accused, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial.

The same accused was also committed for trial on a charge of stealing a bicycle, the property of Ernest Bosch.

ASSAULTING THE POLICE.

THE CHIPPENDALE INCIDENT.

As a result of the assault on the police at Meagher-street, Chippendale, on the night of July 17, several young men appeared yesterday at the Central Police Court, before Mr. King, S.M., among them being Ernest Trotter, 21, printer, who was charged with riotous behaviour. The same accused and Charles Baker, 27, carter, were together charged with assaulting Constable John Williams while in the execution of his duty.

Mr. Kiely appeared for Trotter.

Constable John Williams stated that on the night in question he was, with Constable Wiblin, in Meagher-street, and they saw a crowd of about 30 men, who were quarrelling about football matters. Witness and Wiblin dispersed the crowd. Subsequently Trotter returned and started an altercation with another man. Witnessed then arrested Trotter for riotous behaviour. On the way to the station, Trotter got away, as a result of interference by some men, but was almost immediately captured by Constable Webber. Witness then took his charge towards No. 2 station, and when near Meagher-street witness was struck in the face with some hard instrument, which caused his face to bleed. Baker was among those who assaulted him. This accused first threw stones and kicked witness about the shins. When Trotter was being released by the mob he kicked witness on the shin. Cross-examined, witness said he had ascertained that Trotter bore a good character. The injuries inflicted by this accused were slight.

Constable C. A. Wiblin gave corroborative evidence.

Ernest Trotter, who denied the charge, said that he was walking past the crowd when Constable Williams caught hold of his arm, but subsequently released him. Witness then walked away, but decided to return for his hat, which had been knocked off. Witness said he would rather have lost his hat than be mixed up with the row. Evidence in support was called.

Charles Baker stated that on the date in question he arrived home at 7 o'clock, and went to bed. Cross-examined, witness said he knew the men concerned with the charges of assaulting the police. He was drunk that night, and knew nothing of the assault. Accused's mother and father corroborated the statement that he was in bed before and at the time the assault took place.

Trotter, who was a first offender, was fined 10s, or seven days, on the minor charge, and £3 or one month for the assault. The magistrate remarked that although the assault was trifling, any interference with the police in the execution of their duty must be met with substantial penalties. Baker, who had been previously convicted, was fined £5, with the option of two months' imprisonment.

In connection with the same case, Thomas Jeffes, 23, labourer, Henry Walker, 19, brass-founder, and Thomas Robinson, 28, labourer, were charged with assaulting the police, and were remanded until Tuesday next.

HOLIDAY RAILWAY FARES.

MEN OF IRON

Owe their Strong Nerves to.. Sound Digestion.

Calm, Strong, Men and Women.

From the days of Wellington, England has been served by men of iron—calm, strong capable men—and, either in peace or war, a nation of such men would be invincible. But thousands of people, both men and women, have not the healthy constitution necessary for nerves as strong as iron. They are always ailing, always below par, and become fretful and irritable after an ordinary day's work. Steady nerves make men and women capable and efficient, but a healthy nervous system only inhabits a healthy body. Before you can feel strong and well, the blood must be pure enough and rich enough to support and sustain the nerves on which the force of a hard day's work falls.

The Secret of Strength.

When nerves break down it is not the nerves which are wrong, it is the blood—too weak to feed and strengthen the system. And when the blood is weak and impoverished the real fault lies with the stomach. It is not digesting sufficient food to enrich the blood. Pain after eating, nausea, headache, dulness, wind, palpitation, and dizziness are a few of the indications of the root-cause of all this trouble—Indigestion. The cure is Mother Seigel's Syrup. It makes men of iron and strong, healthy, happy women, by helping the stomach to do its work of enriching the blood supply and strengthening the nervous system. Mother Seigel's Syrup is not a new remedy—time has made its merit a household word.

Convincing Testimony.

"Some years ago I had severe indigestion and was an outdoor patient at the Sydney Hospital for twelve months. They treated me for chronic dyspepsia, but I got no relief. I had splitting headaches and awful pains in my chest and between my shoulder blades, and was very bilious. I could not attend to my domestic duties, and had to keep my daughter home to do the housework. A friend one day said to me, 'Why don't you try Mother Seigel's Syrup?' I shall not forget the first dose I took. I seemed at once to lose that drowsy feeling, and the biliousness ceased, gradually. As I continued taking the Syrup the pains in my head and chest passed away. To-day I am in excellent health, as well as any woman could wish to be; in fact, my health is perfect." Letter of Mrs. Mary Parkinson, 7 May St., Newtown, Sydney.

Gives Sound Digestion, Strong Nerves, makes Men of Iron, and Women Strong, Healthy, and Happy, and cures Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Headache, Wind, Palpitation, Loss of Appetite, and Dizziness.

SCIENCE NOTES.

W.G.P.

SCIENCE AT THE UNIVERSITY.

In the current number of the University magazine a virulent, and apparently inspired, attack is made on the inclusion of science as a compulsory portion of the Arts course. The young writer expresses profound contempt for science and all its works, and is especially angry at the enforced martyrdom of laboratory and field study. It is a pity that this spirit should seem to be sedulously encouraged in certain quarters, and the use of a University journal to sow enmity among the faculties is much to be deprecated. There is a certain half-truth, however, at the back of a rather specious display of juvenile argument. In re-arranging their curriculum some little time ago the authorities included one year of a science subject in the Arts course. This was supposed to represent a concession to enlightenment; but as has happened with most similar "reforms" grudgingly permitted by the senate and its professorial advisers, the concession has been given the best form to bring it into disrepute. The Arts matriculation, by its insistence on higher Latin, obliges the schools to give even more time to this subject than they did under the old arrangements, and it is still quite exceptional for an Arts student to have reached senior or even junior standard in science before he comes to the University. The result is that he entirely lacks preparation for the year's work he has to do in science, and even if he had the will, is largely incapable of benefiting by it. The arrangement is equally unsatisfactory to the science schools, which find themselves crowded with a miscellaneous horde of unpromising students. A similar one-year course in certain science subjects is prescribed for medical students with like evil results. All this trouble is caused by the half-hearted measures the University adopts. In regard to medical students, science to the senior standard should be a condition of their entrance examination, and the schools would thus be obliged to do the necessary preparatory work. In regard to Arts students, the science course chosen should extend over two years; but in their case there is no need to make any subjects compulsory.

HEREDITY AND THE CELL.

The foundation of our knowledge of the mechanism of heredity lies in the changes that take place in the individual animal or plant cell. Such a cell usually consists of a mass of protoplasm surrounding a darker portion, the nuclear plasm. It is the nucleus that is the essential agent in heredity. Before 1870 it was supposed that the nuclei of daughter cells arose de novo, but about that time it was shown that such nuclei always arise by division of previously existing nuclei. Improved methods of research gradually made clear the very complex processes involved in nuclear division. It was next shown that in sexual reproduction two nuclei unite, and a final proof that the nucleus is the bearer of heredity was given when it was shown that in flowering plants only the nucleus of the pollen cells reaches the egg. Further work showed conclusively that the character carriers, whatever they were, were enclosed in the chromosomes of the nucleus. One of the triumphs of modern research has been a demonstration of the evolution of the nucleus. In the cells of bacteria and some other low organisms there is no clearly defined nucleus, but scattered grains appear through the protoplasm. It was only in the course of cell evolution that those were gathered together to form a nucleus, and an elaborate method for their division was developed.

ANTONY VAN LEEUWENHOEK.

Contrary to the usual story, the great Dutch microscopist was not a physician. He came of a family of rich brewers, and at 16 went into the business of an Amsterdam clothier as office boy. He returned after some years to his native town, Delft, and became chamberlain to the sheriff. He was, in fact, nothing more or less than a town beadle. His salary was £26 a year, and he held the appointment for 39 years. He was a great letter writer, and in the course of half a century the Royal Society received from him no less than 375 letters and papers. There is, therefore, abundant material for an estimate of his work. He was an indefatigable observer, and his papers cover a multitude of subjects, all sorts of microscopic animals, the structure of plants, digestion, circulation, the generation of animals, the peculiarities of sight organs, and so on. He made his own simple microscopes, down to the grinding of lenses, and 26 of them were among the most interesting scientific curiosities of the Royal Society. Unfortunately they have long been lost. Harvey demonstrated the circulation of the blood by unimpeachable argument, but Leeuwenhoek first made it visible to the eye in 1686. He tried various animals for this purpose, but finally succeeded with the tail of the tadpole and the web of a frog's foot. He made careful investigation also on brain and nerve, described the liver fluke in sheep, and discovered various micro-organisms commonly resident in the mouth. He lived to the advanced age of 91.

THE ORIGIN OF PETROLEUM.

Petroleum is a very complex mixture of hydrocarbons, which, in the refinery, are separated by fractional distillation. The low-boiling constituents (petrol) are now used in the combustion engines of motor vehicles, though their removal was essential to the production of a safe kerosene. The natural oil of Baku differs greatly from the American, and in particular leaves a large non-volatile residue. Petroleum is widely distributed, and occurs in rocks of very various age, mostly porous lime and sandstones, covered by an impervious stratum of shale. The petroleum in limestone is usually held to be due to the decomposition of animal remains, but as these are characteristically absent from the oil-bearing sandstones, a modification of the theory suggests that the oil has come from a destructive distillation of the overlying shales. 'Direct proof is difficult, for the peculiar conditions can hardly be imitated in the laboratory. It has been shown, however, that animal fats yield a true petroleum oil when distilled under a pressure of ten atmospheres, and at a temperature of between 300 deg. C. and 400 deg. C. No doubt some petroleum is of vegetable origin, and coal, as well as shale, may have given rise to it. A curious fact is that salt is almost invariably associated with petroleum, and this suggests that water was an important factor in its formation.

CREATION MYTHS.

According to the Greek legend Prometheus fashioned our first parents out of clay, and the spot where he did so at Panopeus may still be seen, a forlorn little glen with deposits of a reddish clay. This myth dates back to very early Babylonian times, and a variant of it is told by Australian blacks, who explain the process followed in great detail. The Maori Tiki used red clay, and like the Babylonian Bel, mixed his own blood with it. In Tahiti mankind is held to have been fashioned from red earth. In the Pelew Islands they say that a brother and sister made men out of clay kneaded with the blood of various animals, of whose character they partook. The bravest men had cock's blood in them. According to a Melanesian story, men and pigs were made just alike, but the pigs were beaten and made to go on all fours. The Dyaks of British Borneo say the first man was made by two large birds, who moulded him out of damp earth, and infused into his veins the red gum of the kumpang tree. The tribes of Togoland think that the clay fashioning process is still followed. Equally widespread, however, are legends of man's origin from animals. This, in fact, is the essence of totemism.

SECOND TEST MATCH.

ENGLAND'S VIEW.

AUSTRALIA'S VICTORY.

(BY L. O. S. POIDEVIN.)

The most prominent feature of the second test match at Lords, not excepting the sensational character of the play, has been the bitter reproach and the almost universal vituperation that has been showered upon the defenceless heads of the selection committee. This is a very interesting and significant fact; it shows, at all events, that hostile criticism is no longer the outspoken prerogative of democratic Australia. I do not think any body of selectors has ever before been so heartily condemned as has this committee, consisting of Lord Hawke, C. B. Fry, and H. D. G. Leveson-Gower, with captain A. C. MacLaren as adviser. Lord Hawke, however, is exempt from this criticism, because he was away on the Continent recuperating his health at the time the selection was made and during the match. The other three, however, have been the recipients of the most trenchant abuse the cricket community has ever known. They have been accused of favouritism, of incompetence, of, in short, losing the second test match, and thereby bringing about a national calamity. Some critics have called upon them to admit their incompetence by resigning, so that others more capable of doing the work might take their place. And why all this fuss? Merely because one or two popular favourites were omitted and—England lost. It is all very well for the critics to say that the result of the match has not influenced their criticism. To the mere colonial it is evident that the loss of the match is what pinches most.

Was such a ludicrous situation ever before begotten over such a simple matter as the loss of a test match? How absurd it seems to think that England without Brearley and Jessop is not England at all, and how supremely weak to try to hide defeat behind such a transparent hedge. To English cricket and cricketers the whole blather is a gross injustice. The critics in their anger seem to have overlooked quite a lot of things. Firstly, that the men who chose the team were in full possession of all the facts of the case; that they are experienced judges of the game, in the best possible position for forming judgments; and, moreover, they were just as anxious to win the match as anybody else—only more so. That their first breakaway from the old stereotyped order of things should have ended in failure was in a sense unfortunate. Those readers who remember the graceful play of George Gunn in Sydney recently would not look upon his inclusion as a "terrible mistake." He did not come off as it happened, and as usual in such cases every outsider "could not for the life of him see why Gunn was picked." Had he done well the verdict would have been: "Jolly good selection. Those men knew what they were about when they picked Gunn."

King's play left no room for dissatisfaction. He top scored in the first innings, and did no worse than the others in the second. He is not a young player, being over 30 years of age, nor has he done anything at all sensational recently. He is without doubt a very sound and careful batsman, left-handed, with a forward style of play that suggests he would be a relatively better player on Australian wickets. "W. G." some years ago singled him out as the type of player M.C.C. should send to Australia, but playing for a weak county like Leicestershire he has been under an official cloud. Once he nearly came into official favour, when, as an emergency man, he scored a century in each innings for the Players against the Gentlemen at Lords. Although this feat was, I believe, unique in the history of these contests, it was soon forgotten, and King was never asked to play again. As a slow left-handed bowler he is only moderate, judged on the test match standard, although he gets plenty of wickets in the county season. Bowling round the wicket, he often makes the ball swing across in an amiable sort of way, and it was with one of these "swingers" that he got M'Alister, l.b.w., his one and only wicket. He was the unlucky bowler of the side, however, because catches were missed off him. Ransford and Trumper both being "let off."

Schofield Haigh is an acknowledged fine bowler; right-handed, medium in pace, with a vicious off-break, and a notorious fast yorker. He is relatively most hostile on sticky wickets. On good wickets his bowling becomes quite ordinary, and this Lords wicket rolled out after the first day into a really good pitch. Haigh's records extend over many years. Few, if any, English bowlers have better records in county cricket. He gets you out by clean bowling you oftener than in any other way. In a sense there was no room for cavilling at Haigh's inclusion, and Relf, too, has such good performances to recommend him, and did so well in the match that no exception could honestly be taken to his appearing for England.

The suggestion that the selectors took our men very cheaply, and gave some of the colts a trial to make a better match of it, was hopelessly wide of the mark. The selectors may, in the public view, have made a mistake in not including a fast bowler; probably it was a mistake to have left out Walter Brearley. To my mind he is the best fast bowler and the most dangerous bowler against our men in England to-day, and I would not think of leaving him out of England's side on almost any wicket. He takes a short run, and, unlike most fast bowlers, it is not difficult for him to get a reasonable foothold on almost any sort of turf. All the same there is no proof that he would have made the difference between losing and winning this match. As a matter of fact, it was a very bad batting failure that lost the match for England. Armstrong was the hero of the occasion, and he certainly bowled wonderfully well. Thus it was slow and not fast bowling that contributed most towards winning the match for us. Fast bowling, as typified by Cotter, was perhaps the least effective in the match, so that the indications of the play, at all events, do not point to an assured success for Walter Brearley had he played. The whole fact of the matter was that our men played much the better cricket, and quite deserved to win, even as convincingly as they did. The result was as unexpected as it was deserved.

Vernon Ransford has left his mark on the scroll of fame at historic Lords. My words in this column some little time ago have thus proved prophetic, and the young Victorian has achieved one of his ambitions. It was a fine innings that he played, appreciated rather more fully by cricketers than by the spectators. The reason for this lies in Ransford's style. Although he was batting for over four hours he never seemed to be in difficulties, and he never seemed to be really on top of the bowling. Such batting does not catch the popular eye, but it impresses the real student of the game. Ransford is going to be a greatly improved bat on his return to Australia; he is adapting himself splendidly to English conditions. Warren Bardsley has not been quite so successful in catching the spirit of his environment; although he has made more runs, and his free swinging style has engendered more favourable comment, his batting in test matches does not inspire the same sense of security or reliability. It is the quick, rising off-ball that so often gets him into difficulties. He is very keen, however, persevering, and thoroughly anxious to do well; doesn't smoke or drink, and keeps as fit as can be. In the field these two left-handers have earned golden opinions. Bardsley it was who ran out Hayward in the second innings. That in itself is a very useful thing to do in a test match. I once remember MacLaren advocating Jessop's inclusion in England's team, in 1902, because "he might run Trumper out," and he did so at the Oval, a little fact which, curiously enough, proved a turning point in the game against us. It is pleasant to be able to write that our fielding has been the subject of much congratulatory comment. Gregory, as usual, always comes into any picture of fielding excellence, but his brilliant work on the off-side has not exceeded that of Macartney. The latter, at Lords, was remarkably clever and brilliant; so, too, were the other pair of left-handers. The admission has been freely made that our fielding was superior by a good deal to that of our opponents, and, further, that it has come up to the best Australian standard.

Now, Australian fielding has always been held in England in the highest esteem. Archie MacLaren always asserts that "England owes a great deal to Australian example in the field." He goes further in saying that the art of placing the field was the direct teaching of Australian cricket. It is pleasant to know that at least one Englishman recognises the fact that England is not altogether the last, as well as the first, word of cricket.

The position to date—one win each—seems a fairly true index of the test-match play. We were soundly thrashed in the first match, and we have pretty completely returned the compliment in the second. Luck has not been a factor worth noting in either game; each has been won and lost on its merits. It is difficult therefore to reconcile these two diametrically opposite results. There is only one explanation—it is just cricket.

IN THE GARDEN.

CLIMBING AND TWINING PLANTS.

As several very beautiful flowering climbers are indigenous to Australia, and many of the best exotic ones grow to perfection in New South Wales, more especially on the eastern side of the Dividing Range, there is a great variety from which to make a selection.

The slender-growing Antigonon amabile and A. leptopus are charming plants, the former having lovely bright rose-coloured flowers, borne in great profusion, and the latter deep-pink ones, intermixed with beautifully-coloured bracts. They do best when trained to a wall in a position sheltered from wind but fully exposed to the sun.

The different kinds of Bignonia grow rapidly and flower very profusely under a variety of conditions. They are admirably adapted for covering large arbors, tall trellis-work, and similar structures. Amongst the best are B. capreolata, having orange and red flowers; B. guilfoylei, red and orange; B. lindleyana, lavender; B. speciosa, pink and purple; B. tweediana, golden yellow; and B. venusta, orange.

Bougainvilleas are amongst the most showy climbers in cultivation, and, when trained to walls having a north-easterly aspect, and fully exposed to the sun, produce a magnificent effect when in bloom. They also show to advantage when grown on high fences. B. glabra, with rosy-lilac bracts, and its variety, sanderiana, with violet-coloured ones, can be trained as shrubs, and when well formed make a very fine display when in flower. B. braziliensis has bright mauve-coloured bracts; B. speciosa, purple; B. spectabilis, brick-red, shaded with scarlet; and B. splendens, crimson.

The necklace bean vine (Canavalia) is a rapid growing evergreen, with shining foliage and pea-shaped, bright purple flowers and is a capital plant for quickly covering any unsightly object. Cobaea scandens is a hardy, fast-growing plant, with good foliage and large bell-shaped, dark purple flowers. It is best trained on a tall trellis, or where it will have plenty of room to grow. Morning glory is the popular name of Convolvulus major, which is a hardy annual with numerous varieties, producing bell-shaped flowers of every colour—the pure white and brilliant crimson being very striking, as well as the exquisitely striped and variously marked ones. These plants are suitable for training on almost any kind of support, and when in bloom make a wonderfully effective display.

The elegant Dolichos lignosus is a suitable plant for growing on the front of verandahs, over fences, etc. In summer and autumn the slender stems are covered with a profusion of pea-shaped, rose and lilac flowers, and one variety has white ones. The blue, pink, and white everlasting peas (Lathyrus) can be trained to form charming, low floral hedges. They also make a very attractive display when in bloom if grown as dwarf pyramids. A pyramid can be formed by driving three stakes into the ground in a triangle, drawing their tops together, and then covering the whole with wire netting having a wide mesh.

The honeysuckles (Lonicera) that have a twining habit are very hardy, and can be trained in various ways. Some of them produce highly fragrant flowers, and others beautifully variegated foliage. Amongst the best are L. caprifolium, having yellow and blue flowers; L. flexuosa, yellow; L. japonica, red and white; and L. sempervirens, scarlet and yellow.

Ipomoea learii—the best of this family—is a rapid-growing perennial, producing large, bright blue flowers in great profusion. It does best when trained to a trellis or other support having a north-easterly aspect. I. versicolor, grown in some gardens as Mina lobata, is a vigorous-growing charming annual with handsome foliage and very attractive flowers. At first they are bright crimson, changing to orange, and finally to creamy white. There are other annual Ipomoeas, notably the moon flower, or good-night, with large sweetly-scented, pure white flowers, and the ivy-leaved with light blue ones, well worth cultivating.

The several kinds of climbing jasmine, which produce white or yellow flowers, some sweetly perfumed, in great profusion, show to advantage when trained up verandah posts or on trellises. That charming deciduous climber Mandevilla suaveolens, rarely called by its popular name Chili jasmine, produces in summer a profusion of large, highly fragrant, pure white flowers. If trained on a trellis it has a pleasing effect when in bloom, but it will do well on almost any kind of support and in various situations.

Passifloras, and the allied climbers Tacsonias, producing singularly beautiful flowers of a white, pink, red, scarlet, crimson, violet, and yellow colour, are too well known to need more than a passing reference here. There is one variety of passion flower, however, named Constance Elliott, with sweetly scented, pure white flowers, that is not so largely grown as its merits justify. All these plants do well when trained on any kind of support, and in almost any situation free from frost.

The Shanghai jasmine (Rhynchospermum) is a slender evergreen, producing in summer a profusion of highly perfumed, pure white flowers. It shows to advantage when grown in pyramidal form amongst shrubs or in mixed flower borders. A variety of this plant has beautifully variegated foliage. One of the most curious climbers is that popularly known as snail flower (Phaseolus). Its shell-shaped purple and yellowish flowers are borne abundantly in summer and autumn.

Solanum wendlandi, a member of the nightshade family, is without doubt one of the most strikingly-beautiful flowering climbers introduced of late years. An established plant produces a profusion of large clusters of lovely lavender-blue flowers, each more than two inches in diameter. Other climbing representatives of this family are well worth planting.

The climbing tecomas, including two native ones, produce showy and very beautiful flowers. Amongst the best exotics are T. capensis, with orange scarlet blooms; T. grandiflora, orange; T. makeni, rose pink, with dark veins; and T. radicans, scarlet. The firstnamed makes a pretty floral hedge.

The evergreen climbing thunbergias are vigorous-growing plants, producing mostly red, blue, and white flowers, and requiring plenty of room for their development. One of the most charming annual members of this family is T. alta, whose slender stems grow about 3ft high, and in summer and autumn are covered with yellow flowers having rich purple centres. There are several varieties of this charming annual. They do best when trained on a low trellis or in dwarf pyramidal form.

Nasturtium or Indian cress is the popular name of the tall-growing annual varieties of Tropaeolum lobbianum and T. majus, which are admirably adapted for training up trellis work or growing as temporary floral fences. Their very showy single and double flowers are variously coloured, and some are splashed and mottled in a curious manner. The canary creeper, an elegant annual member of this family, produces golden yellow flowers in great profusion in summer and autumn. The tuberous-roted, graceful perennial tropaeolums have small but exceedingly pretty flowers freely produced. They show to advantage when trained on low trellises.

All the wistarias, including the native one, are well worth planting in prominent positions. They can be trained in various ways, and when in bloom produce a singularly beautiful sight. Many other climbers and twiners could be added to this list, but the above will suffice to show how these most useful plants can be utilised in garden decoration.

THE GLADIOLUS.

The three distinct types of gladiolus in which horticulturists are now taking very great interest are the Butterfly, Gandavensis, and Lemoinei. In all these sections, which have been brought to their present state of perfection by skilful hybridists, there are many very beautiful varieties with large and brilliantly-coloured flowers, some being marked and spotted in a remarkable manner, and others showing a marvellous combination of colouring. In the coastal districts, if proper storage is available to rest the bulbs, it is possible to have gladioli in flower from October till April by planting the bulbs at intervals from August to February. On the tablelands, however, the flowering season will be limited to the midsummer months. Gladioli thrive in deep, well-worked, rather sandy, rich loam, but will grow in any well-drained, deep, good soil. Where extra large spikes of fine blooms are desired the plants must receive liberal treatment. If natural manure has to be used to add fertility to the land it should be thoroughly decomposed, for nothing harms the plants so much as their roots coming in contact with fresh manure. The bulbs should be planted quite three inches deep, indeed if very large ones they may be covered with soil to a depth of five inches. Gladioli, if planted in masses, with their colours arranged to harmonise, produce a gorgeous effect when in bloom. They also show to great advantage when grown in single lines or grouped judiciously in mixed flower borders. The bulbs may be planted from 18in to 2ft apart, which will allow plenty of room for the plants to display their flowers.

Bulbs of the allied bugle lilies (Watsonias) may now be planted under conditions similar to those recommended for gladioli. The tall, handsome, showy flowering white and rose-coloured kinds produce an exceptionally fine effect when planted in groups amongst dwarf-growing shrubs.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

Parramatta.—You are correct in stating "that when fowls are consigned in a railway coop to the auction sale yards, only one pair are shown, and while they may be the best pair, there are equal chances that they are the worst." At the same time it must be remembered that at the various sale-rooms when space is available, the poultry are taken out of the crates, and placed in the salesmen's coops, where they can be seen. The city poulterers usually go through the yards prior to the sale, and handle the fowls in the railway coops, and know exactly what the quality is, and do not depend on the one or two shown by the auctioneer's attendants.

Peakhurst.—Your note was too late for reply in last week's issue. By this time your bird is possibly dead, or has recovered. A cockerel intended for breeding purposes, and developing the symptoms you speak of, even if cured, would be risky to breed from. Leghorn cockerels of good quality, healthy, and approved laying strain, can now be had cheaply, and it is always preferable to pay from 5s to 10s for one of these than to chance breeding from an apparently cured specimen.

Petersham.—Thirty-four chickens from 38 fertile eggs is an excellent percentage from an incubator, and is evidence sufficient that, given fertile eggs and proper management, the machine will do equally as good as the hen.

The auction sale of prize Aylesburys noted in last Saturday's issue took place on Wednesday last at the Poultry Farmers' Co-operative Society's rooms, Parker-street, and was the most successful of any like sale held in the city. The birds were sold singly. Mr. E. Beulich, of Waterloo, made the record purchase, one drake and three ducks, for £20; the individual prices being: Duck, £6 10s; drake, £5 5s; duck, £4 10s; duck, £3 15s. At like sales of pure stock there is usually a tail to it, but in the present instance every specimen sold well, the cheapest going at 30s. Several of the birds were purchased for Victoria, but the choicest specimens remain in this State. The sale of Indian runners was also a success, the bulk fetching from 6s to 10s per couple.

The hon. secretary of the Poultry Breeders' Association forwards the second annual report of his council. The year's work is succinctly told, which includes an interview with the Government relative to the adulteration of bran and pollard, efforts to mitigate the outbreak of cholera, and recommendations to the City Council for facilities for the better disposal of poultry. The following excerpt from the report will, however, be a surprise:—"It is an unfortunate fact that a combine is beginning to make itself felt in the purchase of poultry products, the wholesale and retail prices showing a disparity that indicates vast profits to the middleman."

The present week has witnessed a very great reduction in the price of eggs, which will be welcomed by householders, newlaids being now obtainable at 1s 3d per dozen, a reduction of 1s from the price of two or three weeks ago. Nor can poultry-breeders be much disconcerted, for for several months they have been getting extreme values, and were all aware that the end of July, as in previous years, would witness a fall. At the same time the reduction was greater and more sudden than anticipated, and it is quite possible there will be a recovery in price, though temporary.

Some of the country poultry societies can give points in the way of management to like city organisations. The Lismore show was held on Friday and Saturday, 9th and 10th instant; on Monday evening a committee meeting was held, when cheques were drawn for accounts and prize money, the financial statement showing that over £20 had been cleared on the show. This satisfactory conclusion was brought about by the support of the townspeople, with special prizes and voluntary labour, while even the committee's lunch was defrayed by those partaking of it.

Fourteen years ago the Victorian Poultry and Dog Society instituted a series of five-guinea special prizes or cash for several breeds of fowls, to be won three times by the same exhibitor before becoming his property. In varieties where the competition was not keen and classes small these prizes were usually won in from six to nine years, but the Leghorn trophy is still in existence. It has been competed for 13 consecutive years, and, rather than a complete win, only two exhibitors have secured it the second time. There are usually 12 classes for Leghorns, so that when an exhibitor does win a first in one of these the odds are 11 to one against him.

The Western Australian Government, like Queensland and New Zealand, have been retrenching in their poultry departments, through the industry not responding to the optimistic views of the experts. A South Australian paper commenting on the subject says: "Professor Lowrie, Director of Agriculture in Western Australia, appears to have lost little time in knocking off the ornaments and trimmings of his poultry department. The State stud stock has gone to the hammer or the pot. Lectures and junketings are a thing of the past, and the industry is left to live on its merits. Some of the people are rather sore on the subject, for they appear to ascribe the considerably reduced imports of eggs to the lectures, and, with all modesty, of course, to their own teachings. Did ever one read such rubbish, in the face of the obvious cause, viz., the recent readjustment of the proportion of producers to consumers, in a country which is quickly passing from a mining camp into a settled agricultural community. Are such people aware that tens of thousands of acres are yearly being added to the producing area of Western Australia, and, if so, cannot they appreciate the inevitable consequence. The supply of eggs is determined not by lectures and poultry papers, but by the area under cereals and the price of wheat. State farms, egg-laying competitions, records, impassioned eloquence of experts, and fervid exhortations, are just froth and nothing more. The true industry away down underneath is a far more solid proposition."

There is scarcely a country show, agricultural or otherwise, but what some enthusiast, anxious for a win, irrespective of the quality of his own stock, sends to some Sydney fancier one or more pounds for a bird of some particular breed fit to win. On the northern rivers, where there is plenty of money, this has been going on for some years, with the result is that in many fanciers', and even farm, yards there is now quality equal to anything to be had in Sydney. Notwithstanding this, there is still the hankering after Sydney quality. Prior to the late Lismore show a breeder anxious to win in his specialty, after some correspondence, sent three guineas for a Sydney winner, with the assurance that he could walk rings round anything north. On the first evening of the show the owner visited it, expecting to see the blue card on his Sydney champion, and on the way met a fellow fancier, who inquired of him how much he was going to charge him for that setting of eggs he had got from him last year. "Oh, nothing, Jack," was the reply. "Did you get any chickens from them." "Yes," was the retort; "and fair ones, too. I got first and third in a class of 11, beating your great Sydney champion, who looks lonely without a card."

The Victorian Poultry and Kennel Club forwards the schedule of the thirty-third annual show of that society, which is to be held in the Exhibition Building on August 18 and the three following days. Poultry have 245 classes, with good prize-money in each, for a 5s entry fee. There are a great number of special prizes, cups, and trophies, which would pay some of our breeders to compete for. A special prize of 21s is offered in all classes where there are ten or more entries.

At Darwen County Court, Messrs. Veever Bros. sued W. Whalley for £20. The claim was laid for damages for alleged breach of warranty. The misrepresentation relied upon was that at the time the hens were sold defendant assured plaintiffs they were all right, when as a matter of fact he knew they were suffering from disease. The defendant, in an advertisement offered for sale "One hundred head of choice poultry, mostly pullets." Plaintiff bought 39 at 2s 6d per head. A great deal of evidence was given, and the Judge said the case was a complicated one, and he had come to the conclusion that defendant did make representations which resulted in the sale, and had knowledge when he sold the hens that they were not in a sound condition, and after careful consideration found for the plaintiff, with £10 10s damage, and costs.

GRAPE-NUTS A PERFECTLY-BALANCED FOOD.

No chemist's analysis of Grape-Nuts can begin to show the real value of the food—the practical value as shown by personal experience.

It is a food that is perfectly balanced, supplies the needed elements of brain and nerves in all stages of life, from the infant, through the strenuous times of active middle life, and is a comfort and support in old age.

"For two weeks I have used Grape-Nuts with milk and a little cream, for breakfast. I am comfortably hungry for my dinner at noon.

"I use little meat, plenty of vegetables and fruit, in season, for the noon meal, and if tired at tea time, take Grape-Nuts alone and feel perfectly nourished.

Nerve and brain power, and memory are much improved since using Grape-Nuts. I am over 60, and weigh 155lb. My son and husband seeing how I had improved, are now using Grape-Nuts.

"My son, who is a travelling man, eats nothing for breakfast but Grape-Nuts and a glass of milk. An aunt, over 70, seems fully nourished on Grape-Nuts and cream."

BORDER GOLD MINING.

NEGLECTED AURIFEROUS BELT.

PROMISING LODES AWAITING DEVELOPMENT.

"Far hills are greenest," but in the case of the promising gold-reefing country surrounding the township of Delegate, on the southern border dividing New South Wales from Victoria, the view is rendered less attractive than otherwise would be the case by the mountainous nature of the surrounding country, the difficulties of access, the rigorous nature of the climate, especially during the winter months, and a feeling of isolation that does not appeal to the Sydney mining speculator.

Nevertheless, the mining operations now proceeding, though on a scale inadequate to and unworthy of the promising reefs traversing an extensive belt of auriferous country, show clearly that with the completion of the railway from Cooma to Bombala the border reefing country will receive more attention from the mining men of this State. As a matter of fact, go-ahead Victorian mining men have been attracted to the locality, with the result that Victorian capital is already in the ascendancy, and is likely to reap the largest reward. A correspondent who has just returned from a visit to the mining operations around Delegate furnishes the following interesting account of what he saw.

Within a couple of miles of the New South Wales and Victorian border, at the extreme southern end of the Monaro plateau, lies, sheltered by the surrounding mountains, the village of Delegate. Once the centre of communities of alluvial miners who reaped a rich golden harvest from the gullies, creeks, and flats of the surrounding country, the village has since progressed along steadier lines, and now shares with Bombala the distributing trade of the pastoral and other permanent producing interests of southern Monaro.

Seventy-five miles by road from the railway terminus of Cooma, and an equal distance from the nearest coastal town, Merimbula, it is not surprising that Delegate and district has slipped behind other less worthy but more favourably situated places. With a rigorous winter to face and provide against, the continual fight to subdue and render profitable some of the roughest country to be met with in the State, and the heart-breaking distances from facilities for rapid transit, this district has been forced to adopt and measure its progression by the pace of its slow-moving bullock teams. Much is expected from the encouraging fact that work on the railway extension from Cooma to Bombala is about to commence, and the completion of the line will be greeted by an appreciative people as the beginning of improved conditions and better times. The resumption of several large areas along the railway line for purposes of closer settlement is expected to guarantee the financial prospects of the railway extension, and should certainly prove in this instance the soundness of the closer settlement policy.

A short period spent in this unjustly neglected district of Delegate will dispel any preconceived prejudice, and force the conclusion that Delegate will eventually become the centre of considerable mining activity. The whole district is mineral-bearing. Gold, silver, copper and several other minerals have been found, and the general impression that the Southern Monaro is 95 per cent. scenery is in process of receiving a rude shock. At the present time, gold seems to be the main attraction, and is receiving that spasmodic attention inseparable from purely local effort. It is really surprising that, although many thousand pounds worth of gold have been won from the alluvial workings in the past, so little attention has been given to the reefs which must have been its source.

EXPERT MINING KNOWLEDGE WANTING.

Local parties are in several places opening up gold-bearing reefs, but the district has suffered severely in the past, and it is still retarded by a lamentable lack of expert mining knowledge, as well as a thorough understanding and appreciation of local geological conditions. An instance of recent local effort is to be seen just over the Victorian border, near Dellicknora. Here a Delegate syndicate sank 40ft on a promising-looking 4ft reef, an average sample from which assayed over 19dwt per ton. A parcel of ore was taken from this reef, and carted for treatment to an old and long-disused battery. When fired up the boiler burst. The syndicate seems in a similar condition.

Brown's Camp, about six miles from the supposed diamond-bearing country of Wallendibby, and about eight miles directly west of Delegate, immediately and favourably arrests the attention of the gold-seeker. The formation is of the Ordovician, or lower Silurian, system, the slates being nearly vertical. The reefs follow well-defined lines, and give great promise of permanency. More or less gold may be obtained on any part of the field. About seven years ago some spasmodic prospecting revealed a number of payable shows here. The difficulty and expense of transport and treatment caused most to be abandoned.

EFFECTS OF A BUSH FIRE.

One reef in particular, though small, was very rich. About £700 worth of gold was taken out of a few feet of workings, when a bush fire burnt out the timbering of the mine, and the homes of the miners at the same time. The facts in connection with this matter became known in Sydney, and, after inquiry and inspection, a company was formed last year, which took over the property. A recent report from this company states that "a few tons of the poorer ore have been put through, for a return of 30s to the ton." About 45 acres to the south of this property have been taken up, and a company recently formed to work the continuation of the golden vein. Crosscutting at the 60ft level is proceeding now, and, judging by the similarity of the black slates in the crosscut to that where the rich gold was won, the object of the search should be close at hand.

About a quarter of a mile west of these properties a party of local workers recently opened up a fair-sized reef, and put through several crushings for an average of 4oz to the ton. Two other parties to the east are on payable gold. A recent crushing of picked stone gave a return of 10oz to the ton. Near these shows a forfeited lease lately secured by a Sydney syndicate is to be opened up and some vigorous work done. This property is to the south of a lease from which a crushing of 5oz to the ton was recently obtained. On another lease near some very rich specimen stone may be seen.

PROMISING REEF ONCE ABANDONED.

About six miles south-east of Delegate is an old property known as the Dunlop Reef. It was opened up a few years ago, and a "faulted" part worked. This proved highly payable, and the reef was worked till blank country met the miners at each end. Without further effort, the Dunlop Reef was abandoned. A few months ago a couple of enterprising miners sank on the line of reef, found the ore body by crosscutting, and are now on gold. The reef is large, and variously estimated at from 4oz to 6oz to the ton.

The Delegate district is not the place for a poor man. All the easily-won gold has been worked out for years, and it is to the permanent dividend seeker that the district when better known will appeal. Even to the casual observer, there is evidence to justify the local confidence in the ultimate stability and permanence of the Delegate district as a gold producer.

FURIOUS DRIVING.

At the Newtown Police Court, yesterday, before Mr. Smithers, S.M., Edward Jacques, aged 22, was charged with being the driver of a horse, attached to a sulky, which he drove so furiously as to endanger the safety of the public in New Canterbury-road, Petersham.

Mr. Cromwell appeared for the defence, and pleaded not guilty.

Constable M'Intosh stated that defendant and two others were in a sulky at night time. It was nearly 11 o'clock. The accused was driving. He was under the influence of liquor. Witness was standing at the corner of two streets watching the vehicle coming towards him. They were travelling at the rate of 20 miles an hour. A man and a boy had to run to get out of the way. The horse and vehicle was swaying from one side of the road to the other. A lady was assisted on to the footpath to avoid being run over. Witness followed the vehicle, which pulled up at the Masonic Hotel, Petersham, and witness arrested the three occupants.

The defence was that the pony was going at the rate of six or seven miles an hour. It was only 12 hands high, and could not trot more than 10 miles an hour. When the constable came up he asked about the light, but said nothing about furious driving until the accused began to argue that as he had a light he would be prepared to fight the case. Then the policeman arrested the whole of the occupants on different charges.

The magistrate said he believed the evidence of the constable. These young men had been out in the sulky all the afternoon, and the poor unfortunate pony had to suffer from their conduct. Defendant was fined £2, in default imprisonment for one month.

SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY.

ROYAL COMMISSION INQUIRY.

Mr. Justice Street, Royal Commissioner to inquire into the question of a Saturday half-holiday, resumed the taking of evidence in No. 2 Jury Court yesterday.

Alderman J. P. Treadgold, Mayor of Leichhardt, was opposed to the universal Saturday half-holiday. He believed that the movement was chiefly in the hands of the juniors, who had not sufficient ballast to know what was good for them. There was not sufficient demand to warrant the change. He had come to the conclusion that it was purely a union-made movement.

Mr. Coghlan: How do you make that out?

Mr. Treadgold: Well, when I see shells I guess eggs.

Mr. Coghlan: Do you not know that I represent 3000 shopkeepers, as well as the shop assistants?

Mr. Treadgold: I don't know whom you represent.

In favour of the movement were Mrs. Maud Kenna, secretary of the Tailoresses' Union; F. Slough, grocer, Waterloo; while in opposition were C. Nolan, draper, George-street; B. Griffiths, Balmain; A. Andrews, storekeeper, Rookwood; C. S. Baylis, Kogarah; J. Kraus, Granville; H. J. Cohen, tailor, Market-street; and W. J. Hart, draper, Newtown.

A letter was read from the Parramatta Shop Assistants, stating they were unanimously in favour of the Saturday half-holiday.

John Campbell M'Dougall, Mayor of Randwick, furnishing importer, had experience in the trade since 1864, when he worked in Glasgow from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. After considerable managerial experience in London and Sydney he could state that he had never known an employee who wished to work on Saturday afternoon and evening. He had raised himself from an apprentice by having his Saturday afternoons free for study and recreation. He heartily supported the movement.

R. H. Rule, Croydon, ex-secretary of the Early Closing Association, was in favour of the proposal, particularly for health reasons. It was deplorable the number of young girls who had died as a result of late hours in shops previous to the early closing movement. The Saturday half-holiday was the natural corollary of early closing. It certainly would not adversely affect the suburban shopkeepers. In Brisbane the Churches were unanimously in favour of the holiday.

C. J. Carroll, president of the Pharmaceutical Society, put before the Commission the views of his society. He thought the innovation would bear hardly on the smaller businesses. The business of pharmaceutists was of such a nature that their present hours ought not to be interfered with.

W. Berry, managing director of the Retail Tobacconists' Association, was against the movement. If the Saturday half-holiday passed the tobacconists hoped to be exempted. Their Saturday trade was equal to the whole of the rest of the week. If the holiday became universal people would go away for weekends, and the trade of tobacconists would suffer.

H. D. B. Cox, chemist, of North Sydney, spoke for the Northern Sydney Pharmacists' Association in opposition to the half-holiday. The pharmacists would like the law to be amended so that they could close earlier in the evenings, say, at 8 o'clock. They had voluntarily agreed to close at 9 p.m., instead of at 10.30 p.m. They realised that they were always at the service of the public for dispensing and other urgent matters. The Sunday trade was, however, too general, and there was too much illegitimate trade.

Joseph Jackson, fancy goods merchant, was prepared to accept the holiday. What he lost one way he would gain in another. But tobacconists and others should also be brought under the Act.

J. G. Moon, draper, William-street, was opposed to the holiday, as such movements as early closing had the tendency to drive trade to the metropolis. He employed three times as many hands before early closing as he did now. His trade had fallen off 50 per cent.

THE UNIONIST'S TUESDAY NIGHT.

AFTER THE LODGE.

WHAT IS AN HABITUAL DRUNKARD?

"He was waving his hands and rushing at the trams, and crying out, 'Lord Kitchener and Pole Carew are men, and Togo swept the Czar off the face of the globe.' He was very excited, your Worship."

The above was the evidence of Constable Winter, who arrested John Waddington, aged 54, at Marrickville last Tuesday night, and charged him with being an habitual drunkard found behaving in a riotous manner.

Waddington, who is a prominent unionist, appeared to answer the charge yesterday at the Newtown Police Court, before Mr. Smithers, S.M.

The accused (to Constable Winter): Now, don't you know that when you arrested me you ought not to have been there at all? You ought to have been at the other end of your beat? (Laughter.) Now, weren't you sent to catch me because it was Tuesday night, and at a time when you ought to have been somewhere else? (Laughter.)

The constable did not answer.

The accused (to the magistrate): Will your Worship define what an habitual drunkard is? The constable says I am an habitual drunkard. He does not know what he is talking about. I admit that I have been convicted of drunkenness, but I never lost a day's work in my life through drink, and, as my wife has stated in evidence, I am never out at night except on every other Tuesday evening at the lodge, and every time I have been arrested it was on a Tuesday night. The police know the lodge night, and they wait for me. They say, "Now, Waddington, get home." I answer, "That is my business," and they run me in. They often practice ju-jitsu on me, and yet I never struck a constable in my life, and not one of the police ever saw me stagger. I have been for 33 years a carpenter in this city, have held every office in the Carpenters and Joiners' Society, and I attend the meetings of that body every other Tuesday as regular as clock work. I am always at work, and I never leave my own home except to go to the Carpenters' Society, and yet they call me an habitual drunkard. (Laughter.) Well, your Worship, I read something in the paper about a bill for inebriates this morning, but, thank God, I have not reached that stage yet. (Laughter.)

The magistrate: No, I don't think you have, but you have been convicted of drunkenness 13 times in two years—four times within the last few months.

The accused: Well, if your Worship will look at the date of each conviction you will find it happened on a Tuesday night. (Laughter.) Why, it's a standing joke in the society to know if Waddington got home safely from the last meeting. (Laughter.)

The secretary of the Carpenters' Society, Mr. John Corbett, gave evidence that the accused was a very hard-working man, and for 33 years he had been a member of the Carpenters' Society, in which body he had held every office available. It was a joke at the meetings as to whether Waddington did get home from the previous meeting without coming across a policeman. (Laughter.) He certainly was not an habitual drunkard.

Mrs. Waddington gave evidence that her husband always spent his evenings at home, except on lodge nights. He was a hard-working man, and a good husband. He was very fond of reading.

The magistrate: I don't think, Waddington, you get any drink in the lodge, as you call it. It is afterwards. However, it was hardly right for the police to have put the charge of habitual drunkenness against this man. There might have been riotous conduct on this occasion. I believe there was, and I order him to be imprisoned in the police cells until 6 p.m.

MESSENGERS AND ATTENDANTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Having read with great interest letters appearing under this heading in your papers of the last few days, I wish to add my little bit in the hope that the great evil which exists in the general division of the State Public service may be remedied. The Public Service Board must admit that the officers of the general division are, with few exceptions, under-paid. If a messenger enters the service at the age of 14 years at a salary of £26 per annum, after about 19 years' good and meritorious service he receives the large sum of £140 per annum, being then 33 years of age. This in itself is not a very good advertisement for any Government, and may be the means of parents thinking rather seriously before they allow their sons to enter into the service in the general division. In my case I might state that I have done fairly well, in comparison to others, having only 6½ years' service and receiving £85 10s per annum; but this is only a mere existence, and not a very bright prospect for anyone. As far as a messenger ever thinking of marrying, there is very little chance under the present conditions, and to do so would only bring misery not only to himself but to his wife and children. Again, the Government is crying out about the small population, and are advancing their immigration policy. Let them pay their officers a living wage, the same as they compel all other employers to do, and give them a chance of marrying and increasing the population of the country. In yesterday's paper a Judge referred to the miserable pittances paid to postal officials, and he had contempt for a department which paid such small salaries. The same might well be said in regard to the general division of the State Public service.

I am, etc., JUNIOR MESSENGER.

STREET OR LANE?

WIDTH OF FRONTAGE STREETS.

INTERESTING POINT RAISED.

An interesting point under the Width of Streets and Lanes Act was raised in the Equity Court yesterday, in a case, Rich v Miles.

Dr. Cullen, K.C., and Mr. Harvey, instructed by Messrs. Villeneuve Smith and Dawes, appeared for the plaintiff, George Edward Rich; and Mr. Mann, instructed by Messrs. Holdsworth and Son, for the defendant, William John Miles. This was an originating summons having reference to a contract for the sale of certain land at Warrawee, of an area of 7 acres 29½ perches. It appeared that the defendant, on April 27 last, agreed to purchase the land referred to. It was known as the laundry block, and had a frontage to Warrawee-avenue. In the examination of the title it was discovered that Warrawee-avenue was not 66ft wide, and could not be treated as a frontage road; also that the land was not shown as having a frontage to that thoroughfare. It was suggested to the vendor that he should have Warrawee-avenue shown on the certificate, and it was also pointed out that it should have been disclosed to the buyer during the negotiations that Warrawee-avenue could not be treated as a frontage road unless it was widened to 66ft. The effect of it was, so it was stated, that the owner for the time being of the land would be unable to subdivide into lots having frontages to Warrawee-avenue alone, as the Registrar-General would not recognise a plan of subdivision in that manner or issue certificates of title to the purchasers of such lots. The plaintiff said there would be no difficulty, if the buyer desired it to be done, in getting the certificate amended by showing the road, though he submitted it was not the vendor's concern. On the question of the width of Warrawee-avenue, the defendant, in a letter from his solicitor to the plaintiff's solicitor, suggested that the objection respecting it could only be got rid of by the plaintiff giving up sufficient of his land to make Warrawee-avenue of the width of 66ft, and dedicating it as a road, and to do this plaintiff would have to adequately compensate the defendant for the loss of such land. Plaintiff's answer was that he had not contracted that Warrawee-avenue was a frontage road within the meaning of the Building Acts. An interview subsequently was held between the parties and their solicitors, at which it was stated that the defendant, as buyer, claimed £150 as compensation, as he would not be able to build within 3ft of the avenue, inasmuch as that avenue was not of the full width of a street as defined in the width of Streets and Lanes Act of 1902. Plaintiff declined to allow the £150 asked for. Proceedings were afterwards taken by way of originating summons, the questions to be determined on behalf of the plaintiff being:—(1) Whether the defendant is entitled under the contract to compel the plaintiff to have his certificate of title amended so as to show thereon a frontage to Warrawee-avenue; (2) whether the said contract contains any representation that Warrawee-avenue is a street of the width of 66ft, and is, therefore, entitled to be treated as a frontage street within the meaning of the Width of Streets and Lanes Act, 1902; (3) whether the contract contains such a misdescription of the property sold as will entitle the defendant to compensation in accordance with the third clause of Richardson and Wrench's conditions embodied in the said contract; (4) whether upon the proper construction of the Width of Streets and Lanes Act, 1902, a dwelling-house may be built fronting Warrawee-avenue at a distance of 33ft from the centre of the said Warrawee-avenue, or whether such dwelling-house must be built at a distance of 25ft from the nearest side of the said Warrawee-avenue?

Defendant, in his affidavit in answer, submitted to the Court the following questions:—(1) Whether or not the plaintiff, under the circumstances represented that the said laundry premises had a road frontage having all the usual incidents of a road frontage to Warrawee-avenue; (3) whether or not the plaintiff has shown sufficient title to such road frontage to Warrawee-avenue to entitle him to maintain specific performance of the contract; (2) whether or not the plaintiff sold the laundry property so enclosed within fences as in this affidavit mentioned as a block; (4) whether or not the plaintiff has shown title to the whole of the said block of land; (5) whether under all the circumstances the plaintiff is entitled to specific performance of the contract at all or with or without compensation?

The case stands part heard.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. Justice Pring's remarks, as reported by you under the above heading, are worthy of serious attention, and it is to be hoped that they will bear fruit in the Diocese of Sydney. The service at Wagga which his Honor praises so highly—a Low Mass according to the Anglican rite, with general communion and also non-communicating worshippers—is of a type very common in England, almost universal in South Africa, and frequently met with in many parts of Australia. It is, in fact, the Sunday service contemplated by the framers of the Book of Common Prayer. In Sydney, however, only two Anglican parish churches adopt it as the regular Sunday service, while slightly lengthening it by the addition of music and a very brief sermon. It is significant the two Sydney churches which do adopt this type of service are never compelled to complain of the absence of men from their Sunday congregations. Experience shows that men are ready enough to go to church when, instead of being offered only the mediaeval monastic office of Mattins, followed by a sermon, they are afforded the privilege of joining in worship at the truly Evangelical service of the Sacrifice of the Altar. I am, etc., I. P.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I write to support the Judge's admirable plea for the general adoption of that division of Church of England services which is already practised in some parishes. There are three such services, each of which contains within itself the most of what is needful for the worship of a congregation, and each of which would by itself be quite long enough. The Judge recalls the time when it was the custom to keep long-suffering congregations until all three were gone through consecutively. It is still in most churches the custom to join two of them, and this has sometimes led to a practice of hurrying to get through in time, which is destructive of all intelligence, reverence, and reality. Who, for instance, can follow the breakneck pace at which the tremendous truths of the creed are sometimes rushed through? Can we wonder that those who wish to worship are repelled from our churches. Another cause of the slackness of church attendance is, as Dr. Chapman recently pointed out in his addresses to ministers, the character of our Church music. For one thing, the instrumental accompaniments are sometimes too loud; so loud sometimes that they drown the words, and it is impossible to tell what is being sung or said; and for another, the conventional character of Church music is too monotonous to attract the average churchgoer; you need hymns with choruses; you need something sufficiently varied, both in time and note, to thrill the pulses and to stir the heart. I am, etc.,

TUNNEL VERSUS BRIDGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I am much pleased that Mr. W. P. Mace has at last given us one instance of the advantage which tunnels have over the bridge, namely, that they "can be built one at a time." Of course nobody ever questioned such a thing, and it does not in the slightest way affect the ultimate matter of issue, which is: How can the accommodation which the Government some years ago determined was necessary for crossing the harbour best be provided? We do not want arguments to convince us that a tunnel with 16ft of roadway would be cheaper than a bridge having a road 36ft between the kerbs; we want a comparison between things that are comparable.

As Mr. Mace says he has now "done with the controversy," and asks me for "solid reasons for differing," etc., I will, with your permission, now repeat them in short. They are because:—

1. The Advisory Board's bridge would cost less than tunnels to provide for the same amount of traffic (see Royal Commission report and Bridge League criticism).
2. The bridge route is much the shorter (1½ mile by rail), and thus the fares should be less than by the under water route.
3. The bridge gradients are better, and would, leaving humanity out of the question, be more merciful to horses.
4. The time occupied in crossing would be less by the bridge, and if a horse fell the whole traffic would not be blocked, as in a tube.
5. The sunlight and fresh air of heaven to be found on the bridge would be better for both the health and tempers of passengers than the vitiated atmosphere of the tubes. And lastly,
6. Considering the frequent breakdowns of the electric service, most people would prefer their car to be blocked on the deck of a bridge 120ft wide than be stuck fast under the centre of the harbour in a tightly-fitting tube.

I am, etc., HUGH DUFF, Hon. Secretary, Sydney and North Shore Bridge League.

HOMEBUSH ABATTOIRS.

THE QUESTION OF CONTROL.

The question of the control and management of the abattoirs to be erected at Homebush was raised yesterday by a deputation, representing 35 suburban municipalities, which waited upon the Premier. Want of confidence in control by the City Council was directly expressed, and the view was put that if the abattoirs are not to be managed by the Government they should be handed over to a board, constituted on lines somewhat similar to the Water and Sewerage Board.

Alderman Treadgold (Mayor of Leichhardt) pointed out that the suburban councils represented more than two-thirds of the residents in the metropolitan area, and had stronger claims to a voice in the control of the abattoirs than the City Council; quite apart from the fact that the abattoirs would be well outside the city boundaries. He claimed that management by a representative body would be far more satisfactory than management by the City Council. This was endorsed by Alderman Wells (Mayor of Annandale), Alderman Cole (Mayor of Glebe), Alderman Mackay (Mayor of Enfield), Alderman Shepherd (ex-Mayor of Concord), and Alderman Morgan (Mayor of Newtown).

A compliment to management by the Board of Health was paid by Alderman Mackay, who had practical knowledge of the subject, and in this he claimed to speak on behalf of the trade. The Flemington sale yards, he said, were badly constructed, causing considerable loss through the bruising of cattle. Management by the City Council seemed to resolve itself solely into an attempt to make a profit out of it. Alderman Mackay condemned the Homebush site on the ground that not many years hence there would be a repetition in that particular locality of the cattle-driving nuisance which had so long been a source of complaint at the Glebe. He further expressed the opinion that the Homebush site was not a suitable one, because it was on the verge of a swamp. In the opinion of Alderman Morgan management of the sale yards at Flemington was a monument of administrative muddling.

The Premier, in reply, said the deputation could scarcely expect him to do more than make a promise to give every consideration to the views expressed by the deputation, when the time came for dealing with the question of management. The first thing was to build the abattoirs. For over five years the matter had engaged public attention, but it was not until two and a half years ago that a practical start was made. There had been no undue delay so far as the present Government was concerned, but in all matters involving large expenditure, the Government was bound by financial possibilities. The Railway Commissioner wanted four millions, and there were large claims in other directions. Many undertakings of a highly desirable kind had to wait until money was available. The Government was anxious to have the Homebush buildings erected as soon as possible, but some time must necessarily elapse before they were available for public use. Until then the question of control was an open one.

Mr. Henley, M.L.A., accompanied the deputation, and expressed himself as heartily in sympathy with the representations made.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The replies to two deputations which have waited on the Government to make representations on the question of removal of the sale yards nearer the proposed abattoir site clearly indicate that the Government has made up its mind to allow the question to stand as it is at present, viz., that the sale yards remain in the hands of the City Council; and the ultimate control of the abattoirs is more or less an open question. Still, it is within my own knowledge that the City Council has a promise "that when completed the abattoirs will be handed over to it."

The Government of the day offered the City Council the present Glebe Island abattoirs, and the City Council was quite willing to take them, provided certain guarantees and a free hand were given it; but both haggled over details, and negotiations ended—which was bad for both sides.

One of the chief objections raised on the part of the Government to the present agitation for the removal of the sale yards is "that at the time of the Parliamentary inquiry no question as to their suitability was put forward." This is quite true, and may appear a sound objection; but the struggle to retain the abattoirs where they stand, "a nuisance and a disgrace," and for their removal anywhere, was so keen—vested interests, as they do now, cropping up everywhere—that the question of the sale yards was quite lost sight of. Since then other questions and circumstances have arisen to which I need not refer, and those most interested, who raise stock for their living, and those who represent them as selling agents—and they are the best judges—assert, first, that the present saleyards do not suit requirements; and, secondly, that they never can be made to suit them. Now, the business aspect is that those who cater for their customers should set themselves to accommodate the wishes and requirements of their clients. The question is: Does the City Council do this? The answer is: If we are to believe what is most strenuously asserted, they do not, nor ever have done so. The City Council have now decided, when this outcry is raised, to spend £30,000 on the yards, which the users of those yards declare is thrown away, and is only done by the council at the point of the bayonet.

A deputation some months since waited on Mr. Lee, Minister for Works, and after hearing their objections he decided to stay his hand, saying: "He did not want to commit a blunder." This, in my opinion, was sound judgment. Still, I maintain now, as I did before the Public Works Committee, that a great and costly blunder in centralising this industry at Homebush is about to be undertaken. The cost will be enormous, as pointed out in your columns, running into quite a million. The cost of working will be out of all reason. That extra cost, in the case of meat for our consumption, can be easily passed on to us consumers, but for export the man on the land must pay to the last farthing, and, I maintain, he is the least able to bear it. Yet, strange as it may appear, no steps are taken to protect his interest. To quote from your issue of July 26, 1906 (now three years since), speaking of the removal of the abattoirs: "If the removal is carried out the producers will be called upon to pay the piper. They must, therefore, look to the export of produce to hold up their market." And, further, "Many points in the correspondence concerning the abattoirs should go to convince pastoralists and farmers that if they are to be protected at the Sydney end they must take up their own course, and that without delay." This, in my opinion also, was sound businesslike advice, but I ask: Have any steps been taken? I am, etc.,

HENRY DALY,
late hon. secretary Abattoir Removal League, July 30.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In reply to the deputation to the Minister for Works in re the above, reported in the issue of your paper of 30th inst. the Minister for Works is reported to have said:—

"If there is any strength in your contention you ought to have seen it in 1902, when the question was being investigated by the only tribunal that could investigate it."

May I ask a pertinent question? Did Mr. Lee or anybody else foresee the wonderful changes that would come about by the Closer Settlement Act? This is the crux of the whole question. In 1902 our consignors were perhaps 40, whereas to-day they number 200 in the one market. I repeat what I, as representative of the Stockowners' Association said at the deputation to the Premier—let the Government give the producers the lease of the land on the north side of the Parramatta-road for a long term and it will quickly be demonstrated whether the stockowners of New South Wales consider it necessary to have the yards within the abattoir area.

July 30. I am, etc., JOHN M. ATKINSON.

CITY CORONER'S COURT.

POISONED BY OPIUM.

Mr. H. S. Hawkins, P.M., held an inquest yesterday regarding the death of Charlie Lean Fore, aged 42, lately manager of the "Tung Wah Times," and a resident of Mary-street, Surry Hills, who died last Monday morning at his residence. Lean Young, brother of deceased, said Lean Fore was a heavy opium-smoker. In a letter left by deceased for witness, the writer had stated it was his intention to kill himself. Dr. Luker, who attended Lean Fore, stated that on his arrival deceased was in a dying state. In witness' opinion, opium poisoning was the cause of death. On three occasions within the past five years witness had treated deceased for over-indulgence in opium. The coroner returned a verdict of suicide.

KICKED BY HORSES.

The coroner also held inquests touching the deaths of George Richard Hatfield, aged 3, and Horace Roy Cornwell, aged 6, who died as the result of being kicked by horses. In the former case it was stated that the child was kicked in the face by a pony at his home at Thornleigh on the 9th inst. His skull was fractured, and he died in Prince Alfred Hospital on July 26. In the second case the lad was returning from school to his home in Alice-street, Newtown, on the 21st inst., and was kicked in the stomach by a horse, which he struck with a stick as it was being led along Laura-street. He died in Prince Alfred Hospital on July 29 from rupture of the spleen. The coroner found that death was accidental in each case.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

IMPRESSIONS OUTBACK.

In the old pioneering sense of the term, there is little, if any, "outback" left now. Times have altered since the days when a mail came to the station about once in six months, and you could ride halfway across the whole State without striking a fence, and railways were unknown. But, after all, it is a matter of comparison, and on that basis you can get plenty of outback after leaving the railways in the west. Outback, that is, in a modern sense, but almost suburban in the eyes of an oldtimer, who, finding he could hardly travel a day without meeting people and houses, and cramped and cribbed with fences all round him, would be prone to complain bitterly of the oppressive advance of civilisation. But it is quite outback enough for the settlers living there, when they find themselves 50 miles and more from the nearest railway or town, and their neighbours few and far between. So they call it outback, although some of the old hands would rightly snort with disgust at the term. Yet, although almost every acre is fenced in and the marks of mankind are apparent on every side, in some ways this country is outback enough to be of interest to the stranger wandering through it for the first time. It is a big stretch of country this West of ours, and while as time goes on the advance of the railway and settlement will naturally come, a large part of it will always be a land of great spaces. And the people out there are fighting perpetually for railways, at least to the outposts. Such an outpost is Hillston, on the Lachlan River, and these are a few impressions of a drive of over two hundred miles out there, leaving the railway at Carrathool.

Carrathool is a long way out from Sydney, and one of those many country towns whose surroundings cause wonder as to their existence. There is little settlement about the township, the country being held in big areas, for which, indeed, it is best fitted, for a roll of plain stretches out around it, fine pastoral country in good season, and, for that matter, better than many in a bad, but unsuitable for agriculture and the small settler. Some day it will perhaps lie between big belts of irrigation country, but that is looking ahead. From the township the track stretches away to the back country past Hillston, and it is the supply terminus for many stations in that part as well as for the produce coming in. We left Carrathool, taking the stock route for Hillston, the road generally used for traffic, and for some 24 miles plugged drearily across monotonous blacksoil plains over heavy roads. The country looked beautiful, for the season is one of the best, and rich, broad splashes of green met the horizon on all sides. Through it ran the deep-cut tracks of the traffic; bullock teams making out with shearing supplies, later on to come back loaded with wool. Away out past Hillston plod these "bullockies," 150 miles and more, travelling in couples, so that when a team is bogged the bullocks of the other waggon can be hitched on to help. And sometimes the traveling is like that for miles, double-banking the whole way.

We camped about 16 miles out for lunch, at the Dry Lake. The name is one of the cynical mysteries of the bush. They say that in the old days there was an hotel on this spot, that did a roaring trade. All the carting and traffic for the country on the other side of the Lachlan came that way over, and sometimes seventy teams might be camped there for the night. One could easily imagine that there were some merry nights passed on Dry Lake, and a fine sight those 70 camp-fires would have been, while the sulphurous wit and repartee of seventy oldtime "bullockies" would have been an experience interesting if not edifying. The ore from the Mount Hope copper mine was carried down this track in those days, but the railway to Condobolin ended that. At present Dry Lake is simply a changing stage for the Hillston coach, which makes a dreary trip through in the night. A paddock has been fenced in on the stock route, and the lessee has to accommodate traveller's horses at a fixed price—one shilling—for the night. It is a rather favourite stock route this one to Hillston, for the shire council has provided good watering places at stages right through, and that is a valuable attribute in the dry country. The coach proprietor has a man in charge at Dry Lake, and he fixed us up with a billy of hot tea. Squatting in the open, alongside the buggy, with the plain sweeping away on every side out of sight, broken by a little timber and the hut and stables, 450 miles from Sydney, we sat and yarned about—poultry raising. The environment suggested a lot of things not quite so prosaic, but there was a crowd of likely looking birds around the stable, and the owner casually bewailed the fact that they were eating well but not laying. We had heard something the same from many suburbanites, so the common domestic hen proved on this occasion the little "touch of nature." Of course, other matters cropped up—the time it takes some drovers to get along the stock route when there is good feed, the prevalence of foxes, the temporary scarcity of rabbits, and, of course, the cricketers in England, for most of the men way back follow the "tests" as closely as the keenest city sport, and, more, most of them play the game as well.

Some 20 odd miles from Carrathool we came into quite a different type of country, a country of red soil and well timbered with the many attractive trees and shrubs that are common to the west. Belar, yarran, wilga, bulloak, butter, and currant bush, with clumps of box and pine through nearly all of it. A great deal of the pine was dead, killed in the great drought, and the same bad time had left its grim traces in many places, and particularly in the heart of the settlers, men and women. In such times this part is truly cut back and lonely, and little wonder the people want a railway. But at present the country is sweet and green and pleasant to the eye, with its rich pastures and many shades of green amongst the timber, from the rich vivid pines to the silvery gray of the wilga. The bird life was not notable for much variety, thanks to wholesale rabbit poisoning; but there were plenty of galahs and parrots; while the ubiquitous crows were in evidence. We passed a couple of emus on the track, and some native companions, although both these national features have suffered enormously from the inroads of settlement. In their places is an importation from the other side of the water which we could well have done without, although there are different opinions concerning the fox in the back country, and it is easy to get up an argument as to whether he is a friend or an enemy. We saw several of them slinking through the paddocks and it is only a matter of time, unless repressive methods are actively adopted, when they will be as numerous as the wild dogs were in the old days, and worse. The great national pest, the rabbit, strange to say, was comparatively scarce, although in such a large tract of poorly settled country it might have been expected that the pest would have been present in thousands. It is not easy to account for its present diminution, but there are sill quite enough about to destroy any hope that such a welcome absence will be permanent.

Working in towards Hillston, a peculiarly local characteristic, as far as we know, was the great number of fences of the type generally known as pig-proof, such as are found about many of the old station homesteads in the earlier settled parts, being built of rough palings or slabs, stuck endways in the ground and held together by fencing wire. They represent a lot of hard, solid work. It is said that they were built for protection against the rabbits, as the holders could not afford the heavy expense of netting. They did not appear effective for such a purpose, but, whatever the cause, these fences alone are a testimony of the grit and capacity for hard work of these men, who keep working out in the forefront of settlement, and ever "blazing the trail." Another characteristic the writer noticed in visiting different settlers' homes was the ubiquitous tennis court. There was hardly a home without its "chip" court, and although the surface would not suit our champions perhaps, they are the scenes of many jolly hours. The same thing is noticeable throughout a great part of this State, particularly the drier parts, and it would really seem as if tennis is the national game as far as the bush is concerned. A great advantage is that it affords enjoyment for both sexes, and there is not much trouble in getting up a "four." It is a pleasing feature. As we have stated, this trip was made when the country was green and beautiful, and with such a climate life in the west might seem all that is desirable. But there is another side.

THE WOOL TRADE.

A FAIRLY ACTIVE MARKET.

As the new selling season approaches so the depressing feeling, that was so prevalent a few weeks ago, is wearing off. A fairly active market has been experienced during the week for wools of good combing length. Business is practically confined to local scoureds and skin wools. The new clip wool now coming into store is being held for the auctions arranged for August 16, 17, and 18 next. Most of the business is passing on French and German account; the Continent taking the bulk of the skin wools offering at current rates. In the absence of wools suitable for American requirements there is nothing moving in that direction; and very little inquiry from Yorkshire and Japan. The local scouring and fellmongery establishments have been more actively employed this winter than for a long while previously on good skins. In previous seasons, when business has been brisk, a large proportion of the skins have come from sheep forced into the market through stress of dry weather and bare pastures. It is not so at the present time; and as a result there is a larger proportion of sound and well-grown wool to be treated at the fellmongery works. There is a percentage, however, of short and inferior, and while the best lines of skin wools are selling well, medium and inferior grades are not in such good request. However, there is now a more general demand, and, while values are no higher, there is a better tone, and business is easier to transact. The real test of the market will come a fortnight hence, when the first fair instalment of the current season's New South Wales clip will be catalogued. Shearing is proceeding uninterruptedly in the west and north-west of this State, and early consignments are coming freely to the seaboard. That is, freely for so early in the season. There is greater inducement for pastoralists to meet the market earlier this season than last; for, in spite of the uncalled-for depressing tone of the early part of this month, there are indications that there will be a strong demand at firm values when the public sales are held next month. The manufacturing side has been mopping up the stocks during the "off selling" season, and with America promising to come to the Australian markets for a larger quantity than last season, the outlook for the growing and selling side of the trade is a decidedly promising one. It must not be forgotten that America was a big factor in restoring confidence and firming values last season, and that, according to admitted American authorities, close on 300,000,000lb weight of wool are likely to be imported into the United States during the currency of the present season.

CAPTURING NORTH-WESTERN CLIPS.

Two matters of importance to the Sydney trade concerning the clips grown in the north-western portions of this State have reached a satisfactory stage this week. One of the two subjects was the agreement arrived at between the New South Wales and Queensland authorities with regard to the rates for wool from the present nearest border stations to Sydney on the one hand and to Brisbane on the other. It will be remembered that when the Goondiwindi branch to Warwick line was opened several speakers made no secret of the fact that it was meant and destined to be a strategic line to be used to capture New South Wales stock and produce—especially wool—for sale in Brisbane. Subsequent events pointed to the hopes of the northern traders being realised. Hence the conference in February last between the State Premier and Commissioner for Railways on the one side and the Queensland Premier and Railway Commissioner on the other. In the absence of an interstate commission, this conference was held to deal with the border rates. A basis of settlement was arrived at. The New South Wales side drafted an agreement to be signed by the Queensland authorities. This has been accomplished and the terms of the agreement are to become operative on and after October 1 next. The other subject that really is a correlative of the foregoing, was the report to the New South Wales Parliament this week by the Public Works Committee of its inquiry into the proposed extension of the Moree railway line to Mungindi. The proposed extension was unhesitatingly recommended, with some modifications as to the route that the line shall take between the present and future terminus of the line. With fair rates on each side of the border, and railway stations in somewhat close proximity the federal spirit is not likely to be quenched—such as it was in danger of being, by what practically amounted to differential rates in favour of the northern side.

DON'T STOP THE DRAFT.

Last Wednesday's cable from London referring to the draft allowance on wool was precisely what might have been expected. It seems that the London side of the trade was invited by the London Chamber of Commerce to consider proposals to be submitted, concerning the disallowance of the 1lb per cwt draft on wool, for discussion at the congress of Chambers of Commerce in Sydney in September next. Four or five years have elapsed since a request went forward to London for the matter to be opened against the continuance of an obsolete and unfair custom, and the London side of the trade was in precisely the same mood as it was at that time. If four to five hundred years passed and nothing was done on this side in the meantime the descendants of these gentlemen would be in an identical frame of mind. They object to the discontinuance of a rule that is so favourable to buyers and so unfavourable to growers. Their argument, that the stoppage of draft gift would be likely to lead to friction and increased claims for short weight, is not a very good one. Seemingly it is the best that can be found. There may be some friction. That is quite possible, and the change may lead to "increased claims for short weight." In all reform there is a certain amount of friction engendered, and sometimes a little unpleasantness. It is all inseparable from every progressive move where one side is favoured at the expense of the other. So to attempt to stay the march on that account is hopeless. The other side of the argument by the London brokers and buyers, that the stoppage of the draft may "lead to increased claims for short weight," is even more untenable. "Increased claims" there may be, but how unlikely the claims are to have any real ground for action is shown by the present system. The wool is grown in a dry atmosphere; it is weighed upon accurate machines by sworn weighers within 48 hours of the wool going into store. There is greater humidity in the stores on the seaboard than on the pastures and in the shearing sheds in the country. The wool almost invariably gains in weight by the time of sale, yet the buyer obtains the wool at per pound on the weight at time of entire into store, and not on the weight at time of sale. If there is any excess of weight it is thrown in, like the draft of 1lb per cwt; if, however, there is a shortage by any cause whatsoever the claim is made and the deficiency made good. Without the draft the buyer is safeguarded at every point, and the tendency is for the weight to be in his favour. Under these circumstances there can be no just ground why the draft allowance should not be stopped without further ado.

ACT PROMPTLY.

The reasonableness of the proposal to stop the draft is admitted on all sides by growers and sellers in Australia; the only point that needs to be settled is, the time for making the new departure. Growers would undoubtedly like the step to be taken right straight-away; while some brokers are evidently inclined to defer taking such a step during the currency of the 1909-10 season. It seems that efforts are being made to secure interstate unanimity. This is indeed desirable, and it is unlikely that the selling houses in the other States can do other than fall into line with the proposal from Sydney. Surely, then, some definite step can be taken in the matter; either to stop the draft allowance in all interstate centres, as from the opening of the Adelaide sales and the first of the weekly series in Sydney on September 27, and Melbourne, October 4, next, or pass a resolution, without delay, that on and after July 1, 1910, the old time allowance of 1lb per cwt draft allowance will be discontinued. Such a course taken by the selling brokers, even upon the conservative lines of stopping the gift next season, would show that they meant business in the interests of their clients, the growers. It is a trade matter, and the trade can settle it without the intervention of any outside body whatsoever. The selling brokers determine the terms and conditions under which wool shall be sold by them, and it is for them to act promptly without fear and without favour.

BRADFORD TOPS.

According to our cable message of yesterday's date, Bradford top quotations were unchanged, but low crossbreds were neglected and weak. On the corresponding date last year, business was reported to be at a standstill. There was a strong move made to discount the improvement in wool values. Wool tops were quoted ½d per lb all round. Looking back a further twelvemonth, the demand at that time was inactive, and quotations were unchanged. Prices were at a high range. 64's, super 60's and common 60's were ruling at 29d, 28d, and 27d respectively, while 46's and 40's (medium and coarse crossbred tops) were 17½d and 16½d per lb respectively. How those prices compare with to-day and 12 months ago may be seen by our usual table as follows:—

Touching on the buoyancy at the English wool fairs last month, and how Bradford was looking more for depression than any factor that would tend to help wool values, the "Observer" of June 18 last remarked that the market was by no means inclined to set too much store by the reports of the country sales. After all, the actual quantity changing hands at such sales was relatively very small, and the general attitude of the trade here sceptical. Spinners, at any rate, are not rushing for material, and are very careful about placing buying orders. Apart, therefore, from any American buying and the ill-informed exuberance of local dealers, there does not appear to be much support for further outbursts, such as took place at Market Harborough. In this market values are unchanged. Indeed, as regards both merino and crossbreds, the tendency is, if anything, rather in favour of buyers.

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

During the past six week-days 3683 bales of wool were received by rail, and 1449 bales by boat, as compared with 1500 bales by rail, and 1629 bales by boat, for the corresponding week last year. The comparative receipts by rail and boat for the two seasons from July 1 to July 30 are as follow:—

By rail—	Bales.
At Darling Harbour railway station, from July 1, 1909, to July 30 last	7,659
Corresponding period last season	5,246
Increase	2,413
By sea—
From July 1, 1909, to June 30 last	7,295
Increase	385
Total seaboard receipts for season to date	14,954

WOOL SHIPMENTS.

Shipments of wool continue on a light scale. At the corresponding period last season holdover wool from the previous season was going forward in fair volume; whereas at the present time the principal wools shipped are the output from the local fellmongering works. These supplies, however, are heavier than usual at this time of the year. Since last review, four vessels have cleared, with an aggregate of 4092 bales, making an approximate total of 18,775 bales since the opening of the current statistical year.

The shipments and transhipments are as follow:—

	Bales.
Orange Branch, July 23, for London	2,454
Orontes, July 24, for London	394
Commonwealth, July 27, for London	236
Perthshire, July 28, for London and Dunkirk	998
Total since last review	4,092
Total from Sydney since July 1, 1909	18,775
Corresponding period last season	25,323
Decrease for current season, to date	6,548

TONDEBURINE ESTATE.

The subdivision sale of portion of the Tondeburine estate is announced by Messrs. Hain and Searight, of Sydney, to take place at Gilgandra on Sept. 15. Some 14,000 acres are to be disposed of, in six farms, ranging in size from about 1400 to 2200 acres. The rainfall of 25 inches per annum is largely influenced by the Warrumbungle mountains, under which Tondeburine is situated, while the soil is considered equal to any in the district. Tondeburine has been in possession of the Brown family for upwards of 72 years, and has established a great reputation both for its wool-growing and fattening capabilities. The Gilgandra district has come into favourable prominence as a wheat-growing centre, and this sale should offer an opportunity to farmers of securing good mixed farming lands on liberal terms, viz., 20 per cent. cash deposit, no further payments for two years, and the balance extending over 11 equal annual instalments.

LAND RESUMPTION AND VALUATIONS.

Mr. W. J. Hyland writes:—"Speaking in the Legislative Assembly on the proposal of the Minister for Lands that the House should approve an average price of £2 2s per acre being paid for a specified portion of Mungery Estate, Mr. M'Gowen is reported by the 'Sydney Morning Herald' to have said: 'Estates had been assessed by the owners for land tax purposes, and had afterwards been resumed by the Government at something like 100 per cent. increase on the assessment for land tax purposes. His idea was to resume these lands at the owner's valuation, plus 10 per cent.' If I remember correctly, this is not the first time Mr. M'Gowen has given expression to this idea; hence my desire to draw attention to it. We can hardly assume that Mr. M'Gowen is ignorant of the fact that the assessed value by owners for land tax purposes is the unimproved value, and that if the Government did resume at 100 per cent. above that value, it probably did so at a very just valuation, having regard to the fact that the land was being resumed in its improved state. Has Mr. M'Gowen no sense of what is just and honest? If a man is the legal owner of an estate the unimproved value of which has been assessed for land tax purposes at, say, £10,000, according to Mr. M'Gowen £11,000 would be a fair price to resume at, although the owner may have laid out on this land another £10,000 in improvements, making the property worth £20,000. Is it any wonder that the thinking public view with alarm the possibility of government by the Labour party, when its responsible leader gives expression to ideas which, if carried out, could only be justly described as loot?"

TECHNICAL COLLEGE EXAMINATIONS

SHEEP AND WOOL CLASSES.

The annual examinations in connection with the sheep and wool training department at the Technical College took place in July, when the sheep-judging was conducted under the auspices of the New South Wales Sheepbreeders' Association. Students from the Technical College, Sydney, and country classes presented themselves for practical sheep-judging by points. The examiners were Messrs. Tully and Hawkesworth, with the following results:—R. Wignell, Albury, 1; T. H. Molonglo, 2; G. J. Burns, Burrowa, 3.

WOOLCLASSING.

After all students had been subjected to preliminary and qualifying examinations in April and June, there were 27 successful, who were candidates for the final examination at the end of July. Twenty passed. The examination extended over four days—three practical and one theoretical, which included table work from opening fleeces to the advanced stages of the wool trade, viz., estimating clean yields and types. Ten per cent. of the successful students were from the country, and closely connected with the pastoral industry. Results:—E. Labatt (honours), H. Nelson, C. R. Lawes, R. Pryde, R. G. Marshall, L. G. Cowdroy, E. N. S. Warren, H. Tully, P. M. Lipscombe, A. Howard, G. J. Burns, H. Thorby, D. Wright, J. B. Matthews, E. L. Hayes, S. Ijima, T. Fisher, H. J. Dunkley, R. Wignell, R. A. Simpson, first grade.

MACHINE SHEARING.

The students of the machine sheep-shearing and expert class were examined by the instructors of the various classes they have to attend, viz.:—Second year: Erecting and running sheep-shearing machines, of which there are six installed (three Wolseleys and three Coopers), also practical work in the various branches of engineering, blacksmithing, metal-plate working, sanitation, water supply, carpentry and wool. The first year students take all the above-named subjects in their elementary stages. The following is the list of successful students. Second year: A. O. Gorrick (first grade). First year: V. G. Hookey (honours), D. H. Souter, Leo. C. Atkinson (first grade), B. M'Gee, W. A. Fisher (second grade).

HORSE AND CATLLE SHOW.

INCREASE IN ENTRIES.

FINE PARADE ANTICIPATED.

The entries for the horse and cattle show, which will be held on Tuesday next, have far exceeded the anticipations of the secretary. The horse entries total 550, which is about 100 more than was received last year. The growth of this parade show is evidenced by the fact that the first one inaugurated by the society drew 300 entries, so that in three years the total has increased by 250.

Draught horses will be most prominent, and Suffolks a very strong feature. There are 106 heavy Clydesdales, of which nearly 80 are mares. These mares will make a striking figure in the parade. The demand for good draught mares being active, they should figure well in the sale ring. Some very fine stallions will be on offer, particularly in the young classes. There are 33 active farm Clydesdales, 24 Suffolks, 82 trotters and pacers, 25 thoroughbreds, 18 cobs, 56 ponies, and the miscellaneous classes are very heavily filled. About 30 turnouts will be shown, and there are over 30 entries for the three jumping events.

Judging will commence at 9.30 on Tuesday next, and there will be a grand parade, conducted by the hon. ringmaster, Mr. A. D. Playfair, of all horses and cattle, at 1.30 p.m. After that the three jumping contests will take place. The sales will commence on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and the order in which these will be conducted will be advertised.

His Excellency the Governor of New South Wales has signified his intention of being present at the parade on Tuesday, and several members of the Ministry have also accepted invitations. The parade will offer an excellent opportunity to city people to inspect some very fine horses of all classes.

FOXES.

FOREST REEFS.—Foxes are drawing nearer. Three were shot this week. Some are turning almost black. These skins sell readily for 7s 6d, and the ordinary colours for as much as 4s 6d. They are not molesting anything but fowls at present.

PASTURES BOARDS.

COBAR.—The Pastures Protection Board met on Thursday, Mr. Philip Oakden presiding. The latter, who attended the last P. P. Convention, submitted his report, and received a vote of thanks. He was re-elected chairman for the ensuing year. Bonuses on scalps were fixed as follows:—Dogs, with tail attached, £1; pup, 10s; fox, 5s; cub, 2s 6d. In the case of foxes to apply only for four months. Following is the carrying capacity fixed for assessment purposes:—Buckwaroon 20, Priory 22, Tindarey 24, Coronga Downs 18, Nillera 25, Nymboana 22, Hartwood 18, Dijoe 24, Moquilambo 24, Bannisters 20, Booroondarra 20, Wilgaroon 30, Coolabah 22, Tinderra 24, Ballyhooley 15, Werners 18 acres to a sheep. The stock inspector reported that there were very few rabbits in the district.

FARMERS' MEETINGS.

BEGA.—At the annual meeting of the Bega Agricultural, Pastoral, and Horticultural Society yesterday, Mr. G. P. Kerrison, president, presided. The annual report and balance-sheet were adopted, and the following officers were elected:—President, Mr. G. P. Kerrison; vice-presidents, Messrs. Wm. Haslingden and A. L. Manning; hon. treasurer, Mr. E. C. Bingemann; committee, Messrs. James Cochrane, Thomas Cochrane, B. Gowing, William Hanscombe, W. J. Jauncey, T. J. Kelly, Arthur Nickle, E. W. Otton, Henry Otton, W. B. Stiles, Charles Parbery, J. J. Ritchie, J. T. Rogers, Henry Underhill, Thomas Underhill, and W. W. Wren.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BELLINGEN.—The blocks allotted of the eighth Dorrigo subdivision were as follows:—J. F. Buckley 22 (parish of Bligh), J. J. Kirby 13, Alice Giblitt 12, W. H. Robinson 13 (parish of Leigh), Eric Olsen 44 (Medlow), M. Gahan 14, Allan A. Paulis 19 (Gundar).

BLAYNEY.—The Government demonstration area on Marden's Anahdale property is looking very well. All varieties are flourishing. Mr. Mark Reynolds, who is in charge of the trials, expresses satisfaction. The land used is right along the main road from Blayney to Carcoar, and Mr. Reynolds has affixed descriptive boards on the fence. There are over 30 plots, and a comparison will be easy in another couple of months.

BREWARRINA.—Shearing will be slightly delayed by the rain. Wolkara and Yurcurle stations cut out on Thursday, after an unbroken run of fine weather.

AGRICULTURAL SHOWS.

BALRANALD.

BALRANALD.—The Balranald Pastoral and Agricultural Society's show was held on Wednesday, but owing to rain coming on in the afternoon had to be postponed till the following day. There was a large attendance on both days. The show was one of the most successful ever held. In the sheep exhibits the executors of the late Mr. J. Cumming were the most successful in the open section, securing the champion merit for ram and ewe and four each first and second prizes. In the farmers' classes Messrs. D. and H. D. Chaston were very successful. Yanga station took the first prize for Shorthorn bull and cow respectively. Following are the principal horse awards:—

Thoroughbred stallion: Chas. Edwards, 1 and ch. Thoroughbred mare: J. N. Wetherman, 1 and ch. Pony stallion: Geo. Nield 1 and ch. Pony brood mare: H. D. Chaston, 1 and ch. Draught stallion: H. A. Linnett, 1 and ch. Draught mare: George Nield, 1 and ch. Draught yearling: D. and H. Chaston, 1 and ch. Best horse over sheep hurdle: P. Greenham, 1 and 2. High jump: P. Greenham, 1; A. T. Creswick (Lewah), 2. Hunter: P. Greenham, 1 and 2. There was good competition in all the horse classes. The industrial exhibits were up to the usual standard as regards quality and number.

STATION SALES.

Messrs. Dalgety and Company, Ltd., Sydney, report the following sales of station properties:—Booloocooroo Station, on account of the executors of the late J. Fleming Douglas, situated 3 miles from Curlewis and 8 miles from Gunnedah, consisting of about 8886 acres secured lands; purchasers, Messrs. W. and W. T. Grant, New Zealand.

Noonbah station, situated 40 miles from Warren and 12 miles from Quambone, comprising an area of about 9898 acres secured lands and 4074 acres improvement lease lands, the purchaser being Mr. H. R. Denison, Eumaralla, Gulgong.

Kurrajong Estate (main portion), on account of Dr. A. C. Nathan, situated 4½ miles from Inverell, consisting of about 915 acres freehold land, to Mr. R. E. Welsh.

Thalaba station, on account of Mr. F. Capel, situated near Millie, consisting of about 7550 acres secured lands, to Messrs. Atherton and Gorett, of Victoria.

INSOMNIA OR RESTLESSNESS OF THE BRAIN.

HOW IT KILLS THE VICTIM AND RUINS HEALTH.

A PALLIATIVE AND REMEDY IN CLEMENTS TONIC.

There is no greater assassin of health and strength than Insomnia, or Loss of Sleep, which robs the body of the period of recuperation and strength. A man or woman who is a victim to sleeplessness is having nightly their lives shortened. To get cured of this and to again enjoy sleep, sufferers should read this letter.

Here is the condition of Mr. MICHAEL SOMERS, of 47 Camden-street, Newtown, to-day, strong and healthy, with nerves like steel, a healthy stomach, and good appetite, due, as he says, to that wonderful restoring remedy, Clements Tonic. Here is a part of his letter, which we publish for the general benefit of those suffering. Mr. Somers, in reply to our special interviewer, says:—

"Constant feelings of faintness were troublesome. I was afflicted with most extreme nervousness. When everybody else was in bed my nerve troubles increased. I had a feeling as if my heart had momentarily stopped. I could never sleep. The sudden, jumping sensations continued, with terrible faintness, which made me think my time had come. The extreme weakness and constant twitching of my nerves could not be checked by anything the doctors prescribed for me, when I started taking the medicine called Clements Tonic. Though it may seem incredible, my wife and son here can vouch for what I say being the gospel truth. The symptoms I have described left me through the wonderful agency of Clements Tonic. It seems like a hideous dream that has passed and gone. I have nothing in the world to thank but that great medicine, which has saved my health and life.

(Signed) "MICHAEL SOMERS."

For all kinds of Nervousness, St. Vitus' Dance, Epilepsy, Insomnia, Brain Fag, Despondency, Heart Palpitation, and Stomach and Liver Troubles, "CLEMENT'S TONIC" is undoubtedly an unequalled remedy. Thousands of men and women swear by it. All storekeeper and chemists sell it all over Australia.—Advt.

No Adulteration.

Professor W. Hodgson Ellis,

Official Analyst to the Government, Dominion of Canada,

Reports:—

"I have made a number of analyses of your Sunlight Soap, the result of which I send you. These analyses show Sunlight Soap to contain that high percentage of oil or fat necessary to a good laundry soap, and no unsaponified fat, no free alkali, no loading mixture, no adulteration whatever. Therefore Sunlight Soap has a thorough cleansing power, without danger to the clothing or skin. Sunlight Soap is free from alumina, borates, gelatine, silicates, sulphates and starch, and is a pure and well-made Soap."

The leading chemists of the world have given the highest testimony to the value of Sunlight Soap, and this mass of testimony has been endorsed by the users. £1,000 reward is offered to anyone who can prove adulteration in Sunlight Soap.

Be Dairy Wise

MR. ALEXANDER MATHESON, the Model Farm, Trafalgar, Victoria, writes:—

"I am pleased to be able to speak so highly of the value of Sunlight Oil Cake for increasing the flow of milk as well as increasing the percentage of the butter fat. Further, it keeps the stock in very healthy condition. I find the cows grow very fond of it, more so than of any other food I have ever used, and I have fed them with chaff, potatoes, bran, ensilage, &c., and am firmly convinced that Sunlight Oil Cake tops the lot.

"For milk production I would rather give a cow in its feed 1 lb. of Sunlight Oil Cake than 2 lbs. of Bran."

SUNLIGHT OIL CAKE is pressed from rich fleshy fibre that is relished by the animal and hence is easily assimilated; bringing out all the natural profitable resources of the animal.

Milk flow and butter fat respond steadily to a generous ration of SUNLIGHT OIL CAKE, about three pounds per day, mixed with other feed, being generally used.

Dairy wisdom and dairy profits are seen in the careful selection of such a rich fleshy fodder as SUNLIGHT OIL CAKE to give body to the "filling up" feeds that an animal must have.

THE HAMMOND VISIBLE TYPEWRITER.

The most Wonderful Typewriter in the world was invented by James B. Hammond, an American, and will do work which cannot even be attempted by any other typewriter. Its charm lies in its simplicity. This typewriter writes in 216 different styles of type, the same as a printing machine, and the operator can change from a large to small type, or block type to italic type, from English to German or Greek, etc., instantaneously. It writes in all colours and all languages. The whole of the type being cast in one piece, it is a matter of impossibility for this machine to get out of alignment. One of the crowning features of the HAMMOND TYPEWRITER is that should the keys be struck with a heavy or light blow it will leave exactly the same impression, giving beautifully even and print-like work. Another feature is that it will write on paper of unlimited width, even a roll of wallpaper can be written on by the ordinary machine without doubling the paper over. It has also all the medical and chemical characters for professional men. A visible writer, and quite portable. It takes the clearest and best carbon copies automatically, and cuts the finest stencils. Built for durability, the Agents guarantee to keep every Hammond in order free of charge for five years. This speaks for itself.

SOCIAL.

Already nature is heralding the spring, and the glorious display of the golden wattle in one of the leading florist's windows a few days ago was beautiful to behold. All the gardens are so bare and desolate of flowers just now that it was small wonder that the window in question, with its golden blossoms, should attract great attention. An artistic touch was given by the introduction of a few rich autumn leaves and berries, and a bouquet of wattle was tied with golden brown ribbon with charming effect. Loops and folds of brown tulle were also used amongst the decorations, the whole colour scheme being most harmoniously carried out.

On Monday next his Excellency the Governor and Lady Chelmsford will take part in the Glebe jubilee celebrations, and his Excellency will unveil a drinking fountain. Lady Chelmsford will honour the occasion by planting a tree at the Glebe Jubilee Park, and in the evening a grand ball will take place.

His Excellency the Admiral and Lady Poore entertained the following guests at dinner at Admiralty House on Tuesday, 27th inst:—Sir Edmund and Lady Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Hope Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Mahaffy, Mr. and Mrs. Mort, Lieut. and Mrs. Cayley, and Captain Da Costa, R.N.

The Misses Saumarez Smith, who leave for England, via Vancouver, in the R.M.S. Makura next Monday, were tendered a farewell "At home" at the A.B.C. Rooms last Saturday afternoon, when the opportunity was taken by their many friends to wish them "good-bye" and "bon voyage." The hostesses were Mrs. Christian, Mrs. Dangar, Mrs. Docker, Mrs. Wilfred Docker, Mrs. Russell French, Mrs. Gunther, Mrs. Walter Hall, Mrs. T. S. Holt, Mrs. Icely, Mrs. Barre Johnston, Mrs. E. W. Knox, Mrs. Macarthur Onslow, Mrs. Pring, Mrs. Cecil Stephen, and Mrs. Weigall, all of whom wore, as a distinguishing badge, a small bunch of violets tied with ribbons to match. The attendance numbered about 300, the Misses Saumarez Smith, with the hostesses, welcoming their friends as they arrived. Tea was served on small tables in the large basement room, that reserved for the guests of the afternoon being decorated with violet ribbons, violets and snowflakes. Amongst those present were:—Archdeacon Gunther, Bishop Stone Wigg, Lady Simpson, Sir Henry and Lady Stephen, Rev. H. and Mrs. Saumarez Smith, Archdeacon D'Arcy Irvine and Mrs. Irvine, Canon and Mrs. Hey Sharp, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Kemmis, Mrs. Sheppard, Rev. and Mrs. Alan Pain, Mrs. and Miss M'Callum, Miss Stephen, Mrs. Backhouse, Mrs. Cartwright Ashe, Rev. and Mrs. Willoughby Flower, Canon and Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. and Miss Airey, Rev. Mr. Newmarch, Mr. Deas Thomson, Mrs. Farran and the Misses Farran, Judge Docker, Dr. Maynard Pain, Rev. S. and Mrs. Marston, Mrs. and Miss Ethel Cox, Miss Thea Stephen, Miss Paige, Mrs. Perston, Mrs. Bloomfield, Mrs. Lampard, Miss Christian, Miss Pring, Miss Barbara Knox, Mrs. and Miss Campbell Brown, Miss Skinner, Miss Garrett, Principal and Mrs. Harper, Miss Gurney, Miss Tully, Mrs. and Miss Shard, Rev. J. H. and Mrs. MacLean, and the Rev. Mr. Greenwood. After tea the Misses Saumarez Smith stood at the foot of the staircase and said good-bye to their friends as they were leaving.

To-night his Excellency the Governor and Lady Chelmsford have signified their intention of attending the performance of "The Flag Lieutenant" at Her Majesty's Theatre. This piece was performed for the first time in Sydney last Saturday, before a large and most enthusiastic audience. Miss Ethel Warwick and Miss Dorothy Grimston, who take the principal women's parts, are new actresses in Sydney, and have already found favour with the public. In the first act a ball is supposed to be given on H.M.S. Royal Edward, where Miss Ethel Warwick makes her first appearance in a beautiful dress of rose-pink crepe-de-chine, with an Empire coat of cream net, embroidered in crystal and edged with sequined insertion to match. In her hair a wreath of heather and roses and pink ribbon is worn. In this act Miss Grimston wears cream satin, with an overdress of Brussels lace, the bodice embroidered with gold, her ornaments being pearls and diamonds. The next scene also takes place in the evening, and Miss Warwick appears in a dark Prunella-coloured satin, made in tunic fashion, with beetle-wing embroidery, and wears in her hair a filet of gold tissue, finished at the back with a bunch of small gold flowers. Here Miss Grimston's dress is of green satin charmeuse, with sleeves, and vest of cream net, embroidered in gold. In the last act Miss Warwick wears apricot-coloured canvas, with biscuit-brown tassels, and paste buttons on the Empire coat, and a white hat lined with black and trimmed with a wreath of pink roses. Miss Grimston's white muslin was trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and worn with a large black hat and a white feather boa.

Lady Poore presided at the annual meeting of the Waverley, Bondi, and Randwick branch of the District Nursing Association last Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was held at the Grahame Memorial School Hall, Charing Cross, Waverley, and in response to an invitation from the president and committee a large number of ladies were present, who brought with them many comforts for the nurses to distribute amongst the sick and poor, such as warm shawls, jackets, groceries, etc. Lady Poore gave an interesting address, and asked if it were not possible for many of the patients who were attended by the nurses to contribute small sums for the maintenance of the association, as she thought self-help was better than charity, and it would add interest in the district nurse if the patients themselves contributed towards her salary, as is done in many parts of England, especially in her own country, Wiltshire. Colonel J. Macarthur Onslow also spoke, and the Rev. J. Macaulay stated that £120 had been raised during the past year, valuable help having been given by the Waverley and Randwick Bowling Clubs, Mr. and Mrs. Ebenezer Vickery, and Mrs. Brandon Usher. During the afternoon Mrs. Jenkins, who has acted as hon. secretary for the last four years, was presented with a handsome handbag and silver-mounted purse, as a small token of esteem, and for the good work she has done for the District Nursing Association. A letter of thanks to the president (Mrs. W. Grahame) was read. The following office-bearers were elected:—Mrs. Grahame, president; Mrs. J. Macarthur Onslow and Lady M'Millan, vice-presidents; Mrs. Sullivan, hon. secretary; and Mrs. W. J. Edwards, hon. treasurer.

The first performance of "Cinderella" at the Criterion Theatre last Saturday evening was witnessed by his Excellency the Admiral and Lady Poore, and a large and enthusiastic audience. Miss Ruth Lincoln takes the part of Cinderella, and makes her entry in a brown cashmere dress, with cuffs and chemisette of white muslin, and her hair tied up with brown bows. But when the fairy godmother waves her wand Cinderella appears in a dainty white satin, embroidered with gold sequins, and her coach is of crystal, lined with crimson, and surmounted with a gold crown resting on a blue velvet cushion, and illuminated with myriads of electric lights. It is drawn by four of Sir Rupert Clarke's diminutive ponies, harnessed in white, and also illuminated with electric lights, and driven by the smallest of small coachmen, dressed in white satin. Miss Meredith-Meredro plays the part of the Prince, and wears a suit of green velvet, and a three-cornered hat to match. At the ball the Prince is seen in pale blue. In the final scene Cinderella arrives at the Palace in a crystal coach drawn by swans, and is dressed in white, with a wreath and veil. Miss Essie Perrin is the danseuse, and wears soft white silk, trimmed with shaded red poppies, her white hat being wreathed with poppies. Her second dress is pale heliotrope.

The "Carnival" ball in aid of the Nurses' Home, Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, to take place in the Town Hall on Tuesday, August 10, is creating much interest in Sydney and the suburbs, and promises to be largely attended. The gallery attractions include 16 fancy sets, in which many prominent ladies will take part. The Lady Mayoress will dance in the "Jewel" set, and amongst other sets arranged is "Night," "Egyptian," "Domino," "Roses," "Book Club," "New South Wales Gems," "Australian Wines," "Hunting," "Dutch," "Dreadnought," "Whitelaw," "Crackers," "The Ladies' Field," and several posters. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Chelmsford, and Lady Poore, have signified their intention of being present.

The matron and nurses of the Women's Hospital, Crown-street, were desirous of providing linen for the new wards about to be opened at the hospital, and for this purpose a "linen tea" was held at the Fullerton Memorial Hall, opposite the hospital, last Thursday afternoon. The appeal met with a ready and liberal response, and a large number of articles were brought or sent to the hospital, and gratefully received by the matron, Miss M'Leod, and the hon. secretary, Nurse Taylor. His Honor Judge Backhouse is president of the board of management, Lady M'Millan and Mrs. G. M. Merivale the vice-presidents, and the directors are Lady Barton, Mesdames J. A. Dean, T. H. Kelly, Stuart Osborne, A. Lassetter, J. T. Wilson, R. M. Sly, Hugh Dixson, Miss M. Harris, and Mr. David Poll. The hospital was founded in 1895 at Hay-street, city, in a building consisting of four rooms, and since its inauguration, 15 years ago, only 37 deaths have occurred, being a remarkable mortality experience of four deaths in every 1000 cases treated. These very excellent results were attained under great difficulties, owing to the inadequate accommodation. The directors felt an effort should be made to increase the accommodation, and there will shortly be available a fine building for isolated cases, and two large operating theatres and wards. The gathering on Thursday afternoon magnanimously came forward and provided the linen necessary for the new wards, and cheques amounting to £30 were received for the same purpose, thus assisting the directors in the good work on behalf of the poor and necessitous. In the absence of the Lady Mayoress through indisposition, Lady Barton, in a few appropriate words, thanked all the contributors for their gifts, also the Rev. W. Fenwick and his parishioners for giving the use of the hall, and Fraulein Jensen's Ladies' Concert Band for the music they contributed during the afternoon. Songs were also rendered by Nurse Beaver and Miss Hilda Clough. The Rev. The Freemasons' annual ball, which will be held in the Sydney Town Hall on August 4, will provide a particularly interesting sight for the patrons of the gallery, whose interests are being specially cared for by the executive committee. The Masonic processions, with the accompanying clash of swords, through the Arch of Steel, will be larger than ever. As the ball is held in the interests of the Freemasons' benevolent institution, the members of the craft look to the event as an opportunity of assisting a worthy object. This institution has in the short time of its existence distributed over £10,000 in providing means to enable the aged and infirm to keep their homes together, and make it unnecessary to receive assistance from the State.

QUEEN VICTORIA MARKETS.

OFFER TO THE COMMONWEALTH.

DEPARTMENTAL OBJECTIONS.

The views of the City Council on the proposed sale to the Commonwealth of the Queen Victoria Market Buildings were yesterday placed before the Postmaster-General by the Lord Mayor. Mr. Young, Deputy Postmaster-General, was present at the interview.

The Lord Mayor said the council did not propose to exchange the Markets for the Post Office. That would be utterly absurd. It would suit neither the City Council nor the Government. What the council did propose was to sell the markets outright to the Commonwealth. He submitted figures showing that the council had sunk £636,000 in the market property, and was prepared to sell at a reasonable price, to be agreed upon, on terms extending over 25 years. The growing extension of business in connection with the Post Office was referred to, and the opinion was expressed that the time had arrived when the present postal building had almost reached the utmost limit of its capacity, and that other provision would have to be made. The Lord Mayor added that he understood £40,000 was to be spent by the Government in improvements and additions to the G.P.O., and he ventured the opinion that the money would be better expended in acquiring the Queen Victoria Markets, where there would be ample room for carrying on the work of the Post Office for all time.

The Deputy Postmaster-General explained that the £40,000 referred to was, he understood, to be chiefly applied to the erection of a parcels post-office, on a site which had been leased from the Railway Commissioners for a 99 years term, at an annual rental of £600. Only the balance was to be spent in improvements and additions to the G.P.O.

When asked by the Postmaster-General what opinion he had formed with respect to the Queen Victoria Market proposal, Mr. Young said additional accommodation was required to meet expanding postal business, but he thought it would be better for the Government to acquire the adjoining property on both the Pitt-street and the George-street frontages. It was estimated that these properties could be acquired at a total cost of from £300,000 to £400,000. That would be better than the market proposal. All postal business would be centralised and conducted under better conditions of management than if scattered throughout the city. Mr. Young further said that, in his opinion, it would cost £60,000 to remove the telegraph and telephone business from the Post Office to the Queen Victoria Markets, and that probably the total expenditure necessary to make that building useful for post-office purposes would be £100,000.

The Lord Mayor suggested that the market buildings might be used not only for postal purposes but for Commonwealth purposes generally.

Mr. Young thought it would be better to retain the parcels post-office near the railway station, as there would be less haulage in the transit of parcels.

Sir John Quick inquired if there was any likelihood of the council offering the "Paddy's Market" site to the Commonwealth. He had been informed it would be a useful site for postal purposes.

The Lord Mayor said the council was not disposed to sell the "Paddy's Market" site, but it was ready to lease it for a long period.

Sir John Quick replied he did not approve of the erection of Commonwealth buildings on grounds held under lease.

After long conversation it was decided that the various sites referred to should be inspected, and that, as the matter was of great importance, the Postmaster-General should submit it to the Cabinet for further consideration later on.

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. W. H. Paling and Co. publish the "Nimrod Waltz," by Claire Newton, dedicated to Lady Chelmsford, and bearing a particularly attractive title-page, showing that vessel at anchor near an ice-field, with penguins at play. The "Nimrod" is a thorough ballroom waltz that moves with a rhythmical swing, and the fact that it is in the melodious key of five flats has assisted the composer to an effective harmonisation.

ASHES ON RAILWAY BRIDGE.

A small fire was discovered yesterday morning on the railway bridge on the North Shore line, about a quarter of a mile south of Bay-road station. The first passenger train due at Milson's Point at 5.43 was four minutes late, owing to the train being stopped while the fireman threw a few buckets of water over the flames. The fire, which was probably caused by ashes falling from an engine, did not damage the bridge.

SATURDAY CLOSING OF HOTELS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir.—Has any one considered the poor barmaid in connection with the Saturday half-holiday? Why leave her out and the hotel-keeper? It might give him time to consider his ways, and perhaps lead to the closing of some of these places. I have occasion frequently to go into Sydney on Saturday night, when crowds of fine, intelligent-looking young men may be seen in our streets. But what do they look like at about 11.30? The look of intelligence has gone, sleepy, stupid, and incapable enough to make anyone's heart ache. Unless the hotels close with the respectable business-places, this evil will be much worse. I am, etc.,

A WOMAN.

QUITE THE NICEST I HAVE YET TRIED.

This is very nicely put, isn't it? Not to keep you in suspense, we admit at once that the words were written by Miss Elizabeth Firth, who is quite one of the most charming ladies of the London stage. She plays "Natalie" in "The Merry Widow." She has all sorts of things to commend her—among others a perfectly delicious complexion. This is what she says:—"I find the Valaze Skin Food a most valuable preparation. The Valaze Powder, too, is quite the nicest I have yet tried." If you could see Miss Firth, and hear her, you would better appreciate the value of this testimony. But there are others.

She finds Valaze so valuable that she gives it a double superlative. It could not be too highly praised in any case. It is one of those wonderfully rare modern products that do exactly what they are sold to do. Valaze Skin Food, in jars, 3/6, 6/6, and postage 6d. Valaze Face Powder, for skins that incline to greasiness and moistness, Novena Poudre for dry and normal skins, in boxes 2/ and 3/, and the Valaze Complexion Soap, 2/2, posted. Novena Sunproof and Windproof Creme, as the name implies, safeguards the complexion from ill-effects of the sun as well as cold winds. In jars, 2/ and 3/6. Valaze Blackhead and Open Pore Cure banishes these disfigurements, and overcomes greasiness and coarseness of the skin, 2/10, posted. Mlle. Rubinstein's unique book, "Beauty in the Making," will be sent you free with order, otherwise threepence.

VALAZE PREPARATIONS obtainable from all chemists, or direct from Mlle. RUBINSTEIN and CO., Dept. Valaze Institute, 158 Pitt-street, Sydney.—Advt.

THE CHURCHES.

The following letter was received this week from the new Archbishop. It is addressed to the members of the Sydney Synod; and was written from Carlton Lodge, Dudley-road, Manchester:—

"My Dear Friends,—So I venture to address you without hesitation, though a total stranger in the flesh, because it is you who have knit a lasting bond between yourselves and me. It is only in the conviction that the Great Head of the Church inspired you to summon me as the successor to the great and holy men who have occupied the See of Sydney, that I have dared in deep humility to accept the call to be your Archbishop. May it truly be that I come in the fulness of the Spirit of God to undertake these solemn duties in the Church of God. To this end I throw myself on your intercessions, absolutely convinced that as we pray together for strength to fulfil God's purpose we shall work together and fulfil it. I shall endeavour myself, by His help, to be of service wherever I can, for the promotion of all that makes for the welfare of the community and the extension of the Kingdom of our God. Much indulgence I shall need. There will be so much to learn. But I shall do my utmost to be an apt and receptive learner—observing and listening and thinking. Excuse the hastiness of these words, written in the crowded life in which you have surprised me; but I was anxious to send you some message, however brief and inadequate, by this mail, that is just going out. I would ask you also to express my gratitude to the bishops of the province who confirmed the election for the encouragement that their unanimous confirmation and message has given me.—Yours very faithfully, J. C. Wright."

The Vicar-General, Archdeacon Gunther, has during the week presided at meetings of the standing committee, the Centennial Fund, the diocesan committee, the church property trust, the memorial to the late Archbishop, the annual meeting of the Church Society, and the annual meeting of archdeacons and rural deans, and has taken part in the annual meeting of the New Guinea mission and the service for the mission in the Cathedral.

Rev. H. S. Woolcombe, of Oxford House, who arrives in Sydney on August 8, is at present in Hobart. Mr. Woolcombe reaches Sydney by the express on Sunday morning, and preaches in the Cathedral the same evening.

The numerous services and functions in connection with the dedication festival of St. James's Church, King-street, have been very well attended during the week. The festival will be concluded to-morrow.

Grafton Cathedral kept on Sunday last the 25th anniversary of its opening and dedication, which occurred in connection with the visit of Dr. Barry, then Primate of Australia, on July 25, 1884. At the commemorative services last Sunday Archdeacon Flower, now of St. Mark's, Sydney, who was formerly in charge of Grafton Cathedral, and Archdeacon of the North Coast, was present, and preached.

The annual meeting of archdeacons and rural deans of the diocese of Sydney was held at Parramatta on Thursday. Various subjects of interest were discussed, some of which will be brought before the new Archbishop. The reports presented showed a considerable increase in Church extension and Church progress in the suburbs and the country.

Nothing definite is yet known as to who will succeed the Rev. W. I. Carr-Smith as rector of St. James', King-street, "but," writes a correspondent, "at the meeting of the congregation held during the dedication festival it was understood that the appointment of the acting rector (Rev. S. Marston, M.A.) will meet with the hearty approval of the congregation."

Rev. R. S. Willis, who three weeks ago underwent a serious operation, is now convalescent.

Rev. F. J. S. Russell, rector of St. Hilda's, Katoomba, who underwent a serious operation a month ago, has so far recovered as to leave the hospital.

The annual distribution took place at St. John's, Parramatta, on Friday evening, and at St. Paul's, Harris Park, on Sunday. Addresses were delivered by Archdeacon Gunter and the Rev. Messrs. O'Neill and Smith.

The 17th anniversary of the St. Barnabas' Churchmen's Bible class was celebrated on Tuesday evening in the school hall by a tea meeting, followed by a public meeting, at which Mr. John Kent occupied the chair. The speaker for the evening was the Ven. Archdeacon Irving. Some 26 men won prizes, which were presented by Miss Banks. The musical items were given by the Y.M.C.A. quartet and Master Jeoffries, violinist. There were present on the platform Revs. W. A. Charlton and Kemp Teasdale.

The work of the New Guinea Mission is growing almost faster than the work of the Commonwealth in New Guinea. There are now six white priests working there, one white deacon, six white laymen, and 10 white ladies. There are 33 South Sea Islanders, 11 native pupil teachers, four native evangelists, and two Papuan teachers.

Those connected with the mission say that while Australia is quite content to see it grow, and to sit back and smile on the work, the people of Australia are not so content to pay for it. Or, at least, probably do not realise that the mission cannot carry on its work within its means, and so has had to carry it on outside of them. The overdraft of the mission at this present moment is something like £1500, and £5000 is needed to pull it quite clear of money troubles.

Three pieces of land in fine situations have been, or are to be, bought for the building of churches by the Endowment Committee of the Church of England, which sat during last week. One is on the ridge of the Cremorne Promontory, a second near the Suspension Bridge in St. Thomas' Parish, overlooking Middle Harbour; a third at Roseville. The Endowment Committee buys the site, and the people of the parish then only have to trouble about raising funds for the building.

The Newcastle Cathedral is to be finished. The Dean of Newcastle (the Very Rev. Dr. Golding-Bird) announced that it had been decided to take immediate steps to roof in and adapt the unfinished east end. The present portion of the building accommodates about 900; with the proposed additions the accommodation will be brought up to 1200. For the last three months the seating capacity of the Cathedral has proved quite inadequate. It is estimated that some hundreds each Sunday are unable to gain admission. At a service for men, recently conducted by the dean, over 1000 were present. The estimated cost of the proposed additions is £2500.

Archdeacon Gunther spoke strongly at Moore College a week ago as to the call to sacred study. "The college is no playground, no home, for brainless workers and bumptious idlers," he said, "but one in which men ought to toil terribly." Time must be found for study during the whole ministerial life. He warmly recommended the Society of Sacred Study. Its object was to encourage reading circles, to inculcate information on recent books, to procure lectures for the clergy, to circulate theological works, and to advise younger clergy in theological reading. He also stated that they wanted one great college for Australia, with a large staff of teachers, and as the Bishops were all vice-presidents of these colleges, much could be done by them.

News from the islands shows that the returned kanakas are quickly being merged into the population there. The opinion which members of the Melanesian Mission hold of these men differs a good deal. Bishop Wilson, in the annual report lately published, says:—"In the Torres Islands Mr. Durrad has not found the Queenslanders as helpful as Mr. Bollen did in Guadalcanar. He says that, with some bright exceptions, the Queensland traffic has had a deteriorating effect on natives. I fear that this is the verdict that the missionaries and others would generally pass upon it." Mr. Durrad gives an exceedingly interesting comment on them. He says: —"The native labourers from Queensland, whose return last year attracted so much anxious attention, are still a conspicuous feature of the Torres Island communities, with the broken English speech, their European garb (now in most cases getting the worse for wear), and their general air and bearing which mark them out as not quite like their untravelled compatriots. But the process of reabsorption goes on apace, and it is curious to observe it. Influential as many of them are on account of their knowledge of the outer world, and of the possessions which they bring back with them, they introduce singularly little change in the life, habits, thoughts, and feelings of the people."

"A saint was a true sportsman," said Rev. W. Cunliffe Jones at the twenty-fifth anniversary service of the Homebush Congregational Church—"a man who in his day played the game and observed the rules; not a pallid, passionless, personality, altogether remote from the robust Christian or every-day man of these times. A man nowadays does not advise his boy to be a little saint, but to be a little gentleman or a sportsman—in other words, to be one who plays and will play the game. The saint idea is modernised by this method, and one associated with all that was gentlemanly and sportsmanlike, that which was noble and true and honest. I would like to see men putting their sporting instincts into their religion more than their business instincts. In sport the one who is a credit is he who plays the game, who preserves the ancient ritual or code of honour. He does not stop to argue about being put out if he puts his foot over the crease and is stumped. He knows the rules of the game, his ideals of good sport and good conduct make him anxious to preserve the rules. A saint was a man who in his day played the game and observed the rules. He was one who, like the true sportsman or gentleman in those days, marked the difference between the true and the false, fidelity and treachery, loyalty and baseness, right and wrong, cleanliness and moral uncleanliness. Yet a man might be faithful to forms and ceremonies and ritual and be dull to moral ideas. The stoic and the pharisee were fine men, but like those who do not play the game in its moral essence they were stumbling-blocks to progress. The man who plays the game is amongst those referred to by St. Paul as 'called to be saints.'"

The Rev. Father J. O'Gorman, who for the past 13 years has been priest in charge of St. Canice's Church, Darlinghurst, and who has been transferred to St. Bede's, Pyrmont, was made a presentation on Monday night. The function took place at St. Canice's School Hall, when the chair was taken by Alderman J. Lane Mullins, and among those present were Monsignor O'Haran, Fathers Barry (rector of St. Canice), Sherin, Meany, and Murphy. The chairman made the presentation of a cheque and an illuminated address, and among those who made complimentary reference to Father O'Gorman was Monsignor O'Haran, who referred to the recipient's untiring work for the priesthood.

Archbishop Kelly last week visited Wollongong. During his visit he blessed the memorial-stone erected in memory of the late Father Murray, who was recently drowned while surf-bathing. On Sunday Archbishop Kelly confirmed about 250 candidates at St. Francis Xavier's Church.

The Rev. Brother Victor, who recently retired from the position of Provincial of the Marist Brothers, has been appointed Brother Director of St. Joseph's College, Hunter's Hill, in succession to Brother Clement. Rev. Brother Clement was given a send-off by the old boys. He sailed on Wednesday to take up the post of Director of the Marist College, Auckland.

The Rev. Dr. Dill Macky will move, at the next meeting of the Sydney Presbytery, the nomination of the Rev. Robert Jackson, M.A., as next Moderator of the State Assembly.

At Scots' Church, Sydney, there was a church parade of the N.S.W. Scottish Rifles on Sunday morning, in memory of their comrades who died during the South African War. Dr. Dill Macky preached on "The Lord's Battle."

The Rev. W. M. Smith, M.A., is convener of the Sydney Presbytery's committee on immigrants. The Rev. Dr. Merrington has been added to the committee.

At the suggestion of Rev. J. H. Craig, Dr. Chapman and Mr. Alexander will utilise the breakfast interval, whilst the express waits at Moss Vale railway station, in speaking and singing. The evangelists pass through to Sydney on Tuesday, August 10, and the opportunity will be seized of hearing them before they depart from our shores.

The twenty-ninth annual tea and concert of the Chippendale, Redfern, and Darlington branch of the City Mission was held on Tuesday night. After the tea, which took place in the Methodist School Hall, Regent-street, the concert was held in the new hall, Meagher-street. Mr. W. A. Hudson presided. Mr. W. Seddon read a report on the work of the year. There were, he said, 259 on the Sunday-school roll. They had one of the largest Bands of Hope in the city. The Juvenile Sunshine Band had also progressed. The cooking class, whose members were charged a penny a lesson, had done splendid work. The Institute for Young Men, formed for the benefit of the male members of the choir and workers of the mission, contained cricket and football clubs, and one of the members of the latter had gone to England with the Wallabies. 2000 poor families had been relieved during the year.

The chairman said the crying evil among the poor people was the crowded state of the households.

Metropolitan Christian Endeavourers are expecting the coming convention in connection with the N.S.W. Union to be one of the best held. The meetings will take place from August 12 to 17, beginning with the annual council meeting in the Bathurst-street Baptist Church. The other gatherings will include the president's public meeting, good citizenship demonstration, Endeavourers' conference, junior rally, and the united consecration meeting. Bible readings will be conducted each day during the lunch hour by Rev. M. Reavley. The speakers at the various meetings will include Revs. W. W. Roger (State president), B. Gawthrop, G. T. Walden, M.A., and P. J. Stephen. Arrangements are being made for the reception and entertainment of country Endeavourers.

Pastor L. H. Purnell, who has been in charge of the Congregational Church at Bathurst for some months, closed his ministry last Sunday. A largely-attended public meeting was held during the week, when he was presented with an address and purse of sovereigns by the Church, and great regret was expressed at his removal from the district. Mr. Purnell is about to enter Camden College as a student for the Congregational ministry.

Extensive alterations are being made to the Congregational Church at Kurri, to provide accommodation for the increased congregations.

The Congregational Church at Meadowbank has decided to build a vestry and class rooms, and steps are also being taken to add a vestry and class rooms to the Congregational Church, Lawson.

AN APPELLANT'S DEMISE.

INTERESTING POINT AT LAW.

When an appellant in a law case dies, can the appeal be gone on with? The point was decided by Judge Murray at the Quarter Sessions yesterday. The appeal in question was lodged by Peter Moloney, the late owner of the Iron Duke Hotel, Botany-road, Waterloo, against a decision of the Metropolitan Licensing Court. The renewal of the license was objected to by the police, in consequence of the necessary accommodation not being provided in accordance with the Licensing Act. Moloney applied to the Licensing Court for permission to alter the premises so as to comply with the requirements. The application for renewal of the license was taken first, and it was refused. The Court then declined to accede to the application respecting the premises, on the ground that the renewal of the license had not been granted. Moloney gave notice of appeal, and shortly afterwards he died.

Mr. H. B. Jamieson, administrator in Moloney's estate, sought to carry on the appeal. The Crown opposed him on the ground that the appeal was a personal right, and that it died with the appellant. Mr. Montgomerie Hamilton appeared for the Crown, and Mr. Blacket, instructed by Messrs. Buchanan and Smithers, for Jamieson.

After argument, his Honor said that as a question of law there could be no substitution of anyone for an appellant who had died, but dealing with the specific Act under which this appeal was entered it appeared to him that the Legislature intended to protect the property, and on equitable grounds he would allow the administrator of the estate to appeal against the Licensing Court's decision.

Accordingly evidence was heard, and the appeal was allowed without costs, permission being given to make the alterations asked for within four months.

SNOW CARNIVAL AT KOSCIUSKO.

Arrangements have been made by the Government Tourist Bureau for a grand snow and ice carnival, to be held at the Hotel Kosciusko on Tuesday and Wednesday, August 10 and 11, following the Kiandra carnival, which is to be held on the preceding Friday and Saturday. It is expected that a number of experts from the latter place will visit Kosciusko to participate.

The committee of the Kosciusko Alpine Club is arranging the programme, and an attractive series of ski-races for experts and beginners, single and double toboggan races for ladies and gentlemen, novelty events and races on skates on the frozen lake, and an illuminated ice carnival will be included.

Intending visitors should leave Sydney not later than Sunday, August 8, and special motor and coach arrangements, as well as additional accommodation, have been provided to meet the expected influx of visitors. Rooms may be booked at the Government Tourist Bureau, Challis House. Telegrams to hand yesterday state that a particularly heavy fall of snow has taken place, and all the country surrounding the hotel is covered to a great depth.

UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY.

JUNIOR PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

We publish to-day a list of candidates who passed the Junior Public Examination held last month.

The number of candidates was 1201, and of these 915, or 76.2 per cent., have passed. Of these 185 have qualified themselves in the subjects of division A. of the matriculation examination, under the revised regulations. In order to so qualify candidates are required to pass the examination in English, Latin, and one of the three languages—Greek, French, or German—and in arithmetic, algebra, and geometry.

In 1908 there were 1252 candidates, of whom 914, or 73 per cent., were successful, 130 having qualified for matriculation, division A, under the new regulations.

Information in regard to candidates who have failed to pass the examination will be given to their teachers upon written application being made. Personal application at the University should not be made by the candidates themselves.

LIST OF PASSES.

In the list which follows A signifies first-class, B second-class, and C third-class. An asterisk denotes that the candidate has previously passed the Junior Examination; (M) denotes qualified in division A of the matriculation examination.

The candidates who have qualified for the junior commercial certificate are published in a separate list at the end. The compulsory subjects for the commercial certificate are:—(a) English, including precis writing; (b) arithmetic, including commercial arithmetic, (c) geography, including commercial geography; (d) English history, including commercial history; and (e) a modern foreign language.

Candidates who entered for the junior commercial certificate and failed to pass in all the required subjects, but who passed in a sufficient number in the Junior Public Examination, are includede in the ordinary list.

THE TWO SYDNEYS.

The Model School, Fort-street, was the scene of an interesting ceremony yesterday, when the return flag from Sydney, Nova Scotia, was unfurled. The school numbers some 2000 scholars, and there was a full muster, with many parents and friends, and the cadet corps of the school formed a guard of honour, with their flags. The scene was a picturesque one under the Moreton Bay figs of the playground. Mr. Kilgour, the head master, presided. Mr. Smithurst, originator of the flag exchange movement, performed the ceremony. As the flag with the Union Jack and the Canadian arms fluttered out, it was received with cheers, followed by "Rule Britannia" from upwards of 2000 voices. Mr. J. S. Larke then delivered an address.

FOOTBALLER INJURED.
LEG WOULD NOT HEAL.

"My trouble arose through getting kicked on the football field. It was a very bad wound across the shin, about three inches in length. Then, about a week after, it started getting very painful and swollen. I went to the doctors, but after two months of their treatment I got tired of attending them, so I thought I would try to cure it myself. Well, I tried different ointments, but all to no use. At last a friend of mine advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies, so I purchased a box of Cuticura Ointment from the chemist, and in about five days the leg showed signs of improvement. The swelling went down, and all the matter and stuff came out quite fast. I mention that my leg was about three times its usual size. So I kept on with Cuticura Ointment, and I tried Cuticura Soap to cleanse the wound with. After that it healed up quite fast, and is quite well at the present time. I still use the Cuticura Soap, which I find is the best I can get, as it makes one feel so fresh after a hard game of football, and I will recommend it to all my friends. J. Lester, 64 Wallington-street, Reading, Berks, Eng. Sept. 16, 1908."

There now remains

but ONE WEEK

during which you can purchase The Times History in Australia.

A form of subscription is printed at the foot of this announcement with the object of assuring to those who are in earnest about getting the History an opportunity of doing so.

Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thur.	Fri.	Sat.
~~26~~	~~27~~	~~28~~	~~29~~	~~30~~	31
2	3	4	5	6	7
~~TOO~~	~~LATE~~	Subscription List closes

In all probability a form of subscription has already been sent them by post; but receiving it, perhaps, at a time when they were occupied with other things, they may never have found it under their hand at the moment when they could attend to it. Here, therefore, a form of subscription is placed before them, and those who really wish to have the History will fill in particulars, tear the form out, and send to the post with 7/6, thus putting the matter beyond the reach of chance.

(1) If you subscribe this week, it should still be possible to give you immediate delivery. If you allow the matter to stand over until next week, you will almost certainly have to await the arrival of a further shipment from London.

So great has been the success of the History that the stock which was considered sufficient to fill all Australian orders ran out, in respect of the two favourite styles of binding (three-quarter Morocco and Pigskin) in the middle of June. A cable had already been sent to London to make good the deficiency; but now it seems probable that our entire stock will be taken up before next Saturday.

The greatest advantage in subscribing at once, however, is that you will then know that it is done, and done in time. It is now too near the end, and the History is too precious a possession for anyone to risk the possibility of forgetting, or being too much occupied, to attend to the matter next week.

Take advantage of the time limit—do not be beaten by it.

The closing of the subscription list is no wilful imposition. It is a measure devised for the profit of the reader. The time limit is not a fortuitous drawback to an otherwise satisfactory offer, it is a radical factor which goes to make the extraordinarily low price practicable.

The Times wished to show the lowest figure at which a new book could possibly be sold. Having greatly reduced the price by dividing the cost of production over a very large edition (instead of a very small one, as is habitually done with new and important publications), it found that to subscribers who purchased at once, making a large number of buyers in a short time, an even lower price could be charged. Each of the 25 volumes of the History is equal, and more than equal, in all outward appearances to a book published at a guinea and sold in Australia at 25s. Until next Saturday the History may be purchased in Australia at the rate of 7/11 a volume—less than one-third of the figure at which you would value it at first sight. And if you examined the volumes, and compared the number of words contained in them with the number of words in the average guinea book, you would find that the subscription price of the History to-day, and for the next six days, is really less than one quarter of the cash price ordinarily charged for new books. Such is the extent of the reduction that can be effected by making a strictly limited introductory sale to prompt subscribers. The closure, therefore, is a thing to take advantage of, not to lose by.

(2) If you did not know that the list was soon to close, there might be just cause for complaint,

But you know the list closes next Saturday.

When the price of a commodity is raised, it is usual to "spring" the rise upon the purchaser and make some excuse on the ground of increased cost of material, labour, and what not else. The Times makes no such excuses. The rise in price which takes place next Saturday is an integral factor in the offer made by The Times, nor has any announcement of the History been made since the opening day (April 17th) without reference to the fact that the sale was for a short time only.

(3) If, in order to be in time, the subscriber had to make any considerable outlay, he might find the time limit an inconvenience,

But all you have to spend is 7/6.

A single payment of only 7/6 secures the complete 25 volumes of the History, with oak bookcase if required, delivered free to any address in the seven centres where stock is held, and elsewhere in accordance with the favourable terms set forth above the subscription form at the foot of this announcement. No further payment need be made until one month after receipt of the volumes.

(4) If you had to commit yourself to any considerable expense in the future, you might wish for an extension of time to think the matter over.

But all you undertake is a series of monthly payments of 7/6.

Not content with naming a "record" price, The Times facilitates payment by splitting up this price into fractions payable after delivery of the complete 25 volumes in monthly sums of only 7/6. No one need hesitate therefore on the score of expense.

(5) If you were asked to buy the History on the grounds that a universal history is an indispensable possession, that you know of no other in English, and that this one is presumably good because it is published by The Times—these reasons, though they certainly have their weight, might seem insufficient. You might object that you wished to make inquiries about it, and that there was not time now to do so before the closing date.

But the 84-page prospectus affords ample data for forming an opinion of your own, and there is still time enough to write for it if you will use at once the inquiry form printed at the foot of this page, next to the form of subscription.

The prospectus issued by The Times, and sent post free to anyone who asks for it, contains 16 specimen pages, 4 full-page plates, and a number of illustrations from the History; it gives a complete description of the plan and scope of the work, the manner in which it was made, the names of the chief contributors, and a brief resumé of the contents of each volume.

If you have received particulars of the History, use this form of subscription. If not, use this inquiry form. This is your last chance of making inquiry.

INQUIRY FORM. To THE TIMES (London), 7 O'Connell Street, Sydney.

Please send me 84-page illustrated prospectus of the Historians' History of the World, with subscription form shewing prices and terms until Saturday, August 7th.

In connection with the attached form of subscription please note the following points:—

Free Delivery.—The History and bookcase will be delivered free to any address in the seven centres where stock is held, viz., Adelaide, Brisbane, Hobart, Launceston, Melbourne, Perth, Sydney. Beyond these limits goods will be sent carriage forward from nearest centre, except that (1) for an extra 2s. (prepaid) for the books, and 1s. 6d. for bookcase, carriage will be paid to any port in the Commonwealth or railway station within 100 miles from any of the 7 centres; (2) for an extra prepayment of 10s. for the books, and 7s. 6d. for the bookcase, carriage will be paid to any railway station. Subscribers remitting more than 7s. 6d. with their order are requested to indicate what portion, if any, is on account of carriage.

Subscribers completing purchase before the stipulated time, by cash or increased instalments (payable monthly, quarterly or half yearly, to the Times Office in Australia, or to any branch of the Bank of N.S.W.) secure 5 % discount upon balance that would have been outstanding had they made payments of only the stated amount. Subscribers are notified as their payments fall due.

Cash Payment. Should you prefer to pay cash, and receive a discount of from 5½ to 9 per cent., please indicate the binding required, and remit as follows: Cloth, £9 10s.; Roxburghe, £13 17s.; ¾ Morocco, £17 14s.; Pigskin, £28 17s.; Oak Bookcase, 34s.

A Choice of 4 Bindings. Contents precisely the same for all.

(1) For those who desire to purchase the History in the most economical form, The Times has had a smart scarlet Cloth binding prepared. For a standard book in constant use, a leather binding proves an economy in the end, but the cloth will give satisfaction to any subscriber who, after taking the better bindings into consideration, chooses the least expensive.

(2) The merit of the Roxburghe style is that the leather back gives strength to the most vulnerable part of a book. Dark wine colour, prettily ornamented in gold.

(3) The fact that the leather comes so far over the cloth sides renders the three-quarter Morocco binding all but equal in appearance and strength to full Morocco, while the cost is very much less, because the binding of a volume does not cut into a whole skin. The colour is dark green, richly ornamented in gold. This style is strongly recommended, and offers the greatest value for the price.

(4) The full Pigskin binding is superb. The fine grain and warm colour of the heavy natural skin is beautifully set off by the noble Gothic design covering back and both sides. Indestructible. Improves with exposure and use.

THE TIMES (LONDON), 7 O'Connell Street, Sydney.

WANTED,
A WORKS MANAGER, ALSO A MACHINE SHOP FOREMAN.

APPLICATIONS are invited for the Position of MANAGER of our General Engineering Works, employing about 150 hands.

The Departments of which the successful applicant would have control embrace Patternmaking, Moulding, Fitting and Machining, Blacksmithing and Boilermaking; also a Department for the manufacture of some special lines. He would have full charge of all work from the time that the order is received from the Drawing Office until the completed job is handed over to the Shipping Clerk for despatch.

APPLICATIONS are also invited for the Position of FOREMAN of the Fitting and Machine Shop. This position entails the responsibility attaching to the education and direction of thirty apprentices.

In inviting applications we do not state the salaries offered as "The salary depends on the man, not on the position." We may say, however, that there is scope for really first-class men who have the necessary experience, combined with the ability, energy, and determination to carry through the job in the best possible manner.

Under the Profit-sharing system in force with us, a successful man in either of these responsible positions would get, in good years, a substantial bonus addition to his salary, but to earn this "He must be successful," that is, "He must get out all work accurately, promptly, and cheaply." Must be a man of business methods, used to system, with a retentive memory able to pass under review the position of all jobs in his hands at any one time. Must be tactful, and used to handling men.

We shall be glad to receive applications for these positions, accompanied by details of experience, age, and salary asked. Copies of testimonials and references should be attached to applications.

Applications addressed to us, c/o Messrs. J. WILDRIDGE and SINCLAIR, Ltd., Engineers, 82 Pitt street, Sydney, should be delivered not later than noon of SATURDAY, 14th AUGUST.

All communications will be regarded as confidential.

JAPANESE AMENITY.

There are, it seems, two lessons, and only two, that can be safely gathered from a study of contemporary history. The first is the futility of generalisations of any sort; the second the folly of prophecy without knowledge. We can no longer rely on our former confident beliefs as to the weakness of the Oriental character in some circumstances, and its strength in others. The Turks, the Persians, and the Egyptians have given us cause to wonder whether there are any fundamental differences that cannot be removed by education and experience. Our most forcible lesson in the folly of prophecy, and of drawing general conclusions from insufficient premises, has been taught us by the Japanese. No one now would venture to predict the course of their future history, or to describe in a few sentences the virtues and the failings of the people. But nothing has explained away the bravery of the Japanese soldiers, the efficiency of their officers, or the ability of their generals. Before the war with Russia stay-at-home and uninquiring people had been accustomed to regard Japan as the most delightful resort left for travellers, the home of a charming people, courteous and interesting, the patient devotees of the beautiful and unsubstantial. In the war they defeated the Power till then regarded as the most formidable enemy to Great Britain, whose progress appeared to be deliberate and irresistible. After the war Japan took rank as one of the great Powers of the world, and her people were celebrated not only for their bravery, their patriotism, but for their humanity, their kindness to their enemies, and their honourable observance of the usages of warfare.

The succeeding years have shown that the new impression needed as much modification as the old. The Japanese in their treatment of their new dependencies have shown other qualities than those which gained them the eulogy of President Roosevelt. Rumours of cruelty and treachery have been circulated, from which it has been inferred that many of the incidents of the war should be regarded as proofs not of what the Japanese are, but of how they wished to appear. The conquerors have shown a desire to keep their conquests to themselves, which is none the less offensive, because it ought to have been expected. In commercial matters they have shown the same desire to put themselves on a level with older nations, and to keep the fruit of their economic progress for themselves. The consequence of their success is that their country has lost some of its charm, both for those who are fortunate enough to know it at first-hand, and those who have had to derive their knowledge from books. Long before the war which gave them their place among the Powers, the Japanese had taken to themselves the command of the Roman poet—

> Ah, poor Catullus, learn to put away
> The past is past, be sure; the task essay
> That manhood brings.

They determined to be no longer merely interesting, but intelligent, enterprising, and aggressive. They succeeded in losing some of the attractiveness which grown men find in delightful and old-fashioned children. They gained at the same time in the interest which was excited by their strange mixture of contradictory qualities. Their critics found on the one side cruelty, deceit, and indifference to suffering: on the other patriotism of the highest order, the finest capacity for the endurance of pain, and an unvarying courtesy to strangers. How is this combination to be explained? How is it likely to be affected by the future intercourse of the Japanese with the other nations of the world? Very considerable assistance towards answering these questions has been given recently by Baron Kikuchi in some lectures before the University of London, afterwards reprinted. The Japanese system is based on an Imperial rescript, issued in 1890. The principles laid down in this document have been substantially followed since, though there have, of course, been additions. England, for instance, has given to the students football and cricket, which, with music-hall songs, constitute her chief gift to European colleges: America has given the more popular baseball. The system is evidence of a keen desire to follow European models in the matter of organisation, in particular in the provision of training institutions and technical schools. But its spirit has more in it of the old Japan than we have been accustomed to meet of recent years. We understand more of the patriotism of a Japanese when we realise how he is taught from his earliest youth to reverence first the Emperor, then his parents, and to look upon the family as a continuity in which his life is only an unimportant episode. "Still glides the stream, and shall for ever glide." Wordsworth expresses the doctrine which is explicitly taught in the schools of Japan, and has been implicitly realised in the lives of many Englishmen.

But the element in the system which is most striking because most novel is the insistence on the teaching of manners. The Japanese, in spite of their contact with the West, still regard the fine arts as they were regarded in medieval Italy, or among the Greeks. They are a part of their daily life, not a luxury, or something to be observed on special occasions, like church-going, as they are held to be among ourselves. Ugliness is a thing to be tolerated as little as any other discomfort. Good manners are regarded in exactly the same way. The Japanese, like the Romans, have the same word for manners as for morals, and they do not separate the two in their minds. Manners and morals are not merely equally important. They are the same thing. It follows that in a country where there is no fear of teaching religion, lest some youthful mind should become tainted with the wrong heresy, the teaching of manners forms a large part of the school curriculum. Special lessons are given from the lives of Japanese and Western heroes to inculcate the cardinal virtues as we know them. Lessons are given in another branch of the same subject, to show how a Japanese child should behave before his parents, his teachers, his brothers and sisters, or his friends. Those who founded the system were of the opinion, lately expressed by one of our inspectors, that education should have regard to the inner life of the pupil, as well as to his capacity for earning a living. The difference between the Japanese and ourselves is that they are more thorough-going. We give our scholars books to read so that they may have something to think about. The Japanese endeavour to influence at the most impressionable age "the little nameless, unremembered acts," which, for the happiness of most people, are of vital importance; and in doing this their sense of the value of beauty and their horror of ugliness lead them to care as much for the manner and form of an act as for any other of its elements. It is a task beyond an Australian to imagine such a form of teaching transplanted to other lands. We can only acknowledge from experience the value of the lessons which the Japanese teach and we neglect, and envy a people that have so fully realised the meaning of Keats's famous line. It is impossible to tell what will happen when the people of Japan appreciate the European doctrine, that every man should count for one, and no one for more than one, and have gained their industrial ambitions. But it must be safe to say that the influence of beauty and patriotism lived with and taught for so many generations is likely to outweigh all the passion for imitation which the Japanese are supposed to possess.

OUR OWN HISTORY.

The request of the Historical Society for a modest subsidy of £100 a year towards the furtherance of its work is one which we trust the Government will have no hesitation in granting. In a very unobtrusive way the group of enthusiasts who constitute the society is doing work of undoubted value, which deserves to be more widely known and shared in. The general run of people are probably too much absorbed, all unconsciously to themselves, in the work of making history in their generation to have much time or inclination to concern themselves with the records of the generations that have gone before. It therefore devolves upon the few endowed with perhaps more of the historical imagination than their fellows, and animated by a sentiment of affection for their own country and all that it contains, to search out and preserve against oblivion the significant fragments of the past, so that the generations that come after may have a record of their nation from its beginnings in this great southland. It is our good fortune that within the past fifty years or so we have had at work amongst us several most enthusiastic and intelligent collectors of material, the prince of them all being the generous Australian-spirited man whose memory is perpetuated in the magnificent Mitchell Library, which was his gift. We can best assess the priceless value of this gift when we realise that it represents the expenditure of a great part of a large private fortune, and the assiduous application through a fairly long life of a man of rare historic sympathy and perception. While Mr. D. S. Mitchell lived he was not merely the animating centre of a devoted circle of collectors and tabulators, whose sole reward is the intellectual pleasure which they derive from their endeavours, but his purse acted as a most effective magnet to all sorts of rare and interesting and valuable prints, documents, pictures, and the like which happened to fall into the possession of those who were only too willing to part with them for a cash consideration. Had not a man of Mr. Mitchell's class—a man, that is, of culture, leisure, abundant wealth, and untiring perseverance in the pursuit of an object—appeared when he was most wanted, it is conceivable, nay, even probable, that much of the most valuable matter at present in the national collection would have been absolutely lost.

Now that Mr. Mitchell is gone, however, leaving no individual successor so well equipped in all respects to take his place, we must recognise the great desirableness of maintaining a rallying centre for Australian historical students and collectors. That centre the Historical Society—embracing as it does several individuals whose past services entitle them to rank as authorities in respect of various aspects of our earlier times—should be; and any reasonable financial encouragement the Government can give should be willingly given. The staff of the Mitchell Library, we may hope, will always be on the alert to fill up gaps in the collection under its care, as well as to work conscientiously to bring it down to date, and hereafter keep it thus. But even so, the library cannot do much without the co-operation of the private collectors who are brought together in mutual helpfulness by the society. We might well wish that similar societies existed in every Australian State, and in this connection it is a pleasure to note the formation of one the other day in Melbourne. It can never be too often insisted that the Act of Union definitely closed a period in our history, namely, the colonial period, which will always appear to the people of the future who choose to look back through the years, even as it does to no small proportion of us now, as by far the most interesting period. It embodies the story of our people's peaceful conquest of this continent—a story with a wealth of thrill and movement and colour, as it will be clearly enough felt when seen in its true perspective. It is not every people that has the same opportunity of preserving a fairly full record of its beginnings, and we should be wanting, indeed, in national sentiment if we did not make the most of it. We should be anxious to preserve not only such records as may be available in the way of printed and written matter, but also such pictorial matter as may serve to give to the future a visual representation of as many phases of the past as may be. In this latter connection we should particularly regard our national portraiture. The ex-Prime Minister's proposal for a gallery of portraits is one which might well have the sympathetic consideration of his successor.

CONTROL OF INEBRIATES.

With whatever modifications thought desirable in the Inebriates' Bill, the central principle should commend itself to the enlightened sense of the community. As Mr. Wade rightly said in his second reading speech, the public control of the inebriate has become a matter of public policy in all advanced countries. So much is needed, in the first place, for the protection of society against the offences which the victims of chronic alcoholism are always liable to commit; and, secondly, in the best interests of the individual so afflicted. Perhaps the latter is even the stronger motive. Although it has taken a long time, the world has at last got round to the view that alcoholism, in its aggravated forms, is a disease, and that it is just as reasonable to visit the pains and penalties of the law upon its victims as it would be to punish consumptives simply because they have consumption. The fact that wanton indulgence in alcoholic liquors has admixed with it some measure of moral infirmity should not prevent us seeing that the moral infirmity has a physical basis, just as have so many other species of moral shortcomings. We have made a great advance, therefore, in determining to treat the offending inebriate, not as an ordinary misdemeanant, but as what he or she really is, namely, a person who is suffering from a paralysis of will, a neurasthenia, requiring hospital rather than gaol treatment. In this way we are bringing our policy in respect of inebriates very much into line with that which operates in regard to the insane. Public opinion about both, indeed, seems to have developed along closely parallel lines. Time was, and not remotely, when the insane person was regarded with a more or less superstitious dread as being possessed of devils, and the literature of a past generation bears abundant testimony that the treatment meted out to these unfortunates was entirely in harmony with the grotesque conceptions which prevailed as to the nature of the malady. Similarly until quite recent times, and still in the view of many worthy people, the alcoholic is merely a sinner against the light, richly deserving to be flogged with the scorpions of a hitherto very obtuse law.

Mr. Wade's bill proposes to give the Courts power to deal, if necessary, with all inebriates—with those that come before them as offenders as a matter of course, and, under certain conditions, with those who are not known offenders against the law, but are nevertheless shown to be ungovernable alcoholics, for which the treatment and restraints of an institution are deemed necessary. No doubt the bill proposes to give the Courts very extensive powers over the liberty of the individual, and the Government would do well to carefully scrutinise some of the clauses in the light of the very acute and useful criticism ventured by Mr. Daniel Levy. Nevertheless, the safeguards against any indiscreet use of power by magistrates, or, again, any unscrupulous action by second parties who might apply for the segregation of an inebriate, would be sufficient if they were in conformity with those which now apply in lunacy. This would perhaps involve a larger use of medical testimony as to the individual condition than the bill proposes, and to the extent that it did, perhaps it would be well. On the other hand, it would scarcely seem desirable to exercise no discrimination between those who have been convicted of offences and those who have not; or, again, as between those who would have to be a charge on the State and those who would not, as the leader of the Opposition generally contended. But the Government certainly should make it clearly a part of the policy of the measure that delinquents coming within its scope should be confined under conditions which keep ever uppermost the idea of a hospital, and never (save, perhaps, in certain cases) the idea of a gaol. With these assumptions we see no reason why the measure wisely administered might not be made a humane instrument for the physical and moral regeneration of a class in the community whose infirmity, intelligently apprehended, is more often a matter for public sympathy than public scorn.

To-day's "Herald."—Sir Henry Lucy (page 5) refers to the changed circumstances of the Russian Duma's second visit to London. Three years ago a number of delegates came to England, but the Duma was suddenly dissolved, the Russian official world gave them the cold shoulder, and some of the members of the Duma returned to meet punishment. This year all is changed. The official history of the Boer War goes on. It is not only a slow book in appearing, but amazingly slow in selling. The three volumes so far issued have cost £30,000; the sales are £1100. On page 7 will be found another of Dr. Poidevin's papers on the broad lines of the Australian tour, this time dealing with the decisive victory of Noble's men in the second test match. On page 5 Mr. Carlyle Smythe continues his series of papers on Modern Germany from an Australian's point of view. The subject this week is the German Emperor, as to whom public opinion in Germany is as much divided as anywhere else. Incidentally we are told, on Berlin medical opinion, that there is no truth in the rumour that the Emperor suffers periodically excessive pain. On the same page Mr. J. H. M. Abbott writes another appreciation of Home—Up-country, and the real bush and the good bush types. Our American letter appears on page 17, and our correspondent deals with the great canal, the Consular service, and the Sage millions. On page 13 will be found the Rev. R. B. S. Hammond's defence of no-liquor in New Zealand. In the Garden (page 7) concerns itself chiefly with the best climbers; and although the present weather does not invite to shady corners and arbours and trellises, still summer is on the way.

State Cabinet.—The State Cabinet sat for more than four hours yesterday afternoon dealing with sessional business and looking into some matters of passing interest. It was understood that some consideration was given to the Estimates and to matters of policy, which will be explained in the Treasurer's Budget speech, to be delivered about a month hence.

Preservation of Parks.—The Minister for Lands has issued instructions for proceedings to be instituted against any persons found damaging public parks, or in any way interfering with the trees and shrubs growing therein. He has noted with some satisfaction that two persons proceeded against recently in a suburban court had each been fined £5 for stealing two Norfolk Island pines and a loquat tree from Aston Park, Bradley's Head.

Dead Men's Custom.—"Yes, you've got to be pretty skilful in an undertaker's shop," said the witness. "It wants more skill than ordinary carpenter's work. Besides, you've got to be careful at funerals. We don't want to offend our customers." The chairman didn't understand how a dead man could give custom more than once. "But their friends can," said the witness. "The ambition of an undertaker is to bury everyone except himself." Sometimes, he said, the work had its unpleasant side. "For instance—" But the counsel stopped him. "Let us take that for granted," said the counsel. "I want to get a little sleep to-night."

Telephone Rates.—Towards the end of the month the report of the board appointed to make inquiry concerning the cost of the telephone service, and to disentangle the accounts relating to that department, may be in the hands of the Postmaster-General, who will then be in a position to deal with the question of telephone rates, and to prepare a scale, based upon capital cost, interest, and sinking fund. Sir John Quick admits there is a large demand throughout the States for the extension of telephonic facilities. The extent to which this demand can be met is determined by the amount of money made available by Parliament, but so far as funds are available the work of extension will be pushed forward.

Mitchell Library.—It is officially announced that the date of the opening of the Mitchell Library cannot be fixed definitely owing to the large amount of preliminary work to be done, and because some of the equipment is not yet to hand. As suitable chairs could not be obtained in Sydney, it was necessary to import them from the United States. The reading tables, show cases, and other furniture, of Java teak, have been made locally. The tables are now being fitted with electric lights, so that artificial light may be supplied when required on cloudy days. Nearly all the pictures have been renovated and suitably hung in the special art gallery. The fitting of the book stack is nearing completion, and the manufacture of steel book-presses for the reading rooms is being pushed on locally as quickly as possible. The trustees think it would be inadvisable to open any part of the Mitchell Library until sufficient book-presses are completed and fitted for two of the reading rooms, as the noise of moving, hammering, and fitting the steel presses would render study impossible under the conditions. It is hoped that the official opening may take place in October or November, but as soon as the date can be fixed a public announcement will be made. It is intended to manage the Mitchell Library, as the late Mr. D. S. Mitchell directed, under by-laws similar to those in force at the British Museum. Admission will only be by ticket, and then for purposes of special study or special reference.

Irrigation Experts.—The report of Mr. P. Board, Under-Secretary for Education, respecting his recent visit to America, has so far been treated by the Minister for Education as a departmental document. It is understood, however, that the recommendations made as to a suitable occupant for the position of irrigation expert in New South Wales have been considered by the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Perry said at the conclusion of yesterday's Cabinet meeting that he hoped to be able to make a definite announcement during the next week or two. He had satisfied himself beyond doubt that there were two very good men in America, whose services might be secured. In all probability one of these two would be appointed.

Evidence Before the Half-holiday Commission.—The Mayor of Randwick, Alderman J. C. M'Dougall, appeared before the Saturday Half-holiday Commission yesterday as the champion of a week-end day of recreation, followed by a day of rest. He told how he had worked in Glasgow as an apprentice from 6 in the morning till 7 in the evening. Often he worked at night for a penny per hour. It was impossible for young men to advance themselves unless they had a few hours in the evenings and on Saturdays for study and self-help. Schools of Arts and similar institutions had his full sympathy on that score. He had reached a position of comparative independence through being able to secure technical instruction on Saturday afternoons. He supported his case by quoting his national bard, who held that "man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

The Church Bells were Ringing.—All policemen are not Irishmen. A senior-sergeant of police of the Mac clan caught several children coming away from a shop at Newtown last Sunday morning, where they had purchased a pennyworth of toffee. He gave chase, overtook the children, and brought them face to face with the shopkeeper. The end of it was the shopkeeper, a newcomer to the district had to face the magistrate at the local police court yesterday morning. The sergeant in detailing the circumstances remarked, "The church bells were ringing, your Worship." (Laughter.) "What have they to do with the case?" asked the magistrate. "It adds to the gravity of the offence, your Worship," replied the sergeant, amid much laughter. "I'll plead guilty," said the defendant. "I am only a new arrival in Newtown, and they soon caught me. It's no use taking up the time of the Court over a pennyworth of lollies, even if the church bells were ringing, your Worship." The magistrate inflicted a fine of 5s and 6s costs.

Captain Neitenstein's Retirement.—The esteem in which Captain Neitenstein, the Comptroller of Prisons, is regarded by the public is testified to by a number of letters we have received from correspondents expressing regret at his projected retirement. In paying a tribute of admiration to his abilities and the practical results of his work, the question is asked whether such a loss to the State is to be permitted without some extra inducement being made by the Government for him to remain in the service. One correspondent mentions that Captain Neitenstein appears to be in the prime of life and health, and hopes that some influence will be brought to bear so that a continuance of his capabilities as an administrator might be secured for a further term of years.

Theatres and Halls.—Under the provisions of the new Act 800 theatres and halls have been proclaimed, and their proprietors warned as to the necessity for licensing. Section 19 of the Act provides, in brief, for a penalty not exceeding £100 where such places are used on any Sunday, except with the previous approval of the Minister, who can, however, give permission to open such houses for sacred concerts only. The concession of a temporary license allowed to be given by the Minister is important, as a number of halls will have to improve present conditions to ensure public safety. The Act allows the Minister to grant a temporary license, to have effect during necessary alterations and additions, subject to such conditions as he may impose. Reports are being obtained in regard to some hundreds of the smaller halls in the country, which, it is thought, will result in many of them not being required to be licensed. In the meantime these country halls (which have not been proclaimed) will not be interfered with.

A Busy Family Man.—"I've tried for my half a day time after time, until I get discouraged," said a witness before the Undertakers' Board last night. "I haven't had it for the last six months. The other men? Oh, they're more independent, I suppose, and they just take it off. My master won't let me be independent. Besides, I want to know beforehand whether I can get the day off or not." "I suppose you want to take your family out," suggested counsel, a little ironically. "Yes, I do," replied the witness, flaring up. "I'm proud to be out with my family. No, I don't follow any sport. I'd like a sail now and again, if I had an afternoon to myself. I follow up the sports in the paper; I don't get time for any more. Yes, I get Sunday off—the day of rest. Church? The Archbishop's funeral was the last church I was at. I take a little amusement on Sunday, sometimes. I don't go to the theatre; perhaps I may go one day in twelve months. No, it's not a fact that I would rather work at my business than take half a day off. Make it a stated day, and I'll be there. Refuse my overtime? Not when I work for it. I earn it."

Cost of Pensions.—A return prepared by the Registrar under the Old-age Pensions Act, covering the operations for 1908-9, was presented to Parliament on Thursday. It showed that the total amount paid under the Act in respect of old-age pensions was £602,207 19s, and in respect of invalidity pensions, £75,372. The total number of old-age pensioners worked out at 22,110, and of invalidity pensioners at 3714.

Sir Harry Rawson's Hat.—"Two frock-coats a year," said the undertaker to the Wages Board. "The last one I bought was second-hand, because I couldn't afford a new one. And then there's hats. The last hat I got cost 4s 6d; it belonged to Sir Harry Rawson, I believe. . . . I got it cheap," he explained, when the Court had quietened, "because of the cockade mark on the side. No, it wasn't one of his, it was his footman's, so they tell me. Last a long time? Oh, yes, I suppose it'll last the usual six months or so."

Before the Public Works Committee yesterday, members of the press stated that the accommodation of the present press gallery in the Legislative Assembly was inadequate, and the ventilation bad. In several instances, through the bad lighting of the gallery, reporters' sight had been interfered with. The press gallery was too high, and should be lowered about 3ft.

The Director of Labour, Mr. Schey, intends visiting Newcastle with a view to putting on hand some works to relieve the distress caused by the slackness in the coal trade.

THE MEN REINSTATED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

As the result of the intervention of the Premier, Mr. Murray, and several members of Parliament, the directors of the Melbourne Tramway Company have decided to re-engage five men who were recently dismissed, on their assurance that they will loyally conform to the regulations of the company. One of the directors stated that the men were dismissed because they failed to have their grievances made known in the proper way.

The envoys from the Colonial Office, Sir Charles Lucas and Mr. Pearson, arrived in Auckland from Wellington yesterday, and are the guests of Lord and Lady Plunket at Government House. After spending a week at Rotorua they will leave for Sydney, and will proceed from there to Fiji.

Yesterday presentations were made at the Oxford Hotel by Mr. A. G. Ralston, K.C., on behalf of members of the Bar, to Mr. W. L. Merewether, M.A., who is retiring from the Public Service after 27 years as Crown Prosecutor at the Sydney Quarter Sessions, and latterly with Judge Rogers on the South-western Circuit. The presentations consisted of an illuminated address signed by nearly 60 of Mr. Merewether's colleagues at the Bar, expressing their kindly feelings towards the recipient, and their recognition of his uniform courtesy and kindliness of disposition in his relations with them when he was acting as Judge or Crown Prosecutor. The second memento took the form of a silver-mounted inkstand, with bell attachment for table purposes. The address bore the signatures, among others, of the following King's Counsel:—Mr. B. R. Wise, Mr. Bruce Smith, Mr. A. Gordon, Dr. Cullen, Mr. C. B. Stephen, Mr. A. G. Ralston, Mr. A. B. Shand, and Mr. Langer Owen. The chairman mentioned that letters had been received from Judge Murray and Judge Backhouse regretting their inability to be present. In making the presentations Mr. Ralston spoke in felicitous and complimentary terms, and those present cordially drank Mr. Merewether's health.

The Minister for Defence (Mr. Cook), the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Fuller), and the Vice-President of the Executive Council (Senator Millen), and Sir William Lyne left Melbourne for Sydney by express last night.

The Postmaster-General, Sir John Quick, arrived from Melbourne yesterday. He was busily engaged during the day on departmental matters, and in the evening he was the guest of honour at a smoke concert arranged by the professional and clerical staff of the Postal Department. Sir John Quick leaves to-morrow night for Melbourne.

Among the passengers leaving Sydney to-day by the P. and O. Company's new mail steamer Mantua for Europe are Mr. Arthur J. Scott (managing director of S. T. Mr. George Bray Johnston, who has been appointed stock inspector at Broken Hill, and was until recently employed on the staff of the Sanitary and Health Department of the Sydney Municipal Council, was at the Town Hall presented with a silver-mounted bag and travelling rug by Mr. B. P. Lloyd, inspector of nuisances, on behalf of the members of the staff.

THE COMMONWEALTH.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the Senate to-day the bill to grant out of the consolidated revenue fund the sum of £1,000,000 for invalid and old age pensions was passed through all stages.

According to figures prepared by the Treasury Department, old age pensions are likely to cost two millions per annum. The averages of the New South Wales Pension Department are taken as a basis by the Commonwealth officers for calculation, as the conditions there approximate those under the Federal Act. In New South Wales the average pension was about £24 per annum. The total number expected by the Commonwealth authorities is more than 80,000, and at £24 each the annual cost would be £1,920,000.

DEALING WITH COMBINES.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Glynn) has framed a number of new questions, which are to be put to members of the alleged coal combine. The questions come within the scope of that portion of the existing Act which remains unaffected by the recent decision of the High Court. It is expected that at an early date action will be taken in connection with the alleged confectionery combine.

AUSTRALIAN AEROPLANES.

Since publicity was given to the Government's intention to subscribe £5000 towards a prize for a workable aeroplane the Defence Department has been deluged with suggestions and inventions. It is stated that a large proportion of the £5000 required from private or other sources is likely to be immediately forthcoming in Sydney.

SIZE OF CORNSACKS.

The Minister for Customs (Sir Robert Best) has under consideration the question of prohibiting the importation of all jute piece goods suitable for the manufacture of grain bags over 23 inches in width. "I am reluctant," said the Minister, "to take an extreme course; but I fear it may be necessary to adopt some such course unless the manufacturers are prepared to undertake the branding of all of the larger-sized sacks made by them. The brand should be an indelible one of not less than two-inch characters. It must be placed inside as well as outside each sack, and should satisfy manure, salt, or wattle bark, as the case may be." Sir Robert Best's suggestions are to be placed before the manufacturers.

ANTI-TRUST BILL.

The third reading of the bill to amend the Australian Industries Preservation Act was moved in the Senate by the Minister for Customs.

Senator Guthrie (S.A.) pointed out that as far as the shipping industry was concerned the bill would have no effect until the Commonwealth navigation law came into force. He urged that the bill should be passed, but that its provisions should be suspended until the House was in a position to see to what extent the shipping industry was to be protected.

The third reading was agreed to, and at 4.10 p.m. the Senate adjourned till 2.30 p.m. next Wednesday.

THE FREMANTLE SEAT.

IMPERIAL DEFENCE.

RISK OF INVASION.

CABINET COMMITTEE'S INQUIRY.

IMPORTANT SPEECH BY MR. ASQUITH.

ABSOLUTE SEA SUPREMACY IMPERATIVE.

LONDON, July 30.

In Committee of Supply of the House of Commons last night, Mr. H. H. Asquith, Prime Minister, made an important speech describing the working of the Imperial Defence Committee.

Mr. Asquith said that when Mr. Balfour formed the committee seven years ago considerable doubt and some apprehension were expressed whether it could be adapted to our ordinary administrative machinery, and particularly to the maintenance of separate responsibility in the War Office and the Admiralty.

For himself Mr. Asquith said he desired to say at once that, having for the past four years worked in intimate and continuous relations with the Imperial Defence Committee, he regarded it, besides being a valuable part, as an indispensable part of administrative organisation. It was an advisory, and not an executive, committee. Thus, while the Cabinet must always be responsible for national policy, and the War Office and the Admiralty must always be responsible for the execution of the policy so determined, the Imperial Defence Committee did not intervene, either in one or the other of these departments. Its functions arose from the necessity felt in all great countries, and in none so pressingly as in Great Britain, for co-ordinating the work of the army and navy, and it was the business of the Imperial Defence Committee to study the best provision from time to time of the military and naval requirements of the Empire as a whole. Hence, it must be inflexible, and the Government must be empowered to add to it ad hoc.

DOMINION REPRESENTATIVES.

He hoped that before the representatives of the dominions left the country an opportunity would occur of inviting some of them to participate in the meetings of the Imperial Defence Committee, and consider some of the problems affecting them equally with us. The committee would thus include representative men from all parts of the Empire.

A portion of the work was confidential, but he might say that it included exhaustive inquiries in the first instance by subcommittees on such subjects as the military needs of the Empire in respect of recent changes of army organisation: also as affected by the defence of India, the strategical aspects of the Firth and Clyde Canal, aerial navigation, and our policy regarding the proposed Channel tunnel.

The Government also had a colonial defence committee, which for a long time past had been watching colonial aspects of Imperial defence. Similarly the Government this year established a joint naval and military committee on the defence of home ports.

INVASION INVESTIGATION.

The inquiry into the allegations of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford respecting the distribution of the fleet in home waters was most impartial and thorough, but the committee had not yet finally adjusted its report, therefore the matter in that sense was still sub judice.

"But another investigation of a more comprehensive character," Mr. Asquith continued, "was a fresh inquiry at the instance of Lord Roberts into the possibility of invasion. A special sub-committee, of which I was chairman, sat for nearly a year.

"The whole subject was minutely studied, and the conclusions unanimously reached after conceding the most favourable possible conditions for hypothetical invasion were, firstly, as long as naval supremacy is adequately assured invasion on a large scale, such as contemplated by Lord Roberts, viz., the transport to these shores of from 120,000 to 150,000 men, is absolutely impossible; but, on the other hand, if we permanently lost command of the sea, whatever might be the strength or organisation of your military forces here at home, even though you had an army like Germany's, not only would it be impossible for Great Britain to escape invasion, but subjection by the enemy would be inevitable.

"Hence the business of the Admiralty is to maintain our sea supremacy at such a point that we could not lose command of the sea. (General cheers.) And that as against any reasonably possible combination we must hold the sea, and make invasion an impracticable event.

THE STRENGTH OF THE ARMY.

"Our second proposition was that, besides a home army sufficient to repel small sporadic raids, you must have an army adequate to compel any sane opponent contemplating invasion to come with so substantial a force as to make it impossible for him to avoid our fleet. (Loud Opposition cheers.) That we believe to be the real function of the home army. (Opposition cheers.)

"Nobody would undertake the task of invasion with less than 70,000 men. I do not believe that 70,000 would ever get through, but you must have in these matters an ample margin of safety. That is our conclusion after the most careful investigation ever made. It is the business of the War Office to have in all circumstances a properly organised and equipped force, capable of dealing effectually with a possible invasion of 70,000 men. If both these naval and military conditions are satisfied, it is the opinion of the Imperial Defence Committee that the country is safe from invasion.

THE SPEECH DISCUSSED.

GENERAL AGREEMENT.

The reply of Mr. Balfour to the speech of Mr. Asquith showed that he, like the Committee of Imperial Defence, had altered his views on the question of invasion since 1905. Mr. Balfour emphasised his belief that the committee was absolutely right in its conclusions. New circumstances had arisen. Invasion by a force of 70,000 men was a thing the Imperial Defence Committee must contemplate. The existence of the committee of defence would facilitate more consultation with the colonies, with a view of obtaining from them invaluable advice regarding the defence of the Empire.

Sir Charles Dilke (Radical) questioned the wisdom of spending a large sum on the Territorial force of 400,000 men. This might prevent the necessary expenditure on the fleet. He added, "We shall have to strain every nerve to meet the financial pressure necessitated by the maintenance of a fleet of great strength, and in my opinion a large home army is of secondary importance."

Mr. A. H. Lee (Conservative) said that the speech made by Mr. Asquith was incomparably the most interesting and important delivered in the House this session.

The Committee of Imperial Defence has for its chairman the Prime Minister, and its members the heads of the naval, military, and political services of the State, and when questions arise affecting particular colonies, departments, or measures special authorities may be called in. The purpose of the committee is to consider all questions of imperial defence from the point of view of the navy, the military forces, India, and the colonies; to obtain and collate information from the various departments of the State; to prepare any documents required by the Prime Minister; to furnish such advice as may be required, and to keep adequate records for the use of the Cabinet of the day and its successors. The first secretary was Sir George Sydenham Clarke. Mr. Balfour, in May, 1905, gave to the House of Commons the result of the investigations of the committee on the risk of invasion. The Committee of Defence presented a concrete problem for discussion by their expert advisers. They proceeded on the assumption that the regular army was away on some oversea expedition, and that the British organised fleets were at a distance. The experts were asked to estimate what was the smallest number of men which a foreign country might think of sending to invade Britain. The answer received from Lord Roberts, which was accepted by other experts, was that he did not think it would be possible to attempt an invasion with fewer than 70,000 men, and that to attempt to take London with such a force would be in the nature of a forlorn hope. Mr. Balfour pointed out the difficulties which would be experienced in transporting 70,000 men, and the difficulties of disembarking, when the helpless transports would be the prey of torpedo boats and submarines. The conclusion which had been come to was that a successful invasion of Britain was not an eventuality to be considered seriously. It is in this regard that Mr. Balfour and the Imperial Defence Committee have changed their views.

WORK OF THE CONFERENCE.

MILITARY ORGANISATION.

LONDON, July 29.

The Imperial Defence Conference is sitting at the War Office, and the discourses are expected to be briefer than anticipated.

The views of Mr. R. B. Haldane, Secretary of State for War, generally harmonise with the aims of Australian policy, and no long discussions are expected on army matters.

Naval problems will occupy more attention.

July 30.

Mr. R. B. Haldane, Secretary of State for War, participated in the discussion at the Imperial Defence Conference yesterday. The discussion was chiefly confined to memoranda relating to the military defence of the Empire, and its future organisation. Committees of experts were appointed to study details.

It is probable that similar procedure will be adopted in connection with naval defence when the Conference reassembles on Tuesday.

MR. FOXTON'S MISSION.

SOME TROUBLESOME QUESTIONS.

Mr. Foxton and his statements in London continue to attract much attention from members of the House of Representatives. In the Chamber to-day the Minister for Defence and the Prime Minister were bombarded with questions. Mr. Hughes said that the newspapers had published a cable in which, at the Imperial Defence Conference, Mr. Foxton had expressed certain views. Was he expressing the views of the Government or his own views? If he was expressing his own views had he been generally or specifically instructed by the Government?

The Minister for Defence said that Mr. Foxton, as the representative of the Commonwealth at the Conference, was absolutely free.

Sir William Lyne: Did I understand the Minister to say just now that Mr. Foxton may agree on behalf of the Commonwealth to anything that he deems advisable?

The Minister for Defence said that he had said over and over again that Mr. Foxton had gone on a secret consultative conference, and was perfectly free to discuss anything that came up.

Mr. Willis: The House was led by Mr. Deakin to understand that from time to time Mr. Foxton was to cable to the Government, and receive instructions.

Mr. Deakin stated in reply that so far as was necessary Mr. Foxton would consult the Government.

Mr. Webster: Has Mr. Foxton authority to bind this House to anything that he does at the Conference; and further, has he been instructed by the Government not to do anything which is likely to prejudice the judgment of the House?

The Minister for Defence said that he would not reply to any more questions on the subject before notice was given. (Opposition uproar.)

TERRITORIAL RESERVES.

ARMY COUNCIL SCHEME.

LONDON, July 29.

The Territorial Reserve approved by the Army Council in April last creates three kinds of reserves, namely:—

(1) A Territorial Reserve of 100,000 old territorials;

(2) A Technical Reserve, consisting of medical men, engineers, motorists, aviators, and veterinary surgeons; and

(3) A Veterans' Reserve, consisting of officers and men who have served in any military forces.

UNITED STATES TARIFF.

HIDES FREE.

LONDON, July 30.

Owing to the insistence of the Joint Committee of the two Houses of Congress appointed on the recommendation of President Taft to bring about an agreement on the tariff, both Houses have agreed to the free admission of hides, and have fixed the rate of duty on rough lumber at 1.25 dollars.

TRAGEDY IN COURT.

SENSATIONAL INCIDENT.

LONDON, July 29.

Parker Willis, a well-known politician in Arkansas (U.S.A.), obtained a divorce from his wife, and during legal proceedings to recover custody of his daughter, Ellis, the co-respondent, shot Willis with a revolver, despite the endeavours of the Judge to stop him.

SCOTTISH COAL TROUBLE.

SETTLEMENT EXPECTED.

LONDON, July 30.

There is general expectation that the Scottish coal dispute regarding a reduction of wages from 6s to 5s 6d a day, will be settled to-day, judging from yesterday's conference between the masters and the miners, under the presidency of Mr. Churchill, President of the Board of Trade.

INSURRECTION IN SPAIN.

READY FOR FLIGHT.

QUEEN AND QUEEN DOWAGER.

LONDON, July 30.

Queen Victoria of Spain and the Queen Dowager Christina are at Bayonne, Southern France, from which their departure depends on events.

It is stated that their Majesties have made preparations for every contingency.

BARCELONA QUIET.

SLAUGHTER WITH ARTILLERY.

DEMONSTRATION IN MADRID.

A great anti-war demonstration took place yesterday in front of the Royal Palace of Madrid, where King Alfonso is staying. Civilians and soldiers joined in shouting: "Down with the war."

Attacks on the Government forces at Barcelona continue. Thirty men were killed at the barricades yesterday. Five convents and several bridges were burned, and more bridges were destroyed by explosions of dynamite.

It is officially announced that cavalry at Barcelona drove the bulk of the rioters through the main thoroughfare, and that the artillery inflicted heavy loss. The survivors surrendered, and there now remain only a few bands in neighbouring villages.

WIDESPREAD RIOTS AND STRIKES.

NEWSPAPER CENSORSHIP.

LONDON, July 29.

Serious trouble has occurred in Saragossa (Spain), and strike riots have occurred at Reus, Alcoy, and other places.

Three warships have been ordered to Barcelona.

A rigorous censorship is exercised over all newspapers in Spain, and the publication of all war news is prohibited.

With one exception, that of Alcoy, which is in the south-east of Spain, the disturbances of which we have word are concentrated in Catalonia and thereabouts. It may be nothing more than a coincidence, but at least it is suspicious that the people should be up in arms in the province which, in the Carlist wars, has been the stronghold of Don Carlos, both the first and second of that name, just at the time when Don Carlos' son should be considering his position. There have been disturbances in Madrid, but they have not degenerated into riots. The readiness of the Queen and Queen Dowager for any contingency is of ominous import.

BATTLE IN MOROCCO.

DEFEAT OF SPANIARDS.

THEIR HEAVY LOSSES.

LONDON, July 30.

The battle between the Spanish forces and the Moors on Tuesday extended almost to the walls of Melilla.

One thousand Spaniards were killed, and 1500 to 2000 were wounded.

REINFORCEMENTS DESPATCHED.

SEVENTY-FIVE THOUSAND MEN WANTED.

All soldiers in Spain who have not been discharged from active service, and the garrisons of Burgos, Logrono, and Vittoria, are confined to their barracks, in readiness for a start to the front.

Six battalions of chasseurs embarked at Algeciras for Morocco yesterday.

INFERIOR SPANISH EQUIPMENT.

LONDON, July 29.

The "Echo de Paris" says that the position at Melilla is critical.

The Spanish soldiery is courageous, but the officers adopt obsolete tactics, and are not aware of the first principles of African warfare.

The commissariat, the newspaper says, as well as the surgical, topographical, and ambulance department, is very inferior.

NEW FRENCH MINISTRY.

CLEMENCY FOR DESERTERS.

LONDON, July 30.

M. Briand, Premier of France, has pardoned deserters from the French Foreign Legion, recently court-martialled at Casablanca.

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEAL.

LONDON, July 30.

In the appeal case Jones versus Holmes, consolidated Australian and New South Wales appeals, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has dismissed the appeal, with costs.

The plaintiffs and appellants, Jones and others, orginally brought an action against the defendants and respondents, Holmes and others, to recover damages for fraudulent misrepresentation, alleged to have induced the purchase by the plaintiffs of pastoral property in Queensland called Boudeena. The action was brought in the Supreme Court of New South Wales before Chief Justice Sir Frederick Darley and a jury, and the plaintiff recovered £2802 10s damages. Subsequently the Full Court, on an application by the defendants for a rule nisi for a new trial, granted a rule on certain grounds, but refused it on the main grounds taken by the appellants. From this decision an appeal was made to the High Court. It was alleged that the venders in the course of negotiations with the purchasers wrote them a letter offering the property for sale, and containing false representations as to the numbers of the stock upon it. The purchasers refused the offer, and sent their agent to inspect the property and report thereon. The vendors subsequently submitted a true statement of the facts, as previously communicated by them to the purchasers' agent, and made further alternative offers. The purchasers thereupon made a counter offer, which the vendors accepted. The High Court held that the contract actually entered into had not been in fact induced by the original misrepresentation, and therefore an action of deceit did not lie. The decision of the Supreme Court was reversed. The appeal to the Privy Council from this decision has been dismissed.

LANCASHIRE-YORKSHIRE MATCH.

HOME TEAM BATTING.

RAIN STOPS PLAY.

FOUR WICKETS FOR 261.

LONDON, July 29.

The Australians commenced a match at Hull to-day against a combined team of Lancashire and Yorkshire. The weather was dull, and the wicket soft. There was an attendance of 2000.

Hornby won the toss, and opened with Spooner and Hartley to the bowling of Macartney and Laver. Hartley, when 11, attempted to pull Laver, and was bowled. Spooner, playing brightly, hit three fours, and was 24. One for 36.

Denton succeeded. Runs mounted rapidly, and at 36 O'Connor went on in place of Macartney, and at 75 Whitty took the place of Laver. When the total was 85, after 85 minutes' play, Spooner was 56, obtained by attractive cricket. His half century occupied 65 minutes. Denton was 17, and was playing quietly. Rain now stopped play.

After an interval of 15 minutes, play was resumed. Spooner and Denton were still together at lunch. Spooner playing faultlessly, being 65, and Denton 24, the total being 101, obtained in 95 minutes.

The weather was showery during the interval, but afterwards became brighter. The attendance was about 4000. O'Connor and Cotter took up the bowling. In the second over after resuming Spooner snicked one from Cotter to mid-off, where Macartney took an easy chance. Spooner, who retired for 66, had been batting 105 minutes. He did some fine driving, and hit six fours. Denton was 31. Two for 113.

Tyldesley joined Denton. The latter batted freely, and the total was increased by 25, when Tyldesley was bowled by O'Connor for 8. Three for 138.

Rhodes was the next man. Denton was easily caught at slip by Trumper off O'Connor for 55, after batting 105 minutes. He gave a chance when 31, and hit six fours. Four for 157.

Rhodes was 8 when Makepeace went in. The former exhibited neat all-round play. Makepeace was cautious. The second century was reached in 190 minutes, and at the tea adjournment the score was four for 202, Rhodes being 40 and Makepeace 11.

Rhodes reached 75 by cutting and off-driving, and Makepeace 29. The latter was missed when 15 at slip off Hopkins. The partnership, after lasting 80 minutes, was stopped by a downpour of rain. The light was dusky, and drizzling rain fell some minutes before. Stumps were drawn for the day at 6.5 p.m., the score being four for 261.

With so big a total for only four wickets the combined Red and White Roses promised on Thursday to break the record against the present Australian team. To Thursday the highest total of a innings was Yorkshire's 346, and the only other score over 300 was Essex's 344 for nine wickets. Rhodes has scored consistently against the visitors. Indeed, he promises to head the English aggregates.

A number of amusing stories are being told concerning Brearley and the second test match. The "British Australasian" says:—"The defeat of the English in the late test match appears to have so staggered some of the London papers that it deprived them for the moment of even the power to make excuse. But they are recovering. The 'Daily Express' invites the magnanimous Baronet, Sir Home Gordon, to say in its columns that 'neither luck nor the Australians won the test match, but the English selection committee.' Sir Home Gordon goes on to write that 'it may seem ungracious, while congratulating the Australians heartily on their victory, to say that they have still to prove they are a big batting side.' He is quite right; it does seem ungracious; but having read this critics other writings on Australian cricket we should have been surprised if his remarks had seemed otherwise. Of Mr. Beerbohm Tree's Hamlet, Sir W. S. Gilbert is reported to have said that he liked the performance—it was funny without being vulgar. Similarly, we like the excuse of the 'Morning Post'—it is funny without being plausible. It will be remembered that at the beginning of the tour the 'Morning Post' prophesied that the Australians would not win a test match without help from the weather. By sticking to the weather one would have thought the 'Morning Post' could have made out a case to suit itself—but it weakly abondons weather for Mr. Brearley's boots. Making it axiomatic that a fast bowler would have won the game for England, the 'Morning Post' is faced with the fact that on the morning of the match Brearley, the fast bowler, was asked to play. This creates an awkward position, for it suggests that an amateur stalwart of the old country condemned his side to defeat through pique at not being invited to play earlier—when, by the way, weather conditions did not suggest that a fast bowler would be particularly useful. The 'Morning Post,' however, negatives this damning supposition by explaining that 'a familiar pair of boots is absolutely necessary if a fast bowler is to do himself justice,' and Mr. Brearley's familiar boots had gone to Tonbridge. 'If Mr. Brearley had not been parted from his boots the home team might easily have had much the best of the position before the drawing of stumps.' Thus the 'Morning Post.' The absent boots lost the match for England. Let those who choose think so, if it affords them any comfort. But they will perhaps excuse a smile at the thinness of the sportsmanlike excuse. Tonbridge is in Kent—about 30 miles from London. Brearley was invited to play on Monday morning. The Englishmen batted nearly all Monday, and granted that English railway arrangements are not all they should be, it would appear possible for a telegram to have brought the beloved boots to Brearley in time for him to compass the destruction of the Australians. We recommend the 'Morning Post' not to be disheartened, but to try again."

The question of amateurs' expenses in test matches was before the English Board of Control at the meeting at Lord's. The board decided that in future amateurs' expenses shall consist of payment of railway fares and a sum not exceeding 30s a day.

TAXING POSTAL NOTES.

ACTION BY MELBOURNE BANKS.

SIR JOHN QUICK'S OBJECTIONS.

The proposal of the Melbourne banks to make a charge of 1d on postal notes and money-orders collected by them, to which attention was drawn by Mr. King O'Malley in the House of Representatives, was yesterday brought under the notice of the Postmaster-General, who arrived early in the day from Melbourne. Sir John Quick has had several interviews with representatives of the associated banks in Melbourne, when he made inquiries as to the reasons for making postal notes and money-orders paid into the bank subject to a charge of 1d. "The principal reason advanced," he said, "was the large amount of trouble and clerical labour involved in the narration and identification of postal notes and money-orders presented at the counter, and they also allege that a similar chage is made by the banks in Sydney, without causing any public complaint.

"I have asked the representatives of the banks not to insist upon making the proposed charge, and informed them that if they did so the Government would have to inquire and consider whether its business in postal notes and money-orders would be thereby prejudiced; and, if so, whether any legislation would be necessary to protect that business. The Melbourne Chamber of Commerce, I understand, has also made representations to the chairman of the associated banks on the subject.

"A suggestion has been made that postal notes should be made legal tender. The difficulty in the way of doing this is that at present postal notes may be made payable to specified persons who signed their names as payees before receiving payment. Such a document, of course, could not be made a legal tender, as it would not circulate from hand to hand like a bank-note. There is also a great convenience in making postal notes payable to specified persons, for the signature is useful as a means of obtaining a receipt for payment, which is afterwards lodged in the post-office, and may at any time be referred to, and made available as evidence of payment. Another feature in connection with postal notes which has to be remembered is the provision that they may be made payable at specified post-offices. That, also, is a convenience for securing payment at a certain specified place, and as a means of stopping payment, where the note is lost or stolen. The whole question is one which requires careful consideration at the hands of the Government before any definite action can be advised or taken."

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. King O'Malley (Tas.) moved the adjournment of the House with a view of calling the attention of the Government to the fact that banks were charging for the collection of postal notes. He moved that it was desirable for the Government to make postal notes a legal tender, so that they could be used in circulation, and banks would then be forced to accept them without charging exchange. After several members had spoken on the subject the Treasurer said he would go into the matter with a view to seeing if anything could be done.

THE UNION BADGE.

THE CAMPAIGN.

OPENING DATE POSTPONED.

The Federal Executive of the Shop Assistants and Warehouse Employees' Association of Australia held a meeting on Thursday evening, and decided to alter the date upon which unionists shall when shopping ask for the badge. The Sydney Association had fixed Thursday, August 9, as the opening date of the campaign for this State; but it has been discovered that preparations cannot be completed in other States by that date, and the Federal Executive desires that the struggle to secure "preference to unionists" shall be commenced in all the States at the one time; so they have altered the time from August 9 to August 30. It was pointed out at the meeting that thy could not supply the badges fast enough, and that show cards to be hung up in prominent meeting places of unions and the thousands of circulars that have been printed could not be distributed in time to properly start the campaign on August 9, as intended. Consequently it was decided that the formal declaration of hostilities should be delayed until the end of the month. By that time the Federal Executive will be able to ask every unionist throughout Australia to make a demand to see the badge.

One of the executive pointed out that the employees were trying to do the thing peaceably, and the only people who had a quarrel with them were the shopkeepers, who would not countenance the union under any conditions. However, the employees, as a body, had no fear of the success of the movement, and were satisfied that before long it would be recognised in every shop in Australia. At any rate, they intended to fight until that end was accomplished.

A POLITICAL CENSOR.

SIR JOHN FORREST AS SUB-EDITOR.

"HANSARD" AND MR. WEBSTER'S HEADLINES.

Since the opening of the Federal Parliament members of the House of Representatives who have sent out copies of their "Hansard" speeches to their constituents, have been allowed to put headings throughout the matter dealing with the various subjects touched on. When Mr. Webster was preparing his record effort for publication in pamphlet, the Treasurer (Sir John Forrest), in whose department the Government Printing Office is, objected to the tone of many of the crossheads Mr. Webster sought to put in. The member for Gwydir resented the Treasurer's action in censoring his copy, and brought the matter up in the House yesterday afternoon. In reply Sir John read out a list of the lines he objected to. Some of them were as follows:—"The Betrayal of Alfred," "The Double Shuffle," "Didn't Know it was Loaded," "Reid the Conjurer," "The Grave-digger," "A Political Anarchist," "The Stiletto," "The Demon of Modern Politics." The reading of the lines occasioned much merriment. Sir John said as long as he was in charge of the department he would not let such crossheads pass. Whereupon Mr. Webster threatened to take further action in the matter.

LOST IN THE BUSH.

YAMBULLA, Friday.

Two constables and about 60 men were out all day yesterday and last night. A black-tracker has now been sent for. The whole field have gone out to-day in search. The country is very rough, and the nights are very cold, but it is thought the boy has matches.

HARVESTER INDUSTRY.

ROYAL COMMISSION'S REPORT.

EXORBITANT INTEREST.

"IRRELEVANT DATA."

FEDERAL INDUSTRIAL LAWS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The report of the Royal Commission on stripper harvesters and drills was tabled in Parliament to-day by the Minister for External Affairs. The report is signed by all the members of the Commission (Messrs. Poynton (S.A.), chairman, Chanter (N.S.W.), M'Dougall (Vic.), and Sampson (Vic.); but Mr. Sampson's signature is subject to a dissent embodied in a minority report submitted by him.

The principal report sets out the prices charged by various firms, and states that only one firm has sold at the price of £65 for harvesters, which was fixed by Parliament. No drills have been sold at the prices which were scheduled in the Act of 1906. The Commission has computed the rates of interest charged on time-payment system sales. According to the calculation these run from 11 per cent. to 53 per cent. per annum. The Commission is of opinion that an attempt should be made to limit the interest to 10 per cent. The number of hours worked is found to be 48 per week, with payment for overtime. The cost of selling and distributing is said to range usually from 15 to 34 per cent., averaging slightly over 24 per cent., but sometimes running as high as 50 per cent. on the cost price.

The Commission considers it desirable that men employed assembling parts, some of whom are said to be paid as low as 6s 3d per day, should be brought under the State wages board. It is found that the two "new protection" Acts of 1906, one of which has been repealed, and the other quashed by the High Court, failed to accomplish their intentions, but effected a reduction in the cash price of the machines, and some improvement in the rate of wages.

The Commission finds that the excise tariff method of applying the new protection is unworkable. It is estimated that the cost of producing a five-feet Sunshine harvester may be fairly stated at £47. The Commission believes that Mr. H. V. M'Kay, with no competitors from without, would shortly be able to command the whole of the home trade in harvesters. The Commissioners cannot agree that if there were no duty the price of harvesters would be reduced by the amount of the duty now charged. The opinion is based on the experience of South America. The Commissioners believe that if those States which have large Government workshops with efficient plants were to try the experiment of manufacturing these implements they could be sold at a lower price than is now charged.

The average wage of agricultural implement workers in the five States is compared as follows:—New South Wales, £79 0s 4d.; Victoria, £91 5s 6d; Queensland, £57 18s 3d; South Australia, £74 0s 11d; Tasmania, £43 6s 8d. The Commissioners are of opinion that the legal expenses of the unions who appeared before Mr. Justice Higgins in what was known as the Harvesters' Wages Case, were in the public interest, and that the existing liabilities of the Agricultural Implement Makers Employees' Union should be paid by the Federal Parliament.

MAJORITY RECOMMENDATIONS.

(a) That paragraph 35, of section 51, of the constitution relating to conciliation and arbitration for the prevention and settlement of industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State should be replaced by a paragraph giving the Commonwealth Parliament power to make laws for the peace, order, and good government of the Commonwealth with respect to industrial matters.

(b) That the wages set out in the award of Mr. Justice Higgins should be the minimum rate for this class of labour.

(c) That a board of trade or commission be constituted with ample power which may be exercised in the interest of the consumer.

(d) That steps be taken to prevent sellers from charging exorbitant rates of interest.

(e) That all terms such as "average capacity," "under average capacity," "improver," and "reputable employer" be eliminated from awards.

(f) That employers should be obliged to teach apprentices their trade.

(g) That a limit be placed on the number of unindentured boys employed.

(h) That the liability incurred by labour unions in the cases before Mr. Justice O'Connor and Mr. Justice Higgins be paid by the Commonwealth.

MR. SAMPSON'S MINORITY REPORT.

Mr. Sampson disagrees with the principle of complete transfer of industrial control to the Commonwealth. He considers that the conclusions as to the effect of the now non-existent new protection laws are not warranted by the evidence. The cost of production, he holds, is not in accordance with the evidence. He dissents from the opinion as to Mr. H. V. M'Kay's command of the trade. He does not agree that legal expenses should be refunded to labour unions, and complains in this connection that press extracts not tendered in evidence are here interpolated in the report. He states that the recommendation to eliminate certain objectionable terms from awards is not warranted by the evidence. The suggestion that State workshops should undertake manufacture, he says, is founded mainly on evidence from a State Commission appointed by Victoria on another subject. The final findings of the Commission are, in his opinion, based mainly on irrelevant data not part of the evidence. He points out that the scale of wages fixed by Mr. Justice Higgins was in accordance with the log rates fixed by the unions. A unionist witness admitted that he had not considered whether the limitation of one apprentice to every three journeymen would provide for the training of sufficient tradesmen.

The following is a summary of his conclusions:—That since the increase of duty cash prices have been reduced by £11 in the case of harvesters and £4 in the case of drills; that interest rates should be considerably reduced; that the term "reputable employer" should not form part of the industrial laws; that the employment of improvers should be strictly regulated; that apprentices should be limited, and compulsory indentures provided for; that a Federal Court of industrial appeal from local or State tribunals be appointed to adjust wages conditions in similar competing industries extending beyond the limits of a State; that the duty of £12 each on harvesters has proved effective, and secured the bulk of the home trade to local makers; that the greater part of the drill trade is in the hands of importers; that a fixed duty should be imposed on drills; that the evidence in support of State manufacture does not justify such a departure from existing systems of competitive enterprise.

AN AERIAL MYSTERY.

SWIFT NOCTURNAL FLIGHTS.

OVER NEW ZEALAND TERRITORY.

WELLINGTON, Friday.

Remarkable stories are coming from the South Island, from Christchurch to Invercargill, regarding mysterious lights seen at night.

The suggestion is that the light is shown by an airship. In some cases it is circumstantially declared that the light appears in the centre of a black body. One observer declares that the airship is shaped like a boat, with a flat top, and was speeding at about 30 miles an hour.

The airship has also been seen by about 30 people in the Oamaru district. Considerable excitement prevails among the population over a large stretch of country. But it is suggested that the appearances are merely due to fire balloons.

The most circumstantial report came from Gore, Southland, stating that the reported airship had been seen there for the last four nights, and that last night it was distinguished at 9 o'clock, passing at a great height, and travelling south, with a headlight attached.

SMALL ARMS FACTORY.

WHO SHALL BE EMPLOYED?

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the House of Representatives to-day the Minister for Defence was asked if he would see that in engaging men for the small arms factory the Public Service was exploited before men were drawn from outside. This request was greeted with laughter from all sides of the House, and the Minister was applauded when he said that the department was going to get the best men possible, no matter where they came from.

MELBOURNE TO FIJI.

SUBSIDISED SHIPPING SERVICE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Premier (Mr. Murray) has received a letter from Mr. Eyre Hutson, Colonial Secretary for Fiji, stating that the Government of Fiji is calling for tenders for a temporary direct steam service between Suva and Melbourne, and that the tenders are due to-morrow. The announcement regarding the tenders for the temporary service contained the intimation that a subsidy at the rate of £5000 a year was to be paid for the steamers running every four weeks, subject to the condition that the schedule of freights between Melbourne and Fiji must be the same as between Sydney and Fiji.

LIQUOR IN NEW ZEALAND.

THE RATIONALE OF NO-LICENSE.

WHY THE MOVEMENT GROWS.

(BY REV. R. B. S. HAMMOND.)

"Look here, I am a business man," said a gentleman in the train from Dunedin, "and I am dead against no-license." The traveller from Sydney was immediately all attention, and quietly asked, "Are you an undertaker?" "No, sir; I am a tobacconist, and my business has suffered very much from the closing of the open bar. The farmers used to come in often, have a few drinks, lose their pipe, and then proceed to buy a new one, and a fellow with a few drinks in him is always a good man to sell things to. Now they do not come in so often, don't lose their pipes, and purchase only what they need." The man from Sydney made a mental note of the fact that an opponent of no-license had borne eloquent testimony that no-license left a man free to stick at his work, look after his possessions, keep his wits about him when purchasing, and return home in a condition to warrant a glad welcome. Another business man volunteered the information that he was connected with the largest firm doing a time-payment business in the Dominion, and to back up his assertion that no-license areas were the best collecting places in New Zealand produced his lists to show that the people of Ashburton (no-license area) had paid 17s 6d for every 10s they need have disbursed to keep up their payments to date. Oamaru, another no-license area, was second with 13s 4d paid for every 10s necessary; Invercargill was sixth with 13s for every 10s. This gentleman added, "Business is business all the world over, but business is good business in no-license areas."

WHY THE BREWERS FIGHT NO-LICENSE.

The official organ of the Liquor Defence League of New South Wales supplies us in a recent issue with the following statement:—

One wet goods firm alone, of Dunedin, N.Z., estimates that the closing of eight hotels with which it had dealings means a loss to it of over £3000 per annum.

If this is so, then no-license diminishes the consumption of liquor; if it is not so, then "wet goods firms" must be counted out as unreliable witnesses. This statement is, however, in harmony with that of no less an authority than Mr. F. W. Thomson, who makes the following statement in his little book "High License," just published as a reply to the courteous criticism of Messrs. Rowntree and Sherwell's book on the taxation of the liquor traffic. Criticising Messrs. Rowntree and Sherwell's assumption that the consumption per head in each State is the same as that in the United States as a whole, Mr. Thomson says:—"There are absolutely no grounds for any such assumption; in fact, everything points to very great divergencies indeed. For instance, some six or eight of the States are under prohibition, more or less rigidly enforced. Temperance advocates, at any rate, cannot object to the argument that consumption in a prohibition State is but a fraction of what it is in a 'wet' area. Thus a State having few 'dry' areas would, other things being equal, consume more per capita than the average."

THE LOCKER SYSTEM.

This system, which the no-license people condemn as an evasion of the law and liquor advocates point to triumphantly as an evidence of the futility of the law, is likely to receive its death-blow in the near future. When no-license came into force it did not include clubs or railway refreshment places, and for a few years these were the "coffin nails" in the no-license cause, but have since been dealt with effectively. The locker system, according to an article in last Saturday's issue of this paper, is not peculiar to no-license areas. "A.G.S." stating in the article referred to that "there is one club in Wellington with several hundred lockers," and yet Wellington has very numerous open bars. Again, the same writer says, "Other clubs have lockers all over New Zealand."

As regards the locker system, I had very good evidence as to its comparative harmlessness. One of the ex-licensees in Oamaru has let a room in his hotel to a number of men, who formed themselves into a sort of club. Each pays so much a year for a locker, and has to stock it with his own grog. These can bring in their own friends and hire tumblers, etc., and have what they want, so long as their own supply holds out. This system, it will be seen, at once destroys the chief viciousness of the shouting custom. There is no reciprocity, consequently there is very little, if any, soaking. I had a conversation with an educated man of the world who stayed at this hotel for three months, not long ago. He says that if he had not known the lockers were in that room and being used he should never have suspected that alcoholic liquors were being consumed there.

Thus it will be seen that the locker system is not a very dreadful affair. Besides, it only exists in one out of the former 11 licensed houses.

NO-LICENSE—MORE LIQUOR.

This phrase is being quoted with such frequency that some are sure to believe it, and yet it has no foundation in fact. The increased output of beer in Invercargill is, of course, not consumed in the no-license area. The Invercargill no-license area is only a part of the Invercargill district, and what is used in the whole district pays duty in the no-license area.

People in New South Wales will catch the point of this argument by an analogy. If Bathurst were to vote no-license, and in New Zealand it were said that in spite of no-license there were 247 prisoners in the Bathurst gaol, the statement could be proved to be a fact, but would only influence those who did not know that Bathurst receives prisoners from every part of the State, and not 5 per cent. of the prisoners are local. The average annual consumption of alcoholic liquor for the Dominion in 1907 was 10½ gallons per head. In the no-license electorate of Invercargill it was 4½ gallons; Ashburton, 2.1 gallons; Oamaru, 1.59 gallons; and Clutha, where no-license has been in force 14 years, the consumption was less than 1 gallon. These percentages are worked out from a Government return, and were accepted by the liquor party, who used them in a curious way.

A statement on a large poster was displayed on every railway station in the Dominion, showing the amount of alcohol consumed in no-license areas—thus Ashburton (no-license district), consumed 102,982 gallons of beer, but they forgot to inform the public that this extended over a period of five and a half years, and compared with the consumption under license, showed a reduction of 47,000 gallons. In the whole of the references to duty paid in Invercargill there is not the slightest hint that the figures referred to any other place than Invercargill itself. What are the facts? This duty paid includes the whole of Southland, right up to Gore. All beer made at the Gore Brewery pays duty at Invercargill. This area covers three fully licensed electorates, viz., Wallace, Awarua, and Wakatipu.

UNBIASSED EVIDENCE.

In an article on Paul Cinquevalli in "Fairplay," the official organ of the Liquor Defence League, the following statement is made:—"In New Zealand, he (Cinquevalli) felt the inconvenience of the prohibition policy. He was unable to obtain his regular allowance of alcohol."

The evidence of the opponents of a cause is always valuable, and nothing could be more conclusive than this statement to prove that prohibition does prohibit.

Both of the Commissioners who lately went from the Commonwealth to investigate in New Zealand, state that people travel from no-license areas to go on "the spree;" this surely is conclusive evidence that it is very difficult to get liquor where there is no open bar.

A FEW IMPORTANT CONCESSIONS.

A.G.S., in his article on Invercargill's beer, so warmly approved of, and reprinted by, the liquor advocates, concludes by saying:—"I am bound to say that the opinion of reputable residents in no-license districts seems to be in favour of the maintenance of the no-license plan; and the opinion of New Zealand voters was shown last year to be in favour of its extension."

Mr. Rankin, the Queensland Commissioner, in his report says:—"That the average condition of the married artisan or labourer resident in a no-license area is often better than that of his fellow elsewhere is, I think, an undoubted fact. They do rightly claim to have, by the system of no-license, removed temptation from persons wanting in self-control. The street drunkard has practically disappeared, and no-license towns are the more pleasantly habitable for his absence."

This seems conclusive evidence that if there is an increased consumption of alcohol it is not due to no-license, nor does it take place in no-license districts.

THE GROWTH OF THE MOVEMENT.

While the prohibition of liquor is not an unqualified success any more than the prohibition of opium, yet it is the most effective means by which the evil may be diminished, and the history of the experiment in New Zealand proves conclusively that those who live in or near the places that adopt no-license are favourably impressed with the immediate and substantial improvement that follows.

No-license was forced on Balclutha in 1894 by the country vote, there being a majority of two against it in Balclutha itself. In 1905 the vote in Balclutha itself was 2 to 1 in favour of no-license. Comment is needless. The City of Dunedin, with 60,000 people, midway between Invercargill and Oamaru, two no-license areas, and a few hours' ride from Clutha and Mataura, polled on the last occasion 11,000 odd votes for no-license, to the 8000 odd of the liquor folk for continuance. Since no place in the Dominion that has had an experience of no-license has gone back as the result of the experiment, we are surely justified in believing that while opinions differ the great majority is in favour of the contention that no-license at its worst is better than license at its best.

FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

A COUNT OUT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the House of Representatives to-day the first two hours were devoted to informal business. For nearly an hour members asked questions or made personal explanations. Then Mr. King O'Malley moved the adjournment of the House to get the Government to make postal notes a legal currency, and thus frustrate the banks charging a collecting fee on them. That question disposed of, the second reading of the Northern Territory Bill was moved by the Minister for External Affairs, who at some length pointed out the benefits to be derived by the Commonwealth taking over the territory. After the speech of the Minister the debate was adjourned. Several small bills were formally dealt with, and the adjournment of the House was moved by the Treasurer. Members were loth to go home, and several matters were brought up for discussion. The principal grievance was the refusal of the Treasurer as Minister in charge of the printing office to let members "cross-head" their Hansard speeches sent out among their electors.

The debate dragged on, regardless of appeals by members who wanted to get their trains to other States. Mr. Webster was angry with the Government, and when the motion was put to adjourn he and Mr. Mahon called for a division. When the vote was taken it was found that there were only 18 members present, seven short of a quorum. The House was thus counted out, and the Speaker adjourned it at 4.40 till Tuesday.

The Government made no effort to keep the House, as its purpose was served as well by a count out as by an adjournment.

The Senate passed the Old Age Pensions Appropriation Bill through all stages. Labour Senators who intimated that they had no desire to oppose the measure kept the debate going for several hours. They appeared to resent the fact that the amending legislation emanated from the present Administration. The remainder of the sitting was devoted to the Anti-Trust Bill, which passed its third reading.

FEDERAL ARBITRATION.

AMENDED LEGISLATION.

A bill to amend the Federal Arbitration Act was read the first time in the House of Representatives to-day. It provides an alteration in section 9 of the principal Act, with a view to extending protection to employees and reciprocally to employers as already given up to the time of the registration of an association. The present Act provides that no employer shall dismiss an employee for the reason that he is an officer of an organisation.

It has been said that in some cases dismissals have taken place before an application has become registered; that is, after the application for registration has been made. This bill prevents dismissal from the time that the application has been made. Reciprocally the same protection is extended to the employer or his agent upon employees ceasing work for similar reasons.

Amendments are introduced to enable the President in cases where there is no industrial dispute to award costs as if there was a dispute. Within the limits of the existing Act occasionally important proceedings not technically disputes arise in court, but involving important principles, and the President cannot grant costs. Such a case might arise where two organisations represent the same trade.

THE FEDERAL CAPITAL.

ACQUIREMENT OF TERRITORY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the Senate to-day Senator Neild asked the Government whether application had been made by the Commonwealth Government to the Government of New South Wales for lands required in connection with the establishment of the Federal Capital; also whether the N.S.W. Government had made any offer of such lands to the Federal Government.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council replied that the Commonwealth Government had forwarded to the N.S.W. Government a map, showing the boundaries of the proposed Federal territory in the Yass-Canberra district, with a view to entering upon negotiations for such territory. The N.S.W. Government had not offered any lands to the Commonwealth, but had reserved from sale generally and lease (other than annual lease) all unalienated lands lying within the boundaries of the proposed Federal territory.

In the House of Representatives the Minister for Home Affairs (Mr. Fuller) said he expected to hear from the N.S.W. Government on the subject on Monday or Tuesday next.

AMERICAN BOYS.

PARADE IN MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The American boys paraded at the Federal Parliament House this morning, and were presented with a flag of the Commonwealth of Australia.

Mr. Deakin told the boys they were heartily welcome to Australia. The American fleet had been received as no other fleet, excepting our own, had ever been received. Australia was glad to see some of the sons of the great republic of America, which was bound with ties of blood and amity to those from whom both nations had sprung.

Mr. Fisher, the leader of the Opposition, said that the Australian sentiment was similar to that of America. He welcomed the boys of the great Republic.

Mr. Joseph Cook (Minister for Defence) also welcomed the boys. He then called on Major Gamble, officer in charge of cadets, to present them with the flag. The flag was handed to Major Peixotto, who is in charge of the boys. He called for three cheers for the Prime Minister and the Commonwealth. These were heartily given.

The American boys were beaten to-day at football by a team representing the State schools south of the Yarra. The scores were: —Victoria, 5 goals 6 behinds; California, 3 goals 5 behinds.

MELBOURNE ENGINE-DRIVER.

REDUCED IN STATUS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

On June 11 last complaint was made by passengers about to travel by the 1.10 p.m. train from Terang to Mortlake that the driver and guard in charge of the train were intoxicated. The complaint was made to the stationmaster, who did not suspend the men, but permitted the train to proceed in their charge, an engineer, who was a passenger, having volunteered to go with the driver.

During the past week the statutory board heard charges against the driver and guard of having been drunk while on duty. The board found that though the driver had had intoxicating liquor he was not incapable of performing the duties of driver in an efficient manner. But, having regard to the responsible nature of the duties performed by engine-drivers, the board could not countenance any man in the avocation of driver, fireman, guard, or signalman taking intoxicating liquor under any circumstances whilst on duty.

The board accordingly reduced the driver to the position of a skilled labourer for six months. With respect to the guard, the board exonerated him from the charge.

INTER-VARSITY RUGBY.

SYDNEY BEATS MELBOURNE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The first Rugby match between the Sydney and Melbourne Universities was played on the University Oval to-day. Unfortunately, the ground was so soft after the recent rain that first-class football was an impossibility. But, under the circumstances, both teams made a good showing, and a large number of spectators saw a fine tussle. Contrary to expectations, the local team played a good game, and fought for every inch of ground. Sydney won by 15 points to 3.

Sydney team was as follows:—Full back, S. M'Lennan; three-quarters, H. Browning, R. Adamson, H. Pockley, O. Barton; halves, F. Hughes, E. Fisher; forwards, O. Ireland (captain), E. M'Keown, H. Maxwell, O. Russell Jones, R. Rutledge, A. Doyle, R. Bowker, and G. Willcox. For Sydney tries were scored by Barton, Adamson (2), Brown, and Ireland. Leaky scored a try for Melbourne.

The Sydney backs were far superior to the local combination, but the Melbourne forwards were equally as good as Sydney. C. Cochrane, of Sydney, was referee. The visitors were entertained at a theatre party to-night.

BROKEN HILL UNEMPLOYED.

ATTRACTIVE RELIEF WORK.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

Another batch of unemployed was selected to-day for a fortnight's relief work. When the £2000 loaned by the Government has been expended the council hopes to spend another £1000 of its own. Applications for this relief work prove the total unemployed at about 350. It has been ascertained that a few men employed on the mines at 8s 4½d per shift have thrown up their jobs to take relief work at 8s 6d a shift.

POSTAL EFFICIENCY.

THE PUBLIC AND THE EMPLOYEES.

SPEECH BY SIR JOHN QUICK.

An extremely cordial welcome was accorded to the Postmaster-General, Sir John Quick, at a smoke concert arranged in his honour by the Professional and Clerical Association of the Postal Department of this State, and held last evening at the Oddfellows' Temple. The gathering was presided over by Mr. F. W. Hulme (president of the association), and the guests included Mr. Young (Deputy Postmaster-General) and other highly-placed officials.

Sir John Quick thanked the gathering for the high compliment paid him, and for the evidences that in striving to increase the efficiency of the department he would have the hearty and loyal support of men in all ranks. He felt the responsibility of his position. There were nearly 20,000 regular employees in the pay of the department, and there were also about 3000 mail contractors. This made a considerable army, and it represented important and far-reaching interests. From the Postmaster-General down to the telegraph messenger, they were all servants of the public, and while it was their duty to do everything that was in their power to make their services equal to the requirements of the public, they were entitled to receive in return fair and reasonable consideration. He admitted a large number of grievances remained to be rectified. There were grievances on the side of the employees of the department as well as on the side of the public, and it was the province of the Postmaster-General to stand between the two and see that justice was done. It was by no means an easy position to occupy. He had not been long enough in office to have had much opportunity of removing causes of complaint, but he was firmly resolved to do his duty to the utmost of his ability, so that when the time came for him to hand over the control of the department to his successor he would have the satisfaction of knowing that he left it better organised and more efficient than he found it.

Much had been heard of Post Office muddling, and disorganisation, and inefficiency. No doubt the Postal Commission had disclosed an unsatisfactory state of affairs in many of the ramifications of the department, and as soon as he received from the commission any recommendations for effecting reform he would not lose a day in initiating a reform policy. (Cheers.) He believed that the usefulness and value of the postal and telegraphic and telephonic departments were capable of extension and improvement on a large scale. There were demands from all parts of the Commonwealth for an extension of facilities, which the department, because of limited funds, was unable to supply. He hoped, however, that Parliament would see its way at an early date to vote a sufficient sum to enable these arrears of work to be overtaken, and also to enable redress of grievances on the part of the employees, and to do away with the undermanning common to the different States.

The public did not realise the magnitude of the department, and of the work carried out. When a letter went astray there was prompt and sometimes harsh criticism, but there was rarely any recognition of the fact that for one letter that went astray there were perhaps a million letters that safely reached their destination. There were 5322 post offices throughout the Commonwealth, and through these there passed last year 363,000,000 letters and postcards, averaging nearly one million daily. It needed a large and efficient staff to carry out work of that magnitude. Then 8½ million telegrams were received and despatched last year, involving an immensity of work and of responsibility. There were 46,000 subscribers on the telephone exchange. Nothing was said about the general efficiency of the service, but in those respects where the service was defective complaint was promptly made and the impression conveyed that the service was uniformly unsatisfactory.

Though men might suffer unfair criticism at the hands of the public, he asked them to do their duty loyally, truly, and well. The public was, on the whole, fair in its judgment. A sense of justice animated the great mass of the people. It was the desire of the Government and of Parliament to deal with the grievances of the employees in a fair and just manner, and this desire might be confidently relied upon. (Cheers.)

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

ITS EARLY HISTORY PROMISED.

BY SIR WILLIAM LYNE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

From what Sir William Lyne said in the House of Representatives to-day the public may look forward to an account of the early history of Federal Government. When the House met Sir William, as a matter of privilege, asked for permission to refer to an article published in an Adelaide paper with reference to the late Sir Frederick Holder. The writer of this article dealt at some length with the relations between Sir William and the late Speaker, and sought to show that the latter would not have anything to do with joining the member for the Hume in forming a Government. This statement, Sir William said to-day, was utterly untrue. Although Sir Frederick was a freetrader he had consented to join him in the formation of a Government. They had conferred, and come to an understanding with regard to the tariff. There were men in Melbourne who could prove that what he said was true, and that Sir Frederick Holder was the man who had remained true to him. Before Lord Linlithgow died he (Sir William) got from him permission to use certain matters of history, which he would soon make public. He did not want to do that, as men would be mentioned who would prefer nothing to be said about the matter. However, he had to clear himself from the false statements made, and he was going to do so. He had written to the proprietors of the paper asking for the name of their writer, but had been refused the information. He suspected that the writer was somebody closely connected with the Prime Minister.

Mr. Deakin said that he knew nothing about the article in question, nor did he know who wrote it.

NORTHERN TERRITORY BILL.

BEFORE FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The second reading of the Northern Territory Acceptance Bill was moved in the House of Representatives to-day by the Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Groom). He said the problem the House was to be asked to deal with was a great one. It was an obligation on them to people the Territory, and preserve the highest standard of civilisation. They were not considering the development of the whole of the north of Australia, but only the part known as the Northern Territory. It was over five million square miles, and was one sixth the size of Australia. It possessed large areas of pastoral lands and mineral resources, yet it only had a population of 2973, one thousand of whom were white. The problem before them was what could they do? The burden had been tried by South Australia, but it was admitted that it was too heavy for the State. For defence alone they should take over the Territory. Australia could not take possession of the Territory unless it made its occupancy effective.

Continuing, Mr. Groom said if South Australia had been willing a chartered company with a capital of ten millions would have taken over the territory to work it and build the transcontinental railway. He pointed out the possibilities of the Territory. The climate was not so bad as it had been made out. It was a white man's country. Experience showed that North Queensland was capable of supporting a white population. They were not taking over a country that was a desert waste. It was a land that gave great promise. In the agreement with South Australia there was nothing to say what course the transcontinental line should take, or when it should be built. That was to be left to the Commonwealth Parliament. They would have to be guided by the development of the country, which would have to be fostered by the Government. They could build a hundred miles next year and a further length some years hence. They would ultimately have to build a railway linking the north with the south.

On the motion of Mr. M'Donald the debate was adjourned till Tuesday next.

ILLAWARRA MINERS.

DELEGATE BOARD MEETING.

HELENSBURGH, Friday.

The district president, Mr. Dunleary, when interviewed this morning, stated that the Illawarra colliery employees' delegate board met yesterday, and decided to submit the following motion to members of the association for ballot, namely:—"Are you in favour of being represented on the wages board granted under the Industrial Disputes Act?" It was also decided that a ballot should be taken simultaneously for the election of two representatives and an advocate. The ballot will be on next Wednesday. Mr. Gray, general secretary, was instructed to send in his resignation as representative on the wages board, which position he was appointed to by Judge Heydon without the consent of the association. In the case of a miner dismissed by the management of Coledale colliery for a breach of the regulations, the district executive officers were instructed to interview the manager to have him reinstated.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

A NEW LINER.

PERTH, Friday.

The R.M.S. Orsova, the first of the new liners constructed by the Orient Company for the new mail contract under the Federal Government, called at Fremantle to-day on her maiden trip to the eastern States. She is in command of Captain Ruthven, late commander of the Orontes, who reported a most satisfactory run.

THE SENATE ELECTIONS.

The Labour selection ballot in connection with the Senate elections is still incomplete, the progress results being:—De Largie, 4135; Henderson, 2969; Buzzacot, 2803; Holman 2682, and the remaining candidates a long way behind.

DISCOVERY OF WRECKAGE.

Wreckage has been found on Cervantes Island resembling parts of the ketch Namban, which left Fremantle for Namban, and is now some days overdue. M. Melfan, Norwegian Vice-Consul (W.A.), relieved the regular skipper of the Namban for this trip, and there were two other hands, P. H. Morgan and C. Peterson.

JAPANESE AT BROOME.

The Japanese of Broome recently decided, if possible, to obtain permission for a Japanese doctor to reside in Broome and attend their ailments. The sum of £300 was subscribed and forwarded to the Japanese Consul-General in Sydney, with instructions that it be lodged with the Federal authorities as a bond for landing. Dr. Male, M.L.A., who recently returned from Broome, brought petitions from the Pearlers' Association, and the Broome Municipal Council protesting against the Japanese request being acceded to, and the State Premier (Mr. Moore) will forward them to the Prime Minister.

A PETITION OF RIGHT.

Mr. Justice Rooth to-day gave reserved decision in a petition of right, in which Dr. White, of East Fremantle, approached the Crown for the recovery of £3500 damages and an injunction against the Public Works Department to prevent a continuance or repetition of an act of annoyance and nuisance caused by a pump erected by the department. His Honor gave judgment for the petitioner for £550, but adjourned the formal motion for entering up of judgment for 10 days to give the Crown an opportunity of considering its position.

RAILWAY EARNINGS.

For the quarter ended June 30 the earnings of the State railways totalled £424,622, and the expenditure £289,712.

UNIONISTS AT LAW.

Hearing was continued in the Supreme Court to-day, before Mr. Justice M'Millan and a jury, of the case in which certain members of the Cue Miners' Union of workers, the A.W.A. Union itself, and Mr. E. E. Heitmann, M.L.A. for Cue, were defendants, in an action by William Wells, a miner, in which the plaintiff alleged that through the conspiracy of defendants he had been wrongfully dismissed from his employment. His Honor ruled that there was no case against Heitmann and gave judgment in his (Heitmann's) favour, with costs. The case against the union and other defendants stands part heard.

UNIDENTIFIED WRECKAGE.

The wreckage found on Cervantes Island is not now believed to be that of the ketch Namban, but the latter is still missing.

BAITS FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Mr. Angwin, M.L.A., who returned from England by the R.M.S. Orsova, stated that the misrepresentations complained about by British immigrants did not emanate from the Western Australian Agent-General's office, which definitely notified all inquirers that only land settlers were wanted. The misrepresentations had been made by the agents of certain shipping companies, who received a commission per head from the State Government. Very few immigrants, however, were induced to come to the State by these agents.

The Orsova yesterday brought 42 immigrants; 32 were assisted, and eight nominated.

SOUTH AFRICAN SOLDIERS.

An association of returned South African soldiers has been formed, on similar lines to the Victorian association.

TANAMI GOLDFIELDS.

The Minister for Mines, in reply to a question by Mr. Angwin, as to whether he had considered the advisability of opening up a route from Broome to the new goldfields at Tanami, said he had advised the geologist accompanying the Canning Expedition to report on the locality for the purpose of opening up the best route. But he did not expect any report for a month. He deprecated any rush to the field, unless the parties were well equipped.

The Chief Justice, Sir Henry Parker, who had a seizure in the Supreme Court yesterday, had been recommended by his medical attendant to take a rest.

ALDERMAN WON'T APOLOGISE.

PARKES MUNICIPAL INCIDENT.

PARKES, Friday.

At the adjourned meeting of the municipal council on Wednesday evening the report of the finance committee upon the proposed reduction in sanitary charges was read. Alderman Bowditch attempted to speak on the motion for the adoption of the report, but strong exception was taken to his doing so, until he had apologised for the language used on Monday evening. The Mayor said he had no authority to stop Alderman Bowditch from speaking, as the ordinance (ordinance 1, clause 50) only permitted him to suspend a member for a breach of order or decorum for the remainder of a sitting, and he held that this, though an adjourned meeting, was a separate sitting from Monday night. Several of the aldermen thereupon left the chamber, and the Mayor adjourned the council for five minutes. At the expiration of that time the absentees intimated that they were prepared to return and get on with the business if Alderman Bowditch withdrew the expressions used on Monday night. This Alderman Bowditch again emphatically refused to do, and the Mayor adjourned the meeting until Monday evening next.

HOME FOR INCURABLES, RYDE.

Lady Chelmsford, attended by Captain Vernon, A.D.C., paid a visit to the Home for Incurables at Ryde yesterday afternoon. The party were met at the home by Sir Henry and Lady Stephen, Sir Wm. Owen, Mrs. Hugh Dixson, and other members of the committee. After being shown over the home by the matron and Dr. Smith, the local medical officer, Lady Chelmsford expressed her admiration of the situation of the home, and her appreciation of the provision made for the comfort of the inmates. During the visit Captain Vernon handed over a serviceable gift from Sir Harry Rawson, the former patron of the home.

WOMAN BURNT TO DEATH.

A SAD END.

At 2 p.m. yesterday an alarm of fire was raised at No. 4 Trivett-street, Balmain. Constable Patterson and a civilian entered the cottage and found that Mrs. Ann Lewis, an old-age pensioner, who was the only occupant at the time, had been burnt to death. It appeared as if her clothing had caught fire in the kitchen. In her efforts to put out the flames she had set fire to her bed, which the constable and a civilian extinguished before the arrival of the brigade. Mrs. Lewis was a widow, and was living with her daughter.

QUEENSLAND.

PRISONS REPORT.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The annual report of the Comptroller-General of Prisons shows that on December 31 there were in prison 460 males and 33 females, or one to every 1132 of the general population as against one to 1090 in 1907, and one to 1055 in 1906. The convictions for drunkenness showed an increase. The value of the work performed by prisoners was £18,860, of which St. Helena was credited with £13,447. At St. Helena the value of the work performed for the State overlaps by a little the total cost of salaries and upkeep. The Comptroller states that there are very few prisons in the world of which the same could be said.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Owing to the fact that the Commonwealth Act is less liberal than the State Old Age Pensions Act, about 500 of those who were drawing pensions in Queensland are not qualified, being unable to comply with the 25 years' residence or naturalisation provision. Mr. Bowman (leader of the Labour party) made inquiries this morning, and was informed that preparations were being made to pay these pensions as soon as the necessary authority was received.

VICTORIA.

NEW COAL SEAM.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Secretary for Mines reports that a 3ft 6in seam of good coal has been struck in Powlett River Basin, at a depth of 92ft from the surface, and at a distance of about 1 mile north-west of the 9ft 11in seam discovered last year.

The Amalgamated Glass Bottle Union of Australia has been registered as an organisation under the provisions of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act.

PORT KEMBLA SMELTING.

EFFECT OF FOREIGN COMPETITION.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Per the steamer Derwent 300 tons of material for the electrolytic works at Port Kembla were received on Wednesday. The steamer got a return cargo of 300 tons of copper, and at the week-end will be back for 200 tons more.

The incoming of material continues small. Only 80 tons came last week. The competition of foreigners for the treatment of Australian ores continues to be felt severely by the company. For instance, while the total freight to Germany from Mount Molloy (Queensland) for copper is about 28s per ton, it costs 40s per ton in freight to land Port Kembla copper in the European market; and the Electrolytic Company has no compensating advantage on its side. The shipping dues charged at Port Kembla are also a handicap, considering that no dues are charged at Newcastle at all.

The latest inquiry about the site of the Australian Smelting Corporation at Port Kembla is on account of the owner of the Cootra mine, Cootamundra, the ores of which are of such composition that they cannot be treated at any Australian smelter, and have to be sold to Germany. The owner has visited the site, and contemplates the completion of a lead furnace for the treatment of Cootra ore.

INDIVIDUAL UNIONS.

BARRIER FEDERATION CANNOT CONTROL.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

The Barrier Labour Federation last night discussed a communication from the city council concerning the recent strike of municipal employees, but decided that it had no control over the action of individual unions.

A SHOW SENSATION.

PAVILION COLLAPSES.

NARROW ESCAPE OF 50 PEOPLE.

BALRANALD, Friday.

At the Balranald show on Wednesday the wind, which had been blowing in squalls all the afternoon, blew down the pavilion which had just been erected by the municipal council for the industrial exhibits.

The structure collapsed without a word of warning at a time when about 50 persons were taking shelter from the weather. All, however, escaped injury.

It is miraculous that no one was killed. Had the occurrence taken place half an hour earlier, when about 200 people were sheltered, the result would have been disastrous.

DENILIQUIN-MOAMA RAILWAY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The traffic receipts of the Deniliquin-Moama railway for the past half-year were £6,204, and the expenses £4883, leaving a profit of £1321 for the six months. This raised the balance at the credit of profit and loss to £39,541, out of which the directors have declared a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum.

"UNITED FIGHTING FORCE."

BARRIER UNIONS MOVE.

AN ALL-EMBRACING SCHEME.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

The Barrier Labour Federation last night decided to send the following letter to all the labour organisations in Australia:—

Dear Comrade—

I have been instructed to write to you in connection with the desirability of making some definite arrangements as to the advisability of establishing one common central head over the whole of the unionists of Australia. Our late long and protracted struggle over here has shown us how necessary this is, and we feel assured that all will agree as to the importance of this movement. We desire to bring about a federation of the whole of the workers of this country, believing it to be for the best interests of our class.

We see the employers everywhere united, irrespective of the businesses that they are engaged in, and fighting one common battle against us, while we are too often split up into sections that are governed in so many different ways, and by our want of unanimity of action they are able to beat or hinder our attempts to either raise the standard of wages or improve the conditions of the workers. By federating under one common central head, we would be able to take a more decided and more united course. We feel assured, however, that we have only to place this matter before your notice for you to see the great advantage to be gained by it, and what a wonderful lever we would be able to exert in future labour troubles.

Are you willing to unite with other trades and labour federations and councils, and thus weld the workers of Australia into one united fighting force? In order to do this it will be necessary to arrange for a conference of representatives to bring this federal council into existence; and the question arises as to the basis of representation, and where we should meet and when. We would like you to consider these points, but would suggest Melbourne as the most central, and that there should be not more than two delegates from each federation and council. As to the time, say November.

Trusting that you will give this your most careful consideration.

ALONE ON AN ISLAND.

CASTAWAY'S AWFUL EXPERIENCE.

A startling story concerning the terrible sufferings and privations of a French sailor named Pierre Rochegude on an uninhabited islet off the coast of New Caledonia was unfolded by the officers of the French steamer St. Antoine, which arrived at Sydney yesterday from Noumea.

Pierre Rochegude left Noumea on June 23 in a little four-ton ketch named the Bonite, on a short journey. He failed to return, and fears were entertained that the little craft had come to grief. The owner despatched another ketch, the Etoile, in search of the missing boat and its navigator, and after cruising round for some days Pierre Rochegude was discovered on the small island of Pate.

He told his rescuers that the Bonite, when nearing the Isle of Pines, struck a reef just off Pate, and foundered in 18 feet of water. With difficulty he succeeded in swimming ashore, and had subsisted for over a fortnight on shellfish. He found small quantities of fresh water in crevices in the rocks, but he felt that he was gradually getting weaker, and had feared that help would not arrive in time.

The terrible privations and sufferings of Pierre Rochegude on a desert island, without shelter or proper food, aged him many years. He left Noumea in the prime of life, a robust sailor, but when discovered by the Etoile he was white-haired, weak, and terribly depressed. The castaway reached Noumea in the Etoile on the 12th inst.

KIDNEY AILMENTS.

It was still snowing last night at Coonabarabran and Kiandra, and a WNW moderate gale was raging at Jervis Bay. Heavy seas were running last night at Gabo Island.

ON THE SOUTHERN HIGHLANDS.

PASSENGERS ENJOY SNOWBALLING.

MOSS VALE, Friday.

One of the heaviest snowstorms that has been experienced for some time broke over the southern highlands on Thursday night. On Friday very low temperatures prevailed along the southern railway line between Goulburn and Harden. Shortly after dark sleet made its appearance, and snowflakes soon followed. For several hours snow fell thickly, and the country around Goulburn, Gunning, Yass, Binalong, and Galong was covered with a mantle of white, the snow lying particularly thick in the Yass district. Passengers by the southern mail trains were afforded a novel sight in the vista of snow-covered country, the picturesque effect being enhanced by the bright moonlight. For 100 miles the trains travelled through snow, the dark-lined gum trees affording a fine contrast to the white mass of the enveloped country. The roofs of the carriages carried several inches of snow. Passengers by the through southern mail were able to indulge in the novelty of snowballing. The train pulled up for 15 minutes at Bowning, between Yass and Goulburn, awaiting the Melbourne express, and a score of passengers alighted. During the interval they engaged in active warfare with snowballs, and the icy missiles found their mark amongst loud-voiced merriment. Not until the express gave its whistle of approach did the revellers in snow seek reluctant re-entry into the train.

BLAYNEY.—Fairly heavy snow fell on Thursday night. It looks like as if more will come.

BREWARRINA.—Cold south-westerly showers fell at intervals during Friday, 22 points being registered. It was the coldest day of the winter.

CARGO.—The weather is very cold, and it is snowing here.

GLEN INNES.—Light snow is falling.

GOULBURN.—There was a light fall of snow on Thursday night and Friday morning.

HARDEN.—Hail, sleet, and snow fell here and the surrounding district on Thursday night, and the weather is bitterly cold. Steady soaking rain is falling.

JAMBEROO.—A strong westerly wind blew on Monday and Tuesday. The wind at times was fierce, and uprooted trees. Wednesday was calm, but exceptionally cold, since when the wind has been blowing a hurricane.

JENOLAN CAVES.—There are six inches of snow on the ground, with every appearance of further falls.

MOSS VALE.—The weather here has been bitterly cold during the last few days. Strong westerly winds have been blowing continuously, accompanied with sleet. On Thursday a few flakes of snow fell.

OBERON.—Severe weather continues. Snow is on the ground to a depth of three inches, and appearances point to a heavy fall.

PORTLAND.—A heavy snowstorm fell here on Thursday night and Friday morning. The ground was entirely covered with snow. As a consequence all outdoor work was at a standstill. During the day it disappeared, and it is now quite fine.

QUEANBEYAN.—The heaviest fall of snow for many years fell on Thursday night, and is lying a depth of three inches in the open and six inches or more in drifts. By moonlight it presented a beautiful appearance, trees and herbage being clothed. There is every promise of a good season.

SOME HEAVY FALLS.

ADELAIDE.—Exceptionally heavy falls of snow occurred on Thursday and Friday, especially in the Barossa district. At Truro the snow was thick and heavy, and in the moonlight it was a wonderful sight. Mount Rufus, six miles distant from Truro, was covered with a thick mantle, and the residents of the country for miles around went out to see the unusual spectacle. Snowfalls were experienced in a number of the northern towns to-day. In Mount Lofty hills the fall extended down to Blackwood, which is a rare occurrence so near the city.

THE GENERAL STAFF.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It is not the intention of the Minister for Defence, Mr. Jos. Cook, to proceed with more than two appointments to the Imperial General Staff for the present. The directors of organisation and military training will be appointed at an early date, but the complete establishment of the headquarters section has not been finally settled, and further appointments are not in immediate contemplation. The formation of district sections is likely to be postponed for some time.

SCOTTISH RIFLES BALL.

The Paddington Town Hall presented a bright and animated scene last night, when the 1st Battalion of the N.S.W. Scottish Rifle Regiment held their annual ball. The attendance numbered over 400, and as nearly all the men were in uniform, and a large majority wore kilts, the ballroom looked particularly gay. Tall palms and flags were used for decorating, and just near the entrance was an arch of evergreens, ornamented with the regiment's colours—red and yellow. The ball was opened by a grand march, and soon after 9 o'clock his Excellency the Governor and Lady Chelmsford arrived, attended by Captain Verney, A.D.C., his Excellency being "piped" into the room by the regimental pipers, and the National Anthem subsequently played by the band. In the formal set of Lancers his Excellency danced with Mrs. Campbell, Major Mackenzie (the officer commanding) with Lady Chelmsford, Colonel Campbell with Mrs. Irving, Colonel Irving with Miss Mein, Mr. Currie Elles with Mrs. Flashman, and Major MacLaurin with Miss Brodie. Later in the evening a reel was danced, which was watched with interest, and the Highland schottische held a prominent place on the programme. Lady Chelmsford wore black satin charmeuse with jet and sequin trimming, and a white and black feather boa, also a diamond tiara and necklet. Amongst those present were the Mayor and Mayoress of Paddington, the latter in pale blue with cream lace; Colonel and Mrs. Campbell, Colonel and Mrs. Irving, Colonel and Mrs. Bartlett, Major MacLaurin, Major Jarvie Hood and Miss Hood, Dr. and Mrs. Murray Will, Dr. and Mrs. Flashman, Captain Jobson, Captain Ralston, Lieutenants Robertson, Potter, Storey, M'Naghten, Tait, Milson, and Fraser, Mrs. C. MacLaurin, Mr. and Miss Freeman, Miss Derham, Miss Mein, Miss Bells, Mr. and Miss Currie Elles, Dr. Aspinall, Mr. and Mrs. John Rettie (England), Miss H. Bowman, Miss Holt, Miss M'Callum, Miss M. Hargrave, Mr. Wheeler, Mrs. M'Kee, and Mr. Sadler. There were three debutantes, Miss Marston, Miss Pugsley, and Miss Anderson, all of whom wore white, and carried white bouquets. Sergeant H. B. Oakey was the hon. secretary and Sergeant C. Mather the hon. treasurer of the ball committee.

FINANCIAL.

A PRIVATELY-OWNED RAILWAY.

The report of the Deniliquin and Moama Railway Company—one of the few privately-owned lines in the State—covers the six months ended June 30. It shows a credit balance of £39,541, out of which the directors recommend a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent., absorbing £2500, leaving £37,041 to be carried forward, as compared with £35,220 brought into the account. The company has a paid-up capital of £100,000, with £100 debenture bonds to the amount of £20,000. The expenditure for the half-year totalled £4883, and the receipts to £6204.

FIRST WHITE STAR REPORT.

The White Star line, originally known as the Oceanic Steam Navigation Co., Ltd., has issued its first report to the public. This was because until October last the company having never asked for capital from the public, there was no need for it to have its report circulated broadcast. As with practically all shipping companies, the White Star line did not experience a prosperous time last year. The trading profit for 1908 was £300,000, which would appear to compare with £846,500 for the preceding year, as stated in the debenture prospectus, and with a decennial average of £617,600. This is a considerable drop, of course, but no more than was to be expected after the experience of other shipping concerns, especially those engaged in the North Atlantic passenger trade. The directors anticipate a considerable improvement in Westbound carryings during the current year. The net result of operations is a loss of £208,200, but, thanks to the large balance brought into the accounts, not only is this deficit wiped out, but a dividend of 10 per cent. is declared, and £26,200 carried forward. The sum allowed for depreciation is £410,900. The debenture issue last year, including the discount, cost £66,300, and £10,000 is now written off, leaving a balance of £56,300 still to be liquidated.

AUSTRALIAN ESTATES COMPANY.

Although the earnings of the Australian Estates and Mortgage Company for 1908 were scarcely up to those of the previous year, this company made this step forward that it anticipated the debit balance as the result of the year's trading. The gross profits are lower by £41,500, as compared with 1907, standing at £168,400, as against £209,900, and the net profits are lower by £46,300 at £26,100. The decrease in earnings was largely attributable to the absence of rain in the Riverina district, which caused a diminution of the revenues from the company's properties in that region, and also entailed heavy drought expenditure in feeding the flock. The balance of £26,100 is applied to wiping off the debit of £16,500, and a sum of £10,600 remains to go forward. The directors report that the price of wool has materially improved since the close of the financial year, and the prospects of the market are now said to be encouraging. The question of reorganisation has again been taken up, and it is proposed to submit a scheme at an early date.

LONDON FINANCIAL CABLE NEWS.

The Bank of England's stock of gold is 1½ millions below that of a week ago, but its liabilities having just about correspondingly declined the proportion of reserves to liabilities is not materially lower than it was a week ago. The money market in London and Paris is advised as without alteration, while that of Berlin is ¼ of 1 per cent. firmer. Consols have fallen 8/9 during the week, but where Australian Government stocks have moved at all they have for the most part improved. Metals are irregular, copper being 18/9 per ton lower, tin 5/ higher, lead and spelter each 1/3 lower on the week. Bradford tops are reported unchanged, low crossbreds, however, being neglected and weaker. Wheat is dull and inactive, and butter steady and unchanged.

POSTAL ADMINISTRATION.

"Merchant" writes:—

Sir,—As the vagaries and mismanagement of the post-office are being inquired into, it is worth while drawing attention to the following absurd anomaly, viz., the unjustifiable and irritating surcharge made by the post-office officials on bona-fide printed matter sent at the printed papers rate, while also bearing the impression of a rubber stamp, usually giving the name and address of the sender. The post-office officials, in support of their action, rely on regulation in "Post and Telegraph Guide," page 32, which says: —"All printed matter with written additions, corrections, or alterations (by rubber stamp or other mechanical process, such as typewriting or production from typewriting, or writing) must be sent as commercial papers, but writing in the nature of a letter or personal communication is not permissible, and if any such writing appear on the article, the latter may be charged as an insufficiently pre-paid letter." However, on page 34 of the same guide it enumerates a large number of exceptions, and distinctly states as follows:—"Printed papers may be dated in manuscript or by a mechanical process, and the signature of the sender, his name or profession, and his address may be added." Thus writing or additions by a mechanical process at the printed papers rate are allowed among others on visiting cards, travellers' advices, shipping notices, notices of meetings, printers' proofs, dedications, prices current, order forms, tender forms, prospectuses, trade circulars, share lists; but the moment a firm removes to new premises and alter their address per rubber stamp on the printed matter in stock (often a large quantity), they have at once to pay double the rate of postage. Usually the firm only discovers this after having sent out their printed matter at the usual rate, and finding that the addressees have been surcharged, or that the printed matter has been returned with the request for the surcharge accompanied by a threat that the sender is liable to a penalty of forty shillings in case of refusal.

Even where the changed address of the sender has been indicated with a rubber stamp on the outside envelope containing the printed matter, the post-office officials have interpreted their regulation as appertaining to the envelope as well as to its contents.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It has been decided that the regular meeting days of the council of the Sydney Chamber of Commerce should be every alternate Wednesday instead of every alternate Monday, as heretofore.

This is typical of a class of companies that is being formed just now in London:—"The British National Airships, Ltd., with a capital of £100,000. Objects: To carry on the business of manufacturers, letters liners, repairers, and storers of and dealers in balloons, aeroplanes, and airships, providers of depots or stations for the reception of such balloons, etc., promoters of race meetings, speed and trial exhibitions, etc."

W. C. DOUGLASS, 53-5 Liverpool-street, Sydney, holds large stocks of everything appertaining to the Grocery Trade. Special Wholesale Agent for "A.B.C." Tea, "Breakfast D-Light," "Bovril," "Bird's Custard Powders," Deum's Extract of Coffee, Courtenay's Sauce.—Advt.

A deficiency in the United States national accounts of £20,000,000 is expected during the fiscal year that closed on June 30.

Its expenses amounted to only 6.81 per cent. of its premium income, or much less than half that of the combined Australian offices, and its funds totalled £5,053,006.

The report, furthermore, shows that on the average, every £1000 policy that fell in last year had been increased to £1975, while the representatives of one old policyholder received more than fourfold the amount originally contracted for.

The half-yearly meeting of the New South Wales Mont de Piete Deposit and Investment Company was held yesterday. Mr. Russell Jones presiding. The report and balance-sheet, particulars of which we have already given, were adopted, and Messrs. F. W. Edwards and John Dalgliah were re-elected directors, and J. E. Bowes and C. T. Starkey auditors.

Richardson and Wrench, Limited, report the sale of a parcel of shares in Hill, Dickinson, and Magill, Limited, for £175.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The position of the tea market on spot was not appreciably altered yesterday, although the tone was slightly firmer. Grocery business was quiet, with practically no change on the week in quotable lines. Provincial currants were selling in parcels at /5¼, and cleaned Amalias at /5½. Dates were selling freely to arrive and on spot at /3, with some holders asking an extra farthing. Evaporated fruits going out in moderate quantities at trust rates. Fish was quiet; Nep. sardines, however, being firm and somewhat scarce. Candles were firm. Eastern food lines were quiet and steady. Oils showed some activity. Linseed was scarce, and distributing firmly at the quotations, which could be shaded for parcels. It was expected that the market would be more or less strained until about November, as the stocks coming forward between now and then will have been dear bought. Castor oil was firm at the other end and short on spot. Fish oils were firm and in request. American winter drawn and Shanghai cottonseed oils were quoted on a parity, the denaturated descriptions both of this and China being lower. White lead continued easy. Whiting sold a half-crown lower on spot, but was quoted half a crown higher to arrive. Among metal lines fencing wires were receiving most attention, galvanised improving in the face of a strengthened demand, due, it was said, to the purchases in connection with the North Coast railway. Calcutta quotations for cornsacks were higher, but spot quotations remained about the same. The general produce markets were enduring the usual "end of the month quietness," but were more hopefully disposed.

PRICES OF FOREIGN WHEAT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Agent-General for Victoria, Mr. Taverner, has cabled to the Premier stating that the breaking-up of the Argentine drought, the anticipated good crop in South-eastern Europe, and the large offers of Russian and Danubean wheat had weakened the prices for wheat for off the coast cargoes. Selling prices were 34/6 to 45/6 per quarter; the new crop was worth about 40/6 per quarter.

BREADSTUFFS.

The wheat market continued in the same inactive condition. Quotations for old wheat were nominally 5/3 to 5/3½, with possible buyers at /0¼ to /1 lower. Very little business was being done in new crop, farmers being loth to sell. Buyers, however, would have operated sparingly at the equivalent of 4/3 to 4/3½ Sydney.

Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co.'s cable of the same date reads:—"At the sales held to-day prices show a decline of par to 3 per cent. on merinos and fine crossbred, and on other descriptions of 5 per cent. to 7½ per cent. as compared with those ruling at last auctions."

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Friday was practically the last day of the month for business in the produce markets, and on this account the operations were strictly confined to bare requirements. Although there was a limited amount of business transacted, still there was an improved inquiry as a number of retailers were testing the various markets in order to ascertain what the values were likely to rule at the beginning of next month. It was the general opinion that chaff would open up better now that the rush of local stocks had fallen off at Redfern. The cut prices which were recently resorted to with imported samples, has made a deep impression in the holdings, and it is chiefly due to this fact, together with the expectation of an improved demand, that values will improve. There was an inclination on the part of a few holders to boom the price of maize to 4/3 on Monday. Some were strongly opposed to this movement. They thought that a good sale at present values was more justifiable, as there was too much imported grain held in the stores to warrant any big move. They also wished to remind holders how the market struggled along at 4/3 for three weeks last month, and at the last week sales were gradually forced down to 4/. Potatoes were slow of sale. Oats were selling fairly well, while peas, barley, and derrick straw were quiet.

Current quotations were:—

DAIRY PRODUCE.

Grocers seemed anxious to secure Queensland first grade butter in preference to local grades, and those who have lately been handling this imported article have made sales in such a satisfactory manner that they are anxious to secure further stocks. The market was still in an unhealthy state, and a few agents suggested that a reduction should take place, while on the other hand, those who were not receiving imported butter thought that as our production for the week showed a shrinkage of 489 boxes it was not advisable to lower the value. This difference of opinion led to uncertain prices. The Melbourne market is reported steady, with supplies from the western districts steadily increasing, whilst the other districts are about stationary. Their present production is not quite up to the average consumption. Some of the Western Australian orders are again in their hands, and are likely to increase. The following figures will show an interesting comparison of the arrivals of butter in Victoria and New South Wales each week for this month together with those for the same period last year:—

PROPERTY MARKET.

There was a good tone in the property market, and so far this winter season has proved an exception, as nearly all sections of the business have experienced ready sales. There is every prospect of an early season, as the demand for nearly all classes of property has set in, with sales showing that the operations have been distributed in practically all districts. Suburban building allotments have come in for most notice, while house property was rather quiet. There was a good demand for farm properties handy to town and in the North Coast districts for dairying purposes. Letting departments were unchanged, quiet to moderate business being reported.

WONDERS OF BIOLOGY.

FREAK TADPOLES AND WORMS.

An interesting account of the wonderful regenerative powers of nature, especially as regards the insect and reptile worlds, was given by Professor Wilson in a lecture at the Trades Hall last night, under the auspices of the Sydney University Extension Board. With the assistance of a number of lantern views the lecturer showed how nature had provided for the re-growth of mutilated parts, as instanced by the restoration of the tail of a lizard cut off by accident. The lecturer also showed how a creature could be turned into a freak. A cut had been made in a tadpole at the spot from which the hind legs were about to bud. The result was three legs growing in place of each hind leg. The tadpole thus had six hind legs. Prof. Wilson further showed how worms could be grafted together, and among the views thrown on the screen were pictures of two and even three worms joined together. Others were grafted so that one or more worms became a complete ring. In other cases one worm was divided into two, this experiment being shown with the forked end of the worm branching at angles varying from the acute to the obtuse. Two tadpoles were shown joined together by the head; others were united by the body. Still, again, two tadpoles had been joined by the tails, and the tail of one then cut off, leaving the other with his own tail and part of his mate's. And so the professor went on, and having thoroughly roused the wonder of his audience, concluded with a few questions. Were the wonderful things he had described more wonderful than the familiar occurrence of that miraculous transformation by which a long-tailed aquatic gill-breathing fish-like vertebrate like a tadpole was metamorphosed into a four-legged, gill-less, lung-breathing frog? With this and two or three more thought-compelling questions in their minds the people who had assembled to hear Professor Wilson's lecture left the hall.

THE MAORI SHEARERS.

A. W. U. SATISFIED.

Neither the secretary of the Pastoralists' Union nor the secretary of the Australian Workers' Union has any information about the party of Maori shearers, which is reported to have left Hawkes Bay (N.Z.) under contract to shear in the Monaro district, New South Wales.

Mr. J. Mair, secretary of the former body, stated yesterday that it was no uncommon thing for New Zealanders—including Maoris—to come to New South Wales for the shearing season. As the season commenced in New South Wales about July, and pretty well finished in November, they could get back to New Zealand in November in time to get a shed there, where shearing commenced so much later. He had not heard of a party of Maoris coming to New South Wales, as reported. If they did they would have to work at the rates fixed in 1907 by the award of the Federal Arbitration Court (24s for 100).

Mr. Donald Macdonell, M.L.A., secretary of the Shearers' Union, appeared to attach no special significance to the visit of the Maoris. Indeed, he thought there was probably a mistake in the report, as Monaro was one of the last districts in this State to commence shearing, and only the early districts were commencing operations as yet. He had met a few Maoris shearing at various times, and they were not likely to take a contract at much less than the standard rates. There was no dearth of shearers in New South Wales at present, and the Federal law prohibiting people entering under contract where local labour was available could be used in this case, if necessary, to keep out the Maoris. Except for that, there was nothing to prevent them from taking a lower rate than provided by the award of the Federal Arbitration Court, which only applied to the parties who were cited before the Court, and such persons who had subsequently signed the award agreement. Therefore, since the award of the Court had not been made a common rule the Shearers' Union would naturally regard with jealousy the signing of any agreement outside the Commonwealth, as there would be no guarantee that any such agreement was in keeping with the award of the Court.

MR. SPENCE PRAISES MAORIS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Speaking to-day with regard to the statement that several Hawke's Bay Maoris have left New Zealand under engagement to shear in the Monaro districts, Mr. Spence, M.P., said that he could not see the necessity for Maori shearers to be brought to Australia. Since the shearing rates had been increased there was plenty of labour available in Australia, and he had not heard of any dissatisfaction from the pastoralists as to the class of men offering their services.

The Maoris, continued the president of the Australian Workers' Union, are very good unionists. When they were forming their union the rules of the A.W.U. were translated into their language. If they come here they will have to be paid the same wages as Australians, and there seems little reason why any pastoralist should go to the expense of bringing men all the way from New Zealand when they will not work for anything less than union rates.

Mr. Atlee Hunt, secretary to the Department of External Affairs, said that no application for permission to introduce contract labourers had been made to the department.

INQUEST ON FIRE.

AN OPEN FINDING.

On Thursday Mr. E. L. Maitland, S.M., held an inquiry into the cause of a fire which occurred in Lackey-street, Summer Hill, on July 22, when three shops were destroyed. Mr. Pickburn appeared for the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company; and Mr. Dash for Jarrett Johnson, auctioneer and furniture dealer, lately carrying on business at No. 14 Lackey-street, Summer Hill. Evidence was given respecting insurances and the movements of various people on the night of the fire.

A schoolboy named Charles Houseman said he saw Jarrett Johnson outside his shop door about 8 p.m. on July 21.

Jarrett Johnson said his stock was insured for £200 in the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company, and he could not exactly state what his personal loss was. Some of the articles in his shop had been sent in for sale by other people. He had given a bill of sale to Mr. Dash on the stock. He did not go into his shop about 8 p.m. on July 21.

Constable Auckett stated that at 10 a.m. on July 22 he asked Mr. Johnson what time he left the shop on the previous day, and he said he locked up at 1 o'clock, and then went home. He afterwards said he was about when the band was playing at 2.30 p.m., but he did not go into the shop. Johnson said that he afterwards went to Enfield, and did not return till between 8 and 9 a.m. next day, and that a newsboy had told him of the fire as he was driving to the shop. Johnson gave practically the same answers when questioned by Senior-constable Robertson and Fireman Connolly the next day. Auckett also said that he found beneath the charred floor of the office a quantity of fibre and flock partly burned. On July 27 some charred papers were taken from under the office floor in another place, and he saw some more charred fibre and flock in a couch and chairs. The couch and chairs did not appear to have been cut.

William Chamberlain, of the Leichhardt Fire Brigade, stated amongst other matters that Johnson had asked him to tell the police if they called upon him that he (witness) had been paid for a bedstead sent in for sale. He had told Johnson that he would not tell a lie about it.

Other evidence having been given, the magistrate said that the case was one of very grave suspicion. He recorded a finding that the premises were feloniously and maliciously set on fire, but that the evidence did not enable him to say by whom.

ALPINE SPORTS.

In the St. James's Hall, Phillip-street, last night, before a crowded audience, Mr. Percy Hunter, Director of the Immigration and Tourist Bureau, lectured on Alpine sports in New South Wales. Mr. Hunter gave varied accounts of the pleasures of a visit to the great Australian snowlands at Kosciusko and Kiandra, and of the carnivals which are periodically held there. The lecture was illustrated by a series of excellent snow and ice pictures, a number of the slides being made from negatives specially taken by Mr. C. H. Kerry. The slides were typical of the scenes in the vicinity of the Hotel Kosciusko, and showed ski-runners, tobogganing, and skating on the ice-covered lake, as well as some beautiful effects of snow in the timbered country.

Queen Elena of Italy has revolted against the mode of gigantic hats which the French milliners have endeavoured to impose on Italian women of fashion. Her Majesty and most of the ladies of her Court do not wear a hat of any description, but have adopted a sort of light mantilla to wear in public. The movement of protest against "ridiculous fashions inflicted on us from abroad" is said to be spreading throughout the Roman aristocracy.

THE DAYLIGHT SAVING BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Dr. Richard Arthur, M.L.A., with whom I have had some interviews during his stay in London, is very much interested in this bill, and tells me that a letter, explaining its position and progress, would be of interest to your readers.

The Daylight Bill, as originally introduced into the House of Commons, was framed upon the proposals made in a pamphlet I issued in July, 1907. Its object was to rescue some portion of the sunlight wasted during the early hours of the mornings of the summer months, and thereby extend the advantages of sunlight to a later hour each day. The method of effecting this was to advance the hands of the clock by four movements each of 20 minutes on the first four Sundays in April, and put them back by similar movements on the first four Sundays in September, thus adding each day during the summer 80 minutes' sunlight between the time of leaving work and going to bed.

The bill was referred to a select committee of the House, who, after hearing 45 witnesses, among whom were Lord Avebury, Sir Robert Ball, M.A., LL.D., Sir George Livesey, Admiral Sir Edmund Fremantle, and Sir A. Conan Doyle, agreed with its object, but recommended that the change should take place by a single movement of one hour forward in the middle of April, and one back in the middle of September, and thereby gain 60 instead of 80 minutes a day. The report of the committee was, however, presented to the House of Commons too late for the bill to make any further progress in that session, but in 1909 a similar bill was introduced in which the alterations proposed are one hour each way, in accordance with the recommendations made by the select committee in 1908.

The second reading of this bill was carried by a majority of 26, and as certain further objections had been raised, which had not been heard of before, it was referred to another select committee, which is now sitting.

Most of the great railway companies—among them the London and North-western, Great Central, and London and South-western—favour the bill. They see in it a decrease in the cost of lighting, and an increase of traffic in consequence of extended opportunities for people to get into the country in the evenings and on Saturday afternoons. One railway representative estimated the gain to the railway companies of Great Britain at £92,000 a year.

They also state there will be a decrease in the number of accidents on the railways by their being able to handle most of the goods traffic in the light, as considerably more accidents occur in the winter months than in summer.

Great interest has been aroused in the United Kingdom, and resolutions approving the principle of the bill have been passed by the Convention of Royal Burghs of Scotland, representing 199 towns, 119 separate corporations, town councils, etc., altogether representing over 15 million people; 47 Chambers of Commerce; the Associated Chambers of Commerce, representing 117 separate chambers; the City of London Territorial Association, the Miniature Rifle Clubs' Association, the Parliamentary and Education Committees of the London County Council, besides innumerable societies, associations, athletic clubs, etc.; and at a crowded meeting held at the Guildhall, in the City of London, which was presided over by the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of London, who was supported by Sir Robert Ball (late Astronomer Royal of Ireland), Mr. Justice Neville, and many leading men in the city, a resolution was enthusiastically carried with only one dissentient approving the bill, and calling upon the Government to afford facilities for its passage.

Throughout the United Kingdom the bill has been received favourably, and a similar measure has been introduced into the House of Commons in Ottawa, Canada. I have just received a copy of the report of the select committee of that House, to whom the bill was referred. It recommends the Canadian Parliament to put it into force as soon as possible.

A Daylight Saving Bill has also been introduced into the Parliaments of the United States, and of New South Wales, Victoria, and New Zealand. Newfoundland will shortly be considering a similar bill.

Interest has also been aroused on the Continent of Europe. I have received encouraging letters from France, Germany, Belgium, and Denmark; and it is not at all improbable that an effort will be made in some of these countries to obtain the advantages which are to be gained by the adoption of a different standard time in summer to that in winter.

Among the objections which have been raised to the bill before the select committee is one by agriculturists that the putting forward of the clock an hour will interfere materially with their farming operations. They say that at present their harvesting is very much interfered with by reason of the dew on the crops in the morning, and that the effect of the Act will be to delay the gathering of the crops by an extra hour. My answer to this is that the working hours of agriculturists, particularly in harvest time, are regulated more by the sun than the clock. If, therefore, they commence their work at 6 o'clock in the morning now, and work until it is dark, as is the case, what possible objection can they have, supposing their argument as to the dew to be a good one, to commence and finish an hour later? They will then work in exactly the same relationship to sunrise as at present.

A further objection has been raised by that section of the Stock Exchange which deals with American securities, in consequence of the fact that the London Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange are only open simultaneously for one hour during the official day. A number of stockbrokers, however, carry on their business in the street after the Stock Exchange is closed. There is no great hardship in their doing this for an extra hour a day during the summer months, and it is only in the summer months that the bill will be in operation. This difficulty, however, will disappear if the bill introduced into the United States passes. It would not, however, apply to Australia.

Another objection has been raised by the theatrical and music hall professions. The effect of a Daylight Saving Act will be to draw people out into the fresh air and sunlight, and it is quite conceivable that a reduction in the number of persons attending these places of amusement may follow. There are, however, a number of bands at the present time engaged to play in most of the parks and open spaces of the great towns and cities of England, and it is probable that with longer evenings at our disposal a greater demand will spring up for open-air entertainments, and in this way it is likely that these artistes whose work may be interfered with in the future may find employment under the new conditions.

I understand from Dr. Arthur that when he returns to New South Wales he intends to reintroduce a Daylight Saving Bill into Parliament there, though he informs me that the matter is one which would have to be dealt with by all the States, or by the Federal Government, to secure harmonious working. I wish his efforts every success. I believe that if the scheme is given a trial for one summer, whether in Australia or elsewhere, the people will insist upon its repetition every summer.

I am, etc.,

London, June 25. W. WILLETT.

Professor William Stirling, lecturing on "Daily Bread" at the Royal Institution, condemned "the rice fad," and said that an adult would require a pound of rice every 24 hours. As rice increases to six times its size by the addition of water, to flourish on rice would mean eating a good deal. He recommended a mixed dietary of animal and vegetable food as more suitable for the average person than a purely vegetarian diet. He urged the importance of thorough mastication. Some people seemed to think the mouth was a sort of pillar-box, and they had only to drop in their food, but he begged them to remember that they had no gizzard.

SPORTING.

THE TURF

Steppingstone, Homeward Bound, Beebeeru, and Bulbul were yesterday withdrawn from the Australian Jockey Club's Derby.

The scratchings reported yesterday in connection with the Canterbury Park races to be held on Monday next were E.K.W. out of the Hurdle Race, Lady Melena out of the Flying Handicap, and Diabolo out of the Shorts Handicap.

Lady Fucile out of the Rosehill Handicap; Lady Melena and Barley Brew out of the Flying Handicap; Simonides out of the Carlingford Mile; La Pistol out of the Nursery Handicap; and Hotstuff out of the Hurdle Race were the scratchings reported yesterday in connection with the Rosehill races, to be held to-day.

The dates for the Dubbo Jockey Club's next meeting have been fixed for November 2 and 3.

The general entries for the A.J.C. Spring Meeting close on September 6.

The famous horse Frank Gill, by Collar from Ravello, by Sir Hugo, dropped dead at Gravesend, U.S.A., last month, immediately after finishing second in a mile and a furlong handicap, for which he started with odds of 2 to 1 on him. During his career on the turf Frank Gill won over £12,300 in stakes, and he was expected to make a valuable stallion.

The programme for the August meeting of the Wollongong Jockey Club has been issued. It includes five events, for which £100 prize money is offered. Entries close at 4 p.m. on August 3. Nominations may be made with Mr. J. A. Beatson, Wollongong, or the secretary of the Warwick Farm Racing Club.

What is probably the finest lot of trotters and pacers seen competing in Sydney are engaged at the N.S.W. Trotting Club's meeting next Tuesday, including, as they do, such performers as Almont, the world's three-mile champion, with a record of 6.50; Denver Huon (2.19½), Pickwick (2.20), Tommy II. (2.22) Strathbar (2.22), Talbragar (2.22), St. Elmo (2.23½), Star Harold (2.23½), and Maggie S. (2.24). The track is in splendid order, and the meeting promises to be a great success. The first race is timed for 2.30 p.m. Balmain, Lilyfield, and Drummoyne trams will convey patrons to the course at 3 minute intervals.

Our Kempsey correspondent wires:—Riflette, the well-known racing stallion, got one of his legs badly broken in his stable, and will have to be shot. He was for many years owned by Mr. H. W. T. Lee, of Gladstone, and is now in the possession of Mr. T. Dunn, of Kempsey.

In connection with the horse parade on the show grounds at Moore Park next week, Messrs. William Inglis and Son announce elsewhere particulars of their annual sale of stallions and mares, hunters, hacks, harness horses, and ponies.

The much-travelled Willy Wally, who is principally known as a flat-racer, has been entered for the Great Western Steeplechase, to be run at the Boulder (W.A.) meeting next month.

Ataahua, who was so badly injured by a fall while being schooled over hurdles at Aspendale Park, has recovered from the effects of his accident, and is being given gentle exercise.

At the close of the Ascot meeting Cyllene sire of the King's Derby winner, was still at the head of the winning list of English stallions, with a total of 12 wins for £17,591 10s of which Minoru, by his four successes, contributed £14,279. Gallinule came next, with 13 wins for £10,050.

Decoration has sufficiently recovered from the effects of his accident in the Caulfield Steeplechase on July 19 to leave Mr. S. O Wood's veterinary hospital for his owner's place. After a spell of a couple of months or so an attempt will be made to train Decoration again.

Mr. Harvey Patterson's filly Tinker Bell (Wallace—Vendetta) has met with an accident. Her shoulder has been badly injured, and she may have to be destroyed.

VICTORIAN SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Captain J. C. Smith left a little time back for India, where he will act as private trainer for the native sportsman who owns Mooltan and Aborigine, two horses at present in Australia. Captain Smith's horses Boomey, Mordialloc, and Duke of Lancaster, Wicket, and Lancasterite will leave for Madras on Tuesday.

MELBOURNE SCRATCHINGS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Bonfield has been scratched for the Melbourne Cup; Leo, Waipu, and St. Swivan have been withdrawn from the Australian Hurdle Race; and Stariel, Waipu, and Kailert for the Australian Steeplechase. Waipu has also been withdrawn from the Arkaringa Hurdle Race, and Kialert from the Wilga Steeplechasers' Flat Race. They are returning to New Zealand.

ROSEHILL RACES.

Fine weather should be sufficient to ensure a big attendance at the Rosehill races this afternoon. The secretary, Mr. Rowe, has arranged for an ample supply of special trains. They will run at short intervals, as advertised, from 12.18 p.m. to 1.43 p.m., the 11.50 a.m. train being for horses only. There are 127 entries for the six events on the programme. The Hurdle Race should bring about a good contest between Auckland, Mainspring, St. Leonard, and Atlantean, and the three first-named may pass the judge as named. There are 26 entries for the Flying Handicap. At the weights Adjacent reads as well as anything, and may win from Racia and Veronite. Paspalum may be able to account for the Granville Stakes, and should experience most trouble from Very Canny and Orepan. There are several well-performed youngsters in the Nursery Handicap, and Tanbar, Gundaroo, and Vauntie should run well. Although the field for the Rosehill Handicap is not likely to be large, a good race should be witnessed, likely place-getters being Ambassador, Chamade, and Outbreak. The sport concludes with the Carlingford Mile, for which a good field is expected to face the starter, and the winner may be found among Veronite, Dryite, Newport, and Glenella.

Altogether six teams will take part in to-day's supremacy tests—three clubs being represented in each heat. In the first event the opposing teams are Eastern Suburbs, Botany, and South Sydney. BARNET GLASS ROAD RACE.

BATHURST TO SYDNEY.

The annual road race held from Bathurst to Sydney will this year be decided on September 4. The prize-money for the contest totals £120, the bulk of which is given by the Barnett Glass Rubber Company, the promoters. Since the announcement that this year's competition would be held as usual, entries have continued to pour in freely, including several nominations from interstate men. The greatest interest is being manifested in the event, especially in the country towns, where riders are now undergoing special preparation, with a view to trying for the prize-money allotted to the placed men. Mr. Glass, the Sydney manager of Barnet, Glass, and Co., left yesterday on his motor car to make all arrangements for the feeding of competitors, appointing officials, etc. Several local road scorchers, who are starters in the forthcoming race, state that they have been over the roads, and that they are in splendid order.

NORTHERN SUBURBS CLUB.

The three-day tour arranged by the Northern Suburbs Club for to-day, Sunday, and Monday, has been altered. The club has decided to have instead a circular tour, embracing Mulgoa, Richmond, and Wiseman's Ferry. The trip from the latter place will be via Sackville, and the riders will return on Monday by the Pitt Town route.

WESTERN SUBURBS MOTOR CLUB.

PETROL CONSUMPTION TEST TO-DAY.

The Western Suburbs Motor Bicycle Club has arranged to hold a petrol consumption test this afternoon. The trial will start from the mile post at Ashfield, and will be open to all members. The competitors will be divided into two classes, according to the horse-power of their machines. Class A will be open to motors whose power does not exceed 3½-h.p. Class B will be confined to those cycles whose power is over 3½-h.p. There is a good entry for the competition, which should prove interesting.

Half a pint of petrol will be allowed to the low-powered machines, and one pint to the others.

DUNLOP ROAD RACE.

GOULBURN TO SYDNEY.

League riders are looking forward with interest to the coming annual road race, promoted by the Dunlop Rubber Company, from Goulburn to Sydney. The event takes place on Sept. 18, and, although a long way off, the contest has attracted nominations already from the various States. It is fully anticipated that last year's record entry will be eclipsed. The prize money for the coming contest totals £160, of which the promoting firm contributes the major prizes, as well as £10 to the fastest New South Wales competitor, who will be enabled to start in the annual Warrnambool-Melbourne contest without any outlay to himself. Mr. C. O. Sherwood, the Sydney manager of the Dunlop firm, has traversed the route lately on his De Dion motor, and reports the road to be in a very fine state.

DEATH OF W. O'REILLY.

The death of W. O'Reilly, the one-armed cyclist, has been a shock to local and country enthusiasts who have witnessed the many popular rides put up by the late Sydney cyclist. O'Reilly, who met with his fatal accident in Centennial Park a few days ago, was only 24 years of age, and was training for the forthcoming Eight-hour Sports when he sustained the fall which ultimately resulted in his death. Cyclists will be sorry to hear that the late rider has left a widow and two young children in straitened circumstances.

FOOTBALL.

RUGBY UNION.

THE PONSONBY CLUB.

MATCH AGAINST METROPOLIS.

The Ponsonby Club, from Auckland, will play the first match of its visit to Sydney to-day, and will meet a good side in the Metropolitan Fifteen at the Sydney Cricket Ground at 3.15. The visiting club has an unbeaten record for the past two years at Auckland. Included in its ranks are men who have made a big reputation at home, in Australia, and in England. The match should be a fast and entertaining game. The quality of play has improved a good deal in Sydney during the past couple of years, and although there is a team away in Brisbane, those remaining behind should give a good account of themselves.

The Ponsonby team was not expected to arrive until early this morning. The metropolitan team is:—

Full-back: A. R. Dunbar (Newtown).

Five-eighth: A. J. McCabe (South Sydney).

LADIES' MATCH TO BE PLAYED.

These efforts have met with considerable success, and a team has been selected, consisting of the following players:—Mrs. Doyle, Mrs. Wolstenholme, Miss K. Baker, and Miss Keele, with Misses Martin (of Armidale), Belfield (of Armidale), and Baker, as emergencies.

NEW SOUTH WALES ASSOCIATION.

The adjourned annual meeting was held last night, when the balance-sheet was submitted to the members and adopted.

Subsequently a meeting of the council took place. The sub-committee appointed to draw up a scheme for the advancement of country tennis brought up its report, which was adopted. This recommended that a competition open to teams from towns outside a radius of 30 miles from Sydney be held at Christmas time. Players must belong to clubs affiliated to the association, and must be residents of the towns which they represent for at least a month before the competition. The winning town is to hold a challenge trophy of the value of £10 10s, presented by Mr. W. P. Dunlop, the president of the association. The winning team will play a match against a metropolitan team, and there will also be a contest between a combined country team and one composed of metropolitan players.

A sub-committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Witherby, Doyle, Fox, and Utz, together with the executive officers, to go into the matter of financing a ladies' team, and possibly a men's team, to play against New Zealand next December.

Mr. E. N. Selden resigned his position on the council, and the vacancy was filled by the election of Mr. G. W. Wright.

ANGLING.

WINTER BREAMING.

The presence of large quantities of black bream in George's River has attracted numbers of fine line, cold-proof enthusiasts to the grounds from Tom's Ugly's Point to the Big Moon. Night fishing seems to have been the best, and the men who have been out have chosen their points and tides with a complete knowledge of the part played by the current in congregating the fish in certain places. It is the best adjunct to a full bag to find out exactly how the tide works on different grounds. One place is only good on the ebb perhaps, and the flood is the best for others. Prawns are becoming more plentiful.

Bream grounds near the entrance to Sydney Harbour have been but scantily visited, but men who tried the cliffs during the week's westerlies had good fishing. Such bait as cungevoi and mutton-fish was easily obtained at low tide. Some of the regular visitants to the coastal rock fishing grounds have long light poles with a stabber and boathook on the end to enable them to tear masses of cungevoi off the rocks at any tide. Most of these fishermen use only the tops of the cungevoi. Reports of the capture of some large schnapper have come from North Head, but the bulk of the catches comprised groper, kelp-fish, sergeant baker, eels, red morwong (carp), black bream, and black fish.

In recent correspondence in the "Fishing Gazette" (Eng.) it was said that by a mistake some of the ova of the steel-head trout were included in some of the trout eggs originally sent from America to New Zealand. The steel-head was identical with the cut-throat trout according to some writers, and if the eggs of this species were sent to New Zealand there is a possibility of some of the progeny of the fish having later on reached New South Wales. The question is still under investigation.

The A.F.A. schnapper outing last week-end was an all-night trip to Coalcliff. Deep water was fished, and the men were tired of hauling two-pound leads from 75 fathoms. They would have welcomed some of the arrangements seen on a few schnapper boats for hauling expeditiously. There are two or three good winders about that can be attached to the rail of a steamer. Members sometimes lost fish through having to wait to get a fresh accession of strength, and most complained of sore thumbs. The catch was a good one as far as quality was concerned, 76 schnapper, ranging from 3½lb to 12lb weight, and averaging 5lb, being taken. About the same number of other fish, consisting of jackass fish, morwong, nannegai, pig-fish, red rock cod, and barracouta coming aboard. Twenty-two fished, and Mr. E. C. Artis won the president's trophy.

Messrs. Ross, Pottle, and Commins are reported to have caught 8½ dozen black bream at the Oaks in Port Hacking. Black fish are also plentiful in the port. Gar. are still plentiful about the coast, but frequently bring very low prices in the markets on account of their condition through being cold-stored uncleaned.

The application for permission to seek gold in the bed of the Goodradigbee River, which was submitted to the mining warden at Queanbeyan on Wednesday, was refused. It is hoped that the bed of the river will be reserved from dredging lease altogether, as desired by the Fisheries Board. The river is one of the best trout waters of the State, and of regular value to the State because of the money expended by anglers in the district. The Upper Snowy should also be reserved.

The Bulli party last week-end caught plenty of ocean fish on one of the Southern grounds. The Zambuk was also out with a party. The Alexander went north, but did not strike many fish. The Goldsmith's party have been working the southern waters and catching schnapper in great numbers, and grand condition.

Leather-jackets are up north now, and are being met with off the grounds north of Cape Hawke. They seem to have disappeared from the deeper southern grounds, whereat no schnapper fishermen feel aggrieved. Nobody uses them in the north.

Off Tweed Heads ocean fishermen have been catching the southern tunny (sometimes mis-called bonito and albacore), on long lines and spinners. The fish are probably after the high-swimming shoal-fishes such as the herring, gar, pilchard, flying-fish, and long toms. Most of the catches have reached the Brisbane market, where they are eagerly sought for food. The capture of these fish on rod and line is one of the most fascinating of ocean pastimes.

Fishing of the fast and furious order is often obtainable near Long Reef by men who go out from Fairy Bower, but there are other ocean grounds a few miles north, where the sport is often splendid. Messrs. Herbst, C. Mariner, and two others fishing near Broken Bay in a motor-boat, caught a level hundred fish. Mr. Herbst accounting for 40 of them.

Two large jewfish, 86lb and 54lb weight, were caught at Tuncurry recently in nets. The large fish must have been attracted across the bar by gar and mackerel. Very good fishing is obtained at this popular coastal resort, which is becoming more favourably and widely known every month. Tourists devoted to ocean, lake, beach, estuary, and rock fishing can hardly go wrong at Tuncurry.

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

SEDUCTION CASE.

At the Parramatta District Court on Friday, before Judge Rogers, and a jury of four, James Barrington Prowse proceeded against William James Anderson, claiming £400. The case was one of alleged seduction of the plaintiff's daughter. Mr. J. Young, instructed by Mr. G. E. C. Moss, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Armstrong, instructed by Messrs. Fulton and Lowe, for the defendant. The defendant, Anderson, pleaded: (1) Not guilty; (2) that the girl's services were not lost to the plaintiff; (3) that they were not lost to the plaintiff through any action of the defendant. The jury brought in a verdict in favour of the plaintiff, and awarded £300 damages. The defendant is a married man, and resides at Rydalmere.

In an article on the lotteries a Berlin journal says there are three ways by which wealth is acquired—by work which is long and tedious; by dishonesty which is a precarious proceeding, and by gambling. The number of persons who prefer the lastnamed method is large in the German realm, for there the great lotteries thrive the best. There are seven of these under the management of the Government, and they distribute £32,000,000 in prizes. The anxiety to secure a part of this amount has destroyed the happiness of thousands of households, and has diverted thousands of good men from honest industry and thrift to idleness and poverty. In the seven lotteries there are about 22,000 winners a year, but of these only about 650 receive prizes of more than 1000 marks each.

CASUALTIES.

CARTER'S LEG BROKEN.

William O'Toole, 43, a carter, living in Little John-street, Pyrmont, was loading ballast on a dray for the Harbour Trust at Darling Harbour yesterday, when a quantity of the ballast fell on him, fracturing his left leg. Constable Duffell called the Civil Ambulance, and O'Toole was taken to Sydney Hospital and admitted by Dr. Hill.

BOY'S THIGH BROKEN.

A partition of the shed at Prince's Stairs, Circular Quay, was being removed yesterday, when a large part of the woodwork fell on Eric Holland, a lad of 9 years, living in Forbes-street, Woolloomooloo. The boy was taken to Sydney Hospital by Constable Cooper, of the Water Police, and the Civil Ambulance, and admitted with his right thigh broken.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS.

Michael Mackay, aged 9 years, living in Denham-street, Darlinghurst, was found lying on the roadway on Thursday night near his home in an unconscious condition. It is thought that he was knocked down by a vehicle. He was carried to his home, and was afterwards removed to St. Vincent's Hospital, where he regained consciousness yesterday.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A TRAM.

A woman, whose name and address are at present unknown, last evening met with an accident in George-street West, near Buckland-street, which resulted in her skull being fractured. She attempted to cross the street, and had reached the tramline when she hesitated, and went back. A tram was coming along at the time, and struck her, knocking her down. The Civil Ambulance took her to the Sydney Hospital, where she was admitted in a critical condition.

ACCIDENT TO A FARMER.

IN A CRITICAL CONDITION.

KEMPSEY, Friday.

Andrew Ryan, of Belmore River, was harrowing on his farm, when the horses bolted and overturned the harrow. In endeavouring to stop them Ryan was pulled forward on to the harrow, and one of the tines penetrated his thigh, going almost through. He is in a critical condition.

LOSS OF AN EYE.

KEMPSEY, Friday.

A young man named Ward was taking out stumps at Kinchela, when a chip flew into one of his eyes, seriously injuring it. He was brought to Kempsey, and it has been found necessary to take out the eye.

OLD LADY'S SUDDEN DEATH.

MUDGEE, Friday.

Mrs. Cormack, of Spring Flat, aged 68, was found dead last night under particularly sad circumstances. The old lady was with her son laughing and singing till her usual time for going to bed. She left the room, and her son, believing she had retired, remained reading for half an hour or so. He then went to bed himself. Later on his two sisters, who had been spending the evening at a neighbour's, returned home, and seeing what they believed to be a calf lying in the garden, went to hunt it out, and were horrified to find it was the corpse of their mother, who on leaving her son had gone out and dropped dead.

SHOT IN THE HEAD.

QUEANBEYAN, Friday.

The man discovered dead in a camp at Gungahlen turns out to be Henry Harman, who was living a quarter of a mile from the homestead in a gunyah built of bags and palings. At an inquest held by the coroner, Mr. Gale, it was found that death resulted from a rifle shot wound in the head, self-inflicted. The evidence disclosed that a week prior he had been suffering from diarrhoea, which, the doctor said, would produce temporary insanity. Deceased left a wife and four children.

NEW SOUTH WALES FOOTBALLERS.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The visiting New South Wales footballers were tendered a reception to-day by the Mayor of Brisbane. Mr. J. W. Blair, M.L.A., proposed the visitors, and Mr. Morgan, manager, and Mr. M'Kivatt, captain, responded.

NEWCASTLE.

MUNICIPAL ELECTRIC LIGHT.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

For the half-year ended June 30 the Newcastle City Council's electric light plant has shown a profit of £469, the total revenue being £3207, and the expenditure £2737. The council has now decided, in order to popularise the use of the light, to reduce the price to consumers by ½d per unit.

KILLED ON RAILWAY LINE.

An inquest was held to-day by the District Coroner (Mr. C. Hibble) into the death of William Henry Norton, who died from injuries received whilst employed on the railway construction works at Woy Woy. It was stated in evidence that the deceased fell from a cutting a distance of 17ft. He did not appear to be hurt, but just as he was getting up a stone that had been dislodged by his fall struck him on the head, and fractured his skull. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

PROPOSED TOWN HALL.

For some time past the question of erecting a Town Hall in Newcastle has been occupying the attention of the City Council, and a proposal is now on foot to take a poll of the ratepayers to see whether or not they will agree to the expenditure. It is estimated that an extra rate of 1-8 of a penny in the £ would yield £4000, for which a substantial building could be erected. The site proposed is at the back of the municipal market building, in Hunter-street. The question has been referred to the improvement committee.

SMELTING RETURNS.

At the Sulphide Corporation's Cockle Creek works during the week ore was treated producing bullion containing 1247oz of gold, 28,586oz silver, and 373 tons of lead.

WEEKLY COAL EXPORT.

The total quantity of coal exported from Newcastle during the week ended to-day amounted to 74,897 tons. Of this amount 37,047 tons were sent to foreign ports, while the Commonwealth and New Zealand ports took 37,750 tons.

STATE PARLIAMENTS.

PERTH, Friday.

The second session of the seventh Parliament was opened by the Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, yesterday, in the presence of a large gathering. The Governor's Speech mentioned that financial arrangements between the States had demanded and received continued attention. The development of the agricultural industry was referred to, and a bill would be introduced to provide an increase of capital for assistance to settlers and encouraging the establishment of the manufacture of agricultural implements. Provision is to be made for handling wheat, meat, and fruit at Fremantle for export. Recent developments in many of the mines were referred to. Power would be sought for the extension of other agricultural railways, notably to open up cultivation land to the north of Goomalling and to the south of the eastern goldfield railway, while the question of extending railway facilities to serve certain of the more eastern mining centres would be a subject for consideration. Among other projected measures were a bill to reduce the qualification of electors by the Council, redistribution of seats for the Assembly, a licensing bill, also bills dealing with mining, roads boards, public health, metropolitan sewerage, education, endowment, and the Public service. Economies in the Civil service, with lengthening of office hours, would be instituted.

MINING.

THE SHARE MARKET.

But for a strong buying movement in Tongkah Harbour Tin-dredging shares, the market yesterday morning would have been very inactive. Both silver and copper scrip were quiet, but prices were practically unchanged. Gold scrip was entirely in the background.

Business in copper shares was confined to Mount Molloy ordinary at 4/6 and O.K. Copper at 1/7, both unchanged, and Kangiara Proprietary at 3/9, a decline of /3. Kangiara Mines and Kyloe Copper commanded good offers, but there was very little spirit in the call for Chillagoe (contg), Hampdens, Munganas, and Mount Morgans.

In the silver section the only stock dealt in was B.H. South Blocks, which firmed from 30/6 to 31/6. Other Barrier scrip, with the exception of B.H. Proprietary, B.H. Block 10, B.H. Block 14 pref., and Sulphide Corporation ordinary, showed a firm tone.

In gold scrip sales were booked in Harden Gold Mine and Occidental (Cobar) at late rates. Queensland and Western Australia shares were freely quoted, but a close market was not made. In tin shares Tongkah Harbour Tin-dredging were in good request, and moved from 40/6 to 42/9.

In a quiet afternoon, Kyloe Copper commanded firm support, but Kangiara Proprietary, paid, eased still further. In the silver section, B. H. Souths, contg., and B. H. Junctions occupied a firm position at the close. The same was the case with Tongkah Harbour Tin.

LONDON SHARE MARKET.

LONDON, July 30.

On the Stock Exchange yesterday quotations of Australian mining ventures were:—British Broken Hill, b 20/, s 21/3; South Broken Hill, b £5, s £5/2/6.

MINING NOTES.

The Araluen Central No. 2 dredge obtained 24oz 9dwt for 102 hours' work, and the Araluen Redbank dredge 51oz 17dwt for 126 hours.

London advices, dated July 29, received by the B. H. Proprietary, give the following buying prices:—Silver, 1/11⅞; lead, £12/8/9; company's shares, 36/6; and spelter, £22.

The Bourke's Hill Tin-sluicing Company, Emmaville, has declared a dividend (first) of 6d per share, payable on August 16. The transfer books close on August 11.

The eastern crosscut from the south shaft of the Kangiara Proprietary Mining Company has been extended to 45ft, and the improvement in the general character of the material traversed, detailed in the last report of the company, has been maintained. Streaks and splashes of galena are showing in the face, from which water in fair quantity is making. Everything points to the existence of an ore-channel in close proximity to the face. The drive north from the Redbird shaft has reached 22ft, and is in 10ft of mixed ore and country rock. Four feet on the hanging-wall assays 8dwt 19 grs gold, 5oz 15cwt silver, and 7.2 per cent. lead. The adjoining 2ft assays 3dwt 9 grs gold, 11oz 10dwt silver, and 11 per cent. lead. Some 4ft of country rock, representing a horse coming into the lode, assays 1dwt gold, and 1oz silver. The footwall of the lode from which the high gold assays was recently obtained, is not exposed.

The Torrington Swamps Company was formed some 12 months ago in Adelaide, with a view to prospecting alluvial tin properties in the New England district. Since the formation of the company two boring plants have been continuously at work, and the result of this testing has been—that a well-equipped tin sluicing plant is being erected at Black Swamp near Torrington. All the machinery and material are on the ground; and, given favourable weather conditions, sluicing operations should be commenced within about a fortnight. The Round Swamp is being bored, and the results to date are of a very satisfactory nature. Should the remainder of the area being bored prove as satisfactory as that already prospected it is the intention of the company to purchase and erect a second dredge. In addition to these properties, the company has acquired other areas in the New England district, which will be bored as soon as the plant is released from Round Swamp.

MINING IN THE STATE.

CANBELEGO, Friday.

The shaft at the Lord Dudley Copper Syndicate's mine is down 50ft, all the material carrying yellow sulphide. The crosscut from this depth is in 6ft, all in yellow sulphides, the assay value of which is 3.55 per cent. copper. Owing to a flow of water being met with, progress has been slow. The developments are regarded as very good, and prove the ore body to be conterminous from the surface.

At the Restdown mines, the machinery is working splendidly, and the pump handles the flow of water easily. For the week ending 24th inst. the winze was sunk 5ft, total from surface 247ft. The formation is still kaolin, and is commencing to get a little harder. It is expected to strike the copper met with in the west crosscut at the 200ft level at any time now.

The Mount Boppy Copper Mine is working with two shifts with the battery, and is sending its concentrates to the Great Cobar copper mine for treatment.

Excellent developments still continue at the Canbelego copper mines. The contractors have extended the north drive at the 200ft level to 84ft. The ore body is still going strong, and assays from 14.5 per cent. to 22.1 per cent. copper. The ore is a rich, dense sulphide. Ore is now being carted to Boppy Mountain railway station for despatch to the smelters.

FOREST REEF, Friday.

The Benerie Deep Lead Gold and Copper mine has had a six months' suspension of labour granted.

The Quandong mine is driving to a distance of about 100ft from the bottom of the shaft. The nature of the ground at present is somewhat soft, and the water troublesome, as the lead is dipping from the shaft. The work in the face is showing good prospects.

MOLONG, Friday.

About 50 tons of ore have already been despatched from the old tin mine near Manildra to the smelting works at Mount Kembla, but so far no results are yet to hand. The ore being won is a good sample, comprising gold, copper, tin, and a little lead. The show, which is described as a promising one, is being worked by an Orange syndicate.

ROCKLEY, Friday.

Messrs. Martin and Kessey are sinking through the basalt on the old Swallow's Nest deep lead. The shaft is down 60ft, and the prospectors hope to pass through the basalt within the next 10ft. At the 50ft level the water was making freely, but has eased off as the shaft got deeper.

At the Mount David Gold-mining Company's mine, the mine manager states that a new lift of 100ft on the underlie in winch winze is completed, with the exception of a well hole. It will be necessary to sink a further depth of about 30ft for the storage of water. The drive south on the course of the lode will be started as soon as the well hole is completed.

YERRANDERIE, Friday.

At the Warden's Court to-day, before Warden Galbraith, the Prince of Wales South Extended Gold-mining Syndicate was granted a two months' suspension of the labour conditions. It is understood, however, that work will immediately be gone on with, to prepare for a general starting on a large scale. The inquiry into the two applications for the lease of the property known as the Tonalli Silver-mining Company, lodged by A. Murdoch, and also by A. W. Helsham, the company manager, has been adjourned to next sitting of the Goulburn Court on August 23.

A. E. Gardiner was granted permission to enter 20 acres of property of W. Quigg, of Yerranderie, to mine for silver and lead. There is already a shaft 150ft on the property. Work will start almost immediately.

YAMBULLA, Friday.

The Yambulla Gold Mines, Ltd., will start crushing on Monday. Mr. Walz, owner and manager of the Bungalow mine, has returned to the field, after a three months' visit to Sydney, and is extending operations. He has a large quantity of ore ready to send to Cockle Creek, and a big paddock of seconds for the local battery.

LOBB'S HOLE COPPER MINE.

LOBB'S HOLE, Friday.

Important developments have taken place in the Lobb's Hole mine. In driving east they struck a heavy flow of water. The ore channel is 2ft wide, with a foot of solid ore of the highest grade. The original owners consider the development very important.

BROKEN HILL MINES.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

The Silver City Blocks Company has decided to reconstruct into a company of 10,000 £1 shares. Of these 6500 will be offered to the public, the remainder going to the vendors. Holders of £5 shares in the old company will receive five £1 shares. The directors state that the prospects are sufficiently good to warrant this reorganisation, but more extensive work must be done before the property can be sold, or before production can be attempted.

The Golden King Development Company has issued a prospectus, proposing to work the old Golden King mine, about 24 miles north-east from Broken Hill, for copper and gold. A deal of work was done in the past, one shaft being down 200ft. The company will be in 400 shares of £5 each, 250 being offered to the public.

OUR AMERICAN LETTER.

THE RAILROAD SYSTEM.

NEW YORK, June 13.

When the Canal is completed—say in 1915 or 1916—it is quite probable that a railroad line from all parts of this country through to the Isthmus will be in full operation, thus completing the northern half of the Pan-American system designed 20 years ago by James G. Blaine. That Napoleon of transportation, E. H. Harriman, is the present head of this enterprise, and if he succeeds the hard things said about him will be recalled, and probably even Mr. Roosevelt himself will join in applauding him. The line as far as Guadalajara is now being pushed forward as fast as men and money can push it; and of the 3000 kilometres down to the Guatemalan border, concessions from the Governments interested have been secured for all but about 560 kilometres. What Mr. Harriman has done for the lines on the Pacific Coast was a far more difficult and costly task; and if he lives there is little doubt that the necessary money will be raised and the road completed well within the promised time. Everything seems ripe for such a project, for since, a year or so ago, Mexico and this country joined hands to force the five little quarrelsome Central American States to live in peace, many settlers and miners have begun to survey the lands and secure concessions and leases. If the ruins of forgotten times may be believed, this region once had cities containing hundreds of thousands of inhabitants, and it is still enormously rich in natural resources. The greater part of it, indeed, is as yet unexplored, save in its most general features, and quite possibly it has many great surprises in store for us. And inevitably the completion of the northern half will stimulate the construction of the many huge gaps that now divide the South American roads one from the other; and not very long after the Canal has been opened trains may run all the way through upon a connected track from Hudson's Bay to Terra del Fuego.

CONSULAR SERVICES.

Mr. Taft's reputation in public life is based mainly upon his triumphs as a negotiator and diplomat; and the distinctive feature of his administration will probably be the reorganisation of the diplomatic and consular service upon altogether stricter and more sharply defined lines. Mr. Roosevelt began the work of reform in this direction, but too late in his term to effect much. The policy of the future will be to give permanent tenure and progressive promotion in all the routine grades of the service, such as consuls, clerks, and secretaries, but to let no ambassador or Minister remain abroad long enough to get out of touch with his own people. One high officer, who has lived in foreign courts as a representative of this country for 27 years, has been requested to resign by the end of the year; and others have been marked for removal as soon as fit men can be found to take their places. Poor men, or men popular enough to hope for election at home as senators or governors, look askance at such posts; the salary is never enough to cover expenses, and the lavish extravagance at some courts of recent appointees has set an example which even wealthy men hesitate to follow. Besides, in the past hardly anyone has ever succeeded in sufficiently freeing himself from what might be called a "court" atmosphere to be elected by popular vote to any high office after he has returned home. But, perhaps, if very short terms become the rule, men who are really able statesmen may come to look upon such places as merely a sort of pleasant vacation from sterner and more strenuous posts of service. Of course, all really important international business is now conducted by the telegraph wire, or by commissioners, who, like Mr. Taft in the agreement with the Pope about the church lands in the Philippines, go directly from headquarters with exact knowledge of the hopes and wishes of his administrative chiefs.

RUSSELL SAGE'S MILLIONS.

Unofficially there has been published a partial accounting of Mrs. Russel Sage's stewardship of her husband's 65,000,000 dollar fortune, willed to her absolutely because "she knew best what to do with it," as the testator announced not long before his death. A third of it, together with its entire income, has in three years been given away—10,000,000 dollars for a Sage foundation to investigate the root causes of poverty, and for aid in general projects of social betterment; 5,000,000 dollars to educational and 2,500,000 dollars to religious institutions, and the rest to all manner of hopeful enterprises—60,000 dollars for planting a mile of rhododendrons in Central Park, 20,000 dollars for a famous historical portrait for the City Hall, and many other great and small sums to like deserving, or at least interesting objects. Mrs. Sage is past the allotted three score and ten, and the work involved in performing conscientiously this colossal task, to distribute a fortune of £13,000,000 so that it will relieve and stimulate wholesome endeavour without pauperising or demoralising those whom it reaches—is a burden which few persons, even in full vigour, would accept willingly. But for many years before his death she received about 100,000 dollars a year from her husband to give away without letting people know where it came from; and she is therefore a past expert in the art of giving.

CORNSTALKS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read with much interest the article from the pen of J. H. M. Abbott, which appeared in the columns of your Saturday's edition. Precisely the same impression which struck Mr. Abbott on his arrival at Port Adelaide also manifested itself to me some time ago at Fremantle, when, on my way out to Sydney from the old country, I, too, quickly noticed the people were "not the same tribe" as we had left. Professor Jones, who recently lectured at the University, most probably noticed the same, for I remember he made some reference to his impressions, which were of a like nature. It goes without saying, therefore, that Mr. Abbott hit the mark in describing "Cornstalk" as different from the inhabitants of the mother country "as chalk is from Kiama bluestone," and yet withal there is "the same love of justice, sport, and national integrity." This last is what I should like to enlarge upon. The differences between Mr. Abbott's Bill O'Brien, of Cape Otway, and Adolph Schmidt, of Queensland, may not perhaps be as great as that between Bill Smith, of Walworth, and Stringy Bark, of Woolloomooloo, or Percy Fitzroy, of Winchester, and Barrington Phillips, of Woollahra, but this is easily explained by the simple working of a given law. Environment, climate, and time have naturally worked upon the race. "These two the great law binds"—"changes changing them"; but the "national integrity" hasn't changed, that's the refreshing part of Mr. Abbott's article, and so, whilst admitting the differences worked upon the race by distance, environment, climate, and Father Time, let us all think for a moment what our feelings would be if, instead of watching the gallant American fleet circling off our coast, as we did last year, we had ever to watch for the advance guard of some hostile Power. What difference would it make then whether a man was born in Walworth or Woolloomooloo, Winchester or Woollahra? And so (inter nos) while some of us may hail from "some hamlet under the shadow of Snowdon," and others from Cape Otway or Rockhampton, let us one and all remember—

> But sterner trials await the race

I am, etc.,
CHARLES A. ROBERTS.

VINEGAR AND JAMS.

The Advisory Committee under the Pure Foods Act has taken further evidence respecting vinegar, and has also heard representations of the trade on the subject of the declaration of the amount of alcohol in proprietary medicines. Consideration has been given to amendments proposed by the trade in the regulations for jams and preserves, and it has been decided to recommend the gazettal of amended regulations to meet the requirements, which have reference chiefly to the question of labelling.

Lady Poore entertained Miss Kate Rooney yesterday at Admiralty House, and the popular contralto will to-day be the guest of the St. Vincent's ex-Students' Union at a reception in the college grounds.

Miss Kate Rooney's reappearances at the Town Hall after her successful career in England will take place next Thursday and Saturday, when the favourite contralto will be assisted by Miss Ziliah Harrison, Messrs. George Grimm, F. Mowat Carter, J. Edward Sykes, and G. Faunce Allman (organist). There will be a choir of 50 voices from the Garcia School of Music, and a strong orchestra led by Mr. W. J. Grieves, whilst the principal herself will sing some of her finest numbers. Already the booking is well advanced at Paling's, where the sale of the second seats (3s) has now been initiated.

THE NEWBURY POPULAR CONCERTS.

At the third of the Newbury Saturday Popular Concerts at the Y.M.C.A. Hall to-night, Mr. Philip Newbury's songs will include "On With the Motley" ("I'Pagliacci"), and the beautiful air "Che Gelida Manina" from "La Boheme." A well-contrasted programme will be contributed to by Misses Elsie Fischer, Ruby Michael, Esther Kahn, Master Lionel Lawson (a 9-year-old violinist), Messrs. At the Palace Theatre, where there will be the usual matinee to-day, Mr. T. J. West's new programme will present the French exclusive art film "The Gambler," the heroic military series, "A Dash for Help," "A Sculptor's Love," "Morning in the Bois de Boulogne," "Ascot Sunday at Boulter's Lock," "Military Manoeuvres Before the Crown Prince," and star comic stories. De Groen's Band will play.

SYDNEY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

A programme so diversified as to show a new aspect of the Sydney Philharmonic Society's operations will signalise their next concert at the Town Hall on Thursday, August 12. Mr. Joseph Bradley will conduct Hubert Parry's eight part chorus with orchestra and organ, "Blest Pair of Syrens," Villiers Stanford's cantata, "The Revenge," and Gounod's "Gallia" motet. There will also be three orchestral pieces, Beethoven's "Pastime Symphony," Handel's "Largo," and Tchaikowsky's "Air with Variations."

SYDNEY STRING QUARTETTE.

Mr. F. Mowat Carter's Sydney String Quartette, completed by Messrs. S. Vost-Janssen, Nico Ornstein, and Bryce Carter, will give a concert at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Wednesday, August 18, at which the Beethoven in C minor (op. 18), two quartettes by Raff, and Dvorak's Piano Quartette, in E flat (op. 87), will be rendered. Miss Emma Sussmilch, and Lawrence Godfrey Smith, will appear.

HOSPITAL SATURDAY CONCERT.

In connection with the Hospital Saturday movement, the annual concert-meeting will be held in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening next, when Lord Chelmsford will preside, and cheques will be distributed to the various hospitals. A bright programme has been prepared, in which Misses Mabel Batchelor, Esther Kahn, and Lillian Frost, Messrs. C. A. Rolfe, Sid Shipway, and the Newtown Band will take part. As the public is freely invited, the usual large concourse is expected.

MISS MAUD GRANTHAM'S RECITAL.

On Monday evening next Miss Maud Grantham will give her first recital in this city, at St. James's Hall, choosing one of her Melbourne successes, "The Cricket on the Hearth," for her initial endeavour. Miss Grace Fearon-Sherlock will play her own incidental music, and Miss Emma Sussmilch, Miss Constance Brandon-Usher, and Mr. F. Richmond Crouch will assist. The plan is at Paling's.

TOWN HALL ORGAN RECITALS.

Mr. G. Faunce Allman (organist, St. James') will give his last recital at the Town Hall at 3.15 to-morrow afternoon, when the programme will include the Toccata in F (Bach), two movements from Merkel's D Minor Sonata, "Spring Song" (Hollins), "O Star of Eve" (Wagner), and other numbers.

MRS. HAFFENDEN-SMITH'S CONCERT.

Mrs. Haffenden-Smith, a contralto who has not appeared in Sydney for some years, will give a concert at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Thursday, August 19, at which she will sing favourite repertoire numbers. This artist will be supported by the well-known boy singers, Ernest Crawford and Walter Marchand, as well as by Mr. Gladstone Bell, Mr. Arthur Crane, and two or three of her pupils. The plan will open at Nicholson's on Monday.

"LURED TO LONDON."

Mr. Edwin Geach has sold out his interests in the "Lured to London" Company, to Mr. George Marlow, who will in future carry on the company in his own name. It is the intention of the manager to start the new company at the Theatre Royal, Adelaide, on the 28th prox.

ST. GEORGE CHORAL UNION.

The St. George Choral Union terminated its fifth year on Tuesday evening at Rockdale Town Hall, by producing as the work for its fifteenth concert Haydn's magnum opus, the "Creation." The union had rigorously rehearsed the work under the direction of Mr. H. A. Jaques, and their efforts in this regard bore full evidence at the performance. The orchestra, led by Messrs. G. Stone and H. Lewis, were also effective in their accompaniments. Miss Lynn Mills, Mr. C. Rosenthal, and Mr. H. Neil were the principals; so that a strong trio of soloists was secured. The whole performance was thoroughly enjoyed.

CONCERT AT THE WALKER HOSPITAL.

A pleasant entertainment was given to the inmates of the Thomas Walker Convalescent Hospital by Herr Beischner's zither orchestra on Wednesday evening last. The assisting artists were Misses E. Morrow, Katie Green, and U. Flower, ably accompanied by Mrs. J. B. Beischner and Mr. A. G. Flower. All the items were heartily applauded.

At the Bijou Picture Palace, both afternoon and evening to-day, there will be an entirely new programme of the latest comic, dramatic, military, and scenic subjects from all parts of the world. The auxeto-cinephone, the latest scientific development for reproducing action and sound, will form an additional attraction.

Queen's Hall will be re-opened this evening with the new Globe Pictures, presenting such entirely novel subjects as "Motor Boat Pirates on Sydney Harbour," "Sydney on the Spree," The Pathe French art film, "The Two Pigeons," and a score of humorous, scenic, and dramatic tableaux. Matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays will be the rule.

Thursday, August 19, is the date of the fancy dress carnival, when there will be a procession of sleighs, a spectacular team pageant, with evolutions, and other attractive features.

THE SYDNEY MUFFS.

The Sydney Muffs will appear at the Theatre Royal on Wednesday, 25th August, when will be produced for the first time on any stage Sumner-Locke and Stanley M'Kay's one-act play, "A Martyr to Principle," and the favourite farcical comedy, "Niobe." The proceeds are to be devoted to St. Martha's Industrial Home.

INSTITUTE OF JOURNALISTS.

A smoke concert arranged by the Institute of Journalists will be given in aid of the Press Benevolent Fund at Aarons' Exchange Hotel, next Friday evening. So many offers of help were made to the general committee that an unusually fine programme has been got together, and this fact, taken in conjunction with the praiseworthy object of the concert, should secure a large attendance.

FIRST REGIMENT BALL.

Last evening, at the A.B.C. Rooms, Pitt-street, was held the annual ball of the 1st Battalion 1st Australian Infantry Regiment. The rooms were decorated, the blue and white regimental colours, mounted on regimental shields, being set off with a profusion of giant palm leaves. The room was not overcrowded, so dancing was a pleasure, the red and blue uniforms of the officers mingling with the vari-coloured costumes of the ladies, made a brilliant display. Col. W. Holmes, D.S.O., and Mrs. Holmes received the guests at the hall, where Mrs. Holmes was presented with a shower bouquet, set off with blue and white ribbons. Amongst those present were General Hoad (Chief of the General Staff), Colonel, Mrs., and Miss Holmes, Colonel Bartlett, A.A.G., Col. M'Leish, Col. Thompson, Col. Rowell, Major and Mrs. Watson, Major and Mrs. Rourke, Major and Mrs. Croker, Captain M'Manemy, Captain M'Donald, Captain and Mrs. Woodhill, Captain Diamond, Captain and Mrs. Sands, Captain Byrne, Captain and Mrs. Telney, and the officers of the regiment. Dancing was kept up until after midnight.

SHIRE COUNCILS.

AMAROO (Molong).—About 100 ratepayers in the Molong end of the Amaroo Shire have petitioned the Minister for Public Works, through the member for the district, opposing the granting of power to the Amaroo Shire Council to erect a shire hall at Cumnock, on the grounds of its unsuitability, and that the time is inopportune for such expenditure, owing to the bad state of the roads, etc., and demanding a referendum of the ratepayers to be taken on the subject at issue.

BLAND (West Wyalong).—At the monthly meeting of the council, the president (Councillor S. Wilson) reported that he had waited upon the Under-Secretary for Lands regarding an application made by the council for the dedication of about 450 miles of roads, and received a promise that special efforts would be made to have the matter hastened. He had also interviewed the Under-Secretary for Public Works with reference to a special grant for repairs to Marsden Bridge, which structure had been handed over to the council in a very dangerous condition. A letter had since been received from the Under-Secretary stating that a sum of £207 had been made available for this work. He had also asked for a reclassification of the Bland Shire, in order that it might be allowed endowment in future, and was promised that the application would be fully considered. A resolution from the Municipal Council of Young, "That legislation enabling councils to obtain gravel or other roadmaking material from enclosed land on payment of a fair value," was received and adopted. As most of the public watering places in the shire are bare of grass owing to the quantity of useless timber and undergrowth thereon, it was decided to apply for permission to ringbark where necessary. A fee of 10s per annum for butchers' shop and cutting-cart licenses was fixed, this being the first time any such license was decided upon.

BLUE MOUNTAINS (Blackheath).—At a special meeting of the council specifications were adopted for the lighting of the streets of Blackheath with acetylene gas, and tenders are to be called immediately for the installing and maintaining of the lights. The council is also moving in the matter of a rubbish tip for Blackheath.

BANNOCKBURN.—The council has unanimously decided to purchase a steam road-making plant, consisting of an 8-h.p. traction engine, a 10-ton steam roller, a rockbreaker, and six waggons, at a total cost of £2454 10s.

GUNNING.—At the last meeting of the council a reply was received from the Works Department stating that the application from the shire for increased endowment had been referred to the reclassification committee. Under the Board of Health report it was shown that 232 cattle had been slaughtered during the year throughout the shire, being 119 less than the previous year.

MURRAY SHIRE (Mathoura).—At the July meeting of the council, the clerk was instructed to write to the Works Department, stating that the licensed dam at Colligen Creek interferes with the road of access, and asking what steps the department would take towards providing means of ingress and egress. The council authorised the purchase of a road grader at a cost not exceeding £100. Six (6) contracts were let amounting to about £700. Application was made for the Governor's approval to the purchase of land in the town of Mathoura for the erection of shire hall and offices, the power to erect same having been already acquired. The clerk was instructed to obtain a longer term for the giving of notice to the company in the event of any fraud being notified or discovered, on the lines of the department's circular regarding fidelity guarantee bonds. Accounts amounting to £452 were passed for payment.

HUME.—The council has carried a resolution in favour of reducing the number of members in the Legislative Assembly from 90 to 56; also to have the shire gazetted as a district, in which the sale, use, and distribution of wax matches are prohibited during summer months.

LYNDHURST.—The council decided not to co-operate with the Annandale Municipal Council in petitioning the Federal Government to bring about penny postage. Some of the councillors, including the president, considered this to be a political question, and should not be dealt with by the council. The request from the Wyaldra Shire Council to co-operate in urging a reduction in the number of members in the State Parliament was also adversely considered.

SUTHERLAND.—At the last meeting of the council the president announced that the Holt-Sutherland Company had offered the council a block of land, in a splendid position, for council purposes free of cost. This offer was accepted. It was also announced that the company had agreed to give land to make Port Hacking-road 100ft wide. Obtaining shell grit at Cronulla Beach has been prohibited by the council. Mr. Downes, M.L.A., intimated that tenders for the tram would be called early in September. The Railway Commissioners, in reply to an application from the council for improvements on the up side, Sutherland, stated that the work was necessary, but no funds were at present available.

WINGECARRIBEE (Moss Vale).—At the last meeting a letter was read from the Department of Lands stating that the road from Canyonleigh to Coowong had not been formally dedicated as a public road, and, consequently, was not under the control of the council. Councillor Tatlow moved,—"That the council make application to the Minister for a special grant of £90 to be expended on the Veola mountain road, the amount being the balance of a former unexpended grant." Seconded by Councillor Taylor, and carried. Councillor Tatlow also moved,—"That the overseer take steps to see what improvements can be made on the steep gradients at Balch's Hill, and the probable cost." Seconded by Councillor Taylor, and carried.

MORE TESTIMONY TO REO RELIABILITY.

Still another letter of testimony to the quality and reliability of the Reo—the finest car ever built at anything like its price. This letter can be seen at our office.

"In answer to your letter received last night, I have pleasure in stating that the 8-h.p. Reo which I bought from you twelve months ago has given me every satisfaction. During that time it has cost me practically nothing for repairs, in spite of the rough roads and my inexperience. A great advantage it has over other small cars for bush use is the broad wheel track allowing it to traffic with ordinary vehicles. During the last twelve months the car has been in use every day, and has travelled many thousands of miles. I am perfectly satisfied with my purchase."

8-h.p. Reo, 2 seats, £175; 8-h.p., 4 seats, £190; 16-h.p., 4 seats, £325.

B.S.A. REASONING. B.S.A.

The Cars manufactured by the World-renowned Birmingham Small Arms Co. should have your first consideration, for the following reasons:—

No. 1.—It is admitted the world over that B.S.A. ball races, bearings, and material have no equal. These are the parts that make a car.

No. 2.—B.S.A. reputation is too big a thing to lose by turning out a car unequal to their other products.

No. 3.—All parts are absolutely interchangeable, and made to a standard. This is not the case with other cars. The B.S.A. Co. first brought interchangeability, and standardisation into vogue. This should appeal greatly to country motorists.

No. 4.—The B.S.A. Co. give a longer and more covering guarantee than any other makers.

No. 5.—The B.S.A. Car is years in advance of any other.

No. 6.—The B.S.A. Co. have manufactured cars since their inception in England, but not like other makers, they did not gain their experience at the public expense, but built car after car, experimented with them, and would not put one on the road until they were fully worthy of their famous trade mark. Space won't allow for further argument, but reasoning thus,

PROOFS OF CONTINENTAL TYRE DURABILITY.

Following close on the remarkable performance recorded a week or two ago, when a Victorian Motorist completed 12,000 miles without removing the Continental Tyres used on the front wheels of his car, comes the experience of a well-known Australian medical man, who writes:—"I am using my car on the worst roads in Victoria, so I think my work is a fair test. The covers on the front wheels have never been removed since December, 1907, and have travelled 15,000 miles. The Continental Tyre on the back wheel has been on for 15 months, and is still in fair condition." This additional evidence of the durability and reliability of Continental Tyres will be read with interest by Motorists who are anxious to keep down tyre expenditure.

WATCH KENSINGTON GROW.

Have you been out to see the new KENSINGTON SUBDIVISION yet? Lots of people have, and the verdict in every case is that a home could not be more favourably situated than there—at the Eastern Gates of the City. KENSINGTON MUST GROW. Its growth will be interesting to watch.

THE GOLF LINKS. The new subdivision is handy to the Kensington Golf Links, Sydney Cricket Ground, and the Agricultural Grounds. Moore Park is adjacent to the new subdivision, and Centennial Park quite near.

A SUBURB OF FINE HOMES. Kensington is, above all, a suburb of fine homes. Every house there is handsome and in good taste. Dozens of tenants eagerly compete for every house that is vacated. Empty houses? There are none. The parks, the Golf Links near by, the good tram service, the nearness to the city—these and other advantages make Kensington Sydney's most popular and desirable suburb.

KENSINGTON AS AN INVESTMENT. As an investment, we can strongly recommend lots in the new subdivision. Prices are most moderate. The city is growing wonderfully. It has advanced right round and away beyond Kensington. Many new houses will be built there this summer. The values of all lots will go up. Invest your savings in Kensington, and, without work, without risk, you will double them.

THE NEW SUBDIVISION. The new lots are roomy. From all fine views are to be had. Good roads have been made, footpaths kerbed and guttered, gas and water are available. Prices run from 50s per foot. Terms, from £5 deposit. Balance in 72 equal monthly payments.

THE DANGER OF DELAY. Every lot on the estate is a good lot, but naturally some—corner lots, for instance—are better than others. These choice lots will go first. We advise you to make your selection NOW. Plan Booklet and all information from the Office on the Estate, corner Todman-avenue and Lenthall-street, or from the Managing Agents.

THE "GARDEN SUBURB," HABERFIELD.
The ROYAL COMMISSION on the beautification of SYDNEY and SUBURBS has now finished its labours, and has presented its report, and we are pleased to find that HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB planning is in accord with the HIGH IDEALS laid down by this COMMISSION; and one of the strong points of the report is that it will be necessary that some uniform control should operate in order that the scheme of beautification can be made, not alone in the City, but extending on past an imaginary line through into the adjoining Suburbs of this great City. HABERFIELD IS VERY CLOSE TO THE CITY
of Sydney proper (being two miles from the City Boundary). The improvement of this end of the City can be taken in hand and dealt with at little expense, as it is acknowledged that when HABERFIELD IS REACHED nothing more is required than Haberfield as it is to-day. It is further asserted in the report, and we think very correctly, and possibly an understatement of what will be the fact, that within a period of less than 20 years the City will have a population of at least one million souls. That suggests an argument to us that being so close to the City with our Garden Suburb Scheme, and carrying out that scheme on such highly artistic lines, it is no exaggeration to say that within 20 years this property
WILL BE WORTH THREE TIMES
WHAT IT IS TO-DAY.
And, of course, will be more accessible by communication year by year, and will be more benefited by improvement. Now, we would like to explain the class of buildings we are erecting, but it is almost impossible for us to commit a description to paper. The Cottages (or "Beautiful Homes") that we are erecting are so dissimilar to that usually to be obtained on an ordinary house hunt that we would ask you as a favour to visit the scene of our work, and see for yourself the grand homes, so artistically treated, and with such up-to-date surroundings.
OUR PRICES ARE NOT HIGH.
In fact, we venture to say, there are no properties similar in value being offered anywhere in the Metropolitan Area. In the first instance, our smaller type at £550. This is an ideal, cosy Home, suitable for small family. From that on we have others that will cost you £600, £650, £675, £725, and so on up to £1200. Each property according to the amount quoted has the intrinsic sovereign value which should attach to the property at the figure mentioned. Now, one of the reasons of our great success is that we have so arranged our proposition that we look more to the individual than the amount of money he is possessed of, and we are PREPARED TO MEET YOUR FINANCIAL ARRANGEMENTS,
So that you need not disturb existing investments or take your money out of your business. Of course, the cash buyer is one we are always glad to treat with, and naturally we prefer a cash sale rather than otherwise. All our transactions are upon a five per cent. basis.
SATURDAY is a SPECIAL DAY WITH US, and if you cannot meet us other than Saturday afternoon you will find all our Salesmen at the Local Office, HABERFIELD, corner Kingston-street, the whole of This Afternoon.

GREAT DEMAND FOR STUDENTS of STOTT AND HOARE'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.

Never before in the history of the College has the demand for our Graduates been so great as now.

MANY GOOD POSITIONS GO BEGGING DAILY

through the demand exceeding the supply. Since January 289 positions have been placed at our disposal, of which we have been able to fill only 220.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ENROL.

Our attendance of students exceeds that of all other business colleges and shorthand schools in New South Wales, combined, and employers naturally place their requirements with the institution which is best able to fill them. Hence the enormous demand for our graduates, which has never been so great as now.

THE TAILOR'S GOOSE.

You've heard of the Tailor's Goose! That's what the flat-iron is called. It's the saving tool of the man that makes bad clothes. In expert hands it coaxes warps and blisters out of a coat, and licks it into shape. And there's another Tailor's Goose. It is the unsuspecting customer who is induced by showy advertisements to expect a bargain in clothes, and something for nothing thrown in. WE ARE ART TAILORS.

And we make a study of your figure every time. We suggest the styles of garments to suit you best. We never let you get out of fashion in dressing.

THERE'S DISTINCTION IN OUR CLOTHES.

HOW WE ACCOUNT FOR IT.

Our Cutter is an Expert Designer, and we employ only the best tradesmen. And we put honest material in all our suits. We do not employ a flat-iron expert. Our Suits are made to shape and just pressed off.

—are a boon to imperfect eyes, but mark the words—ACCURATELY FITTED. If the examination is not scientific, thorough, and exhaustive, carried out by highly-skilled opticians, there can be NO accuracy. Such is JERDAN'S, and we make NO charge for examination. Our Isometrope Lenses, remarkable for their Limpidity, Transparency, yet Opaqueness, to all harmful lights, are perfect for workers in electric or strong lights. IN Spite of other Remedies being advertised for the total destruction of SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS,
I still offer ONE HUNDRED POUNDS REWARD to anyone who has a remedy other than my own for the permanent removal of this disfigurement, or to anyone who can prove that my system fails to remove hairs for ever. Although I have made this offer for the last two months no one has claimed the £100 reward, nor has one of the thousands of clients treated by me claimed the amount, because "their hair had grown again." Surely this ought to prove the genuineness of this treatment, and the failure of employing other remedies. I am still willing—for further proof—to remove a few hairs free of charge. "The Truth about Superfluous Hair and other Facial Blemishes" is a book just issued, and will be posted free to anyone on application.

IT'S CLEAN SWEEP TIME AT—LOWE'S!

"Departmental ditties" are the rage at Lowe's, and they are being sung to the tune of "Lowe" prices. For the past fortnight our two big stores have been two hives of industry, and the remarkable celerity with which sales have been made indicates the nature of the values offered. Men and mothers have literally crowded us out, and the regular stream backwards and forwards has begun to show its impress on the stocks. £35,000 worth of high-grade clothing for men and boys takes a good deal of clearing, but judging by the rate at which it is now moving we will not have any difficulty in making an absolutely "Clean Sweep," of the immense stock. PRICES will tell, and if you wish to be in the swim, and make your shilling do double duty you won't hesitate another moment. Come to-day. We'll be open till 10 p.m., and the stuff has been augmented to cope with the Saturday rush.

If you cannot come drop us a request for the 20-page Booklet of Clean Sweep Bargains. We send all goods Carriage Free, and guarantee to refund your money if you are not satisfied.

A CLEAN SWEEP OF MEN'S SUITS AND TROUSERS.

IT'S CLEAN SWEEP TIME AT—LOWE'S!!

Talk's cheap, but when you back up your talk with deeds then people begin to get interested. At both our two big stores we have been making some of the most surprising offers that Australia has seen—offers that would be hardly believable if the evidence was not so easily seen. Taste and thrift are always catered for at Lowe's, and during the Clean Sweep time our one desire is to empty the shelves in order to make room for the incoming stock. So profits are ignored, and those who are wise will spend a little extra now in order to save a lot. Will you be one of the busy buyers at our two big stores to-day? Note these alluring figures—prices that turn the trend of trade in our direction.

ONLY ONE MORE WEEK FOR EXTRA TROUSERS FREE!!

We firmly intended keeping our free trousers offer on till the end of the Clean Sweep. The demand, however, has been so phenomenal that the big batch of materials set aside for the free trousers is rapidly diminishing. So we are forced to make next Saturday the last day for the fourth garment suit offer.

If you want a first-class suit to order at any price from 42/ to 105/, you can't do better than give us your order. We have the finest corps of cutters and tailors in Australia. We carry very heavy stocks, and we work on a low margin of profit. That is why we can give such wonderful value in the suits. No matter where you live, we can suit you. Our patterns and measurement forms will be sent anywhere, and we guarantee that if you are not satisfied with the production you can have your money back.

Why not order at once? If you do we will supply an extra pair of trousers absolutely free of charge—a pair that will give you a better-dressed appearance and add considerably to the life of your suit. Act now or you may be too late. The closing date is next Saturday, and the offer may never be made again.

Both our two big stores will be open till 10 o'clock to-night. Come in if you can, and bring your purses for the relentless pressure of the brooms is sending the bargains in all directions.

Remember that our Booklet of Bargains will be sent on request, and that we pay the carriage anywhere in Australia.
